University Library Gets Book Collection Of Josephus Daniels

By Agatha Adams

Josephus, Jr., Worth, Jonathan, and Frank Daniels, the four sons of the late Josephus Daniels, noted editor, ambassador and cabinet member, have just presented a large collection of books and other items from his private library to the University library, it was announced yesterday by Chancellor R. B. House and Librarian C. E. Rush.

This generous gift, totalling over 4,000 items, was made without any restrictions, except for the request that books not needed in the University library be offered to other libraries in the state.

The collection may be roughly divided into two groups, each of which will have a distinctive bookplate: "The Josephus Daniels Collection of Books Relating to Mexico," and general materials of literary and historical interest, to be inscribed "From the Library of Josephus Daniels."

Rich Interests

The Daniels books as a whole reflect, as must the private library of an interesting individual, the rich and many sided interests of their late owner. The major fields of interest in the general collection are on Naval history, sea power, both World Wars, American biography, diplomatic history, the history of the American flag, and the South.

Much of the material here, such as some of the Naval documents, the publications of the Navy History society, the portfolio of official Italian maps from the first World War, and the two volumes of Muirhead Bone's drawings entitled "The Western Front," will form a most useful supplement to the Bowman Gray collection on the first World War.

Official War Documents Many of the official documents bear Mr. Daniels' name stamped in gold on the binding. One of the notable books in this group, and a very welcome acquisition, is the great folio three-volume set, "History of the Indian Tribes of North America," by MacKenny and Hall, published by the War Department in 1838, and illustrated with 120 tinted portraits of Indian chieftains, reproduced from the portraits in the Indian gallery of the Department of War. Here is excellent material for Indian costumes, as well as Indian history.

The group of books related to Mexico reflect the wide esteem and affection in which Josephus Daniels was held while he was United States ambassador there. Many are presentation copies, expressing in warm phrases the admiration of the author or the donor for the Ambassador. Some of them would be unobtainable except through official channels; such are a handsome homage volume from the Catholic church in Mexico to Pope Pius XI, and a richly bound volume in honor of the fourth Centenary of Apparitions of Our Lady of Guadalupe. This latter was presented to Josephus Daniels by the Archbishop of Mexico.

Many Books on Mexico

The books related to Mexico include works in both Spanish and English; there is a good representation of most of the recent books about Mexico, and pre-publication copies of Hudson Strode's "Timeless Mexico" and Bess Adams Garner's "Notes in the Margin," which had evidently been sent to Mr. Daniels for his comment. There is a copy of Poinsett's "Notes on Mexico," London, 1825, in an especially fine blue leather binding.

TARNATION

The Tarnation Business Staff will meet in the business office on Tuesday at 5 p. m.

'CampusTime' Prints Article by Sumner, University Student

The April issue of "Campus Parade," national magazine for college men and women, carries an article with a three-page picture layout by graduate student Mark R. Sumner.

The article, entitled "Of the People: the Carolina Playmakers," covers the thirty-year history of the drama organization and is illustrated with photographs from recent Playmaker productions, as well as a previously unpublished picture of novelist Thomas Wolfe.

Thirty Years Covered

Although the article covers the whole thirty years of Playmaker activities, many of the people mentioned, or who appear in the photographs, are present day students or faculty members of the dramatic art department.

Sumner, who handles publicity for the Playmakers, has had two of his one-act plays published this year. One was "Rock Dust," published by Row, Peterson company of New York, and the other was, "Thunderhead," published by the Art Craft Play company. The Carolina Magazine recently ran his short story, "One for the Major," based on war experiences.

"So Many Mistakes"

Two of his one-act plays were recently produced on experimental bills by the Playmakers, although he says, "The audience found so many mistakes, I'm almost afraid to write another one."

The Campus Parade article is Sumner's first venture into the national magazines. It has not previously been available in North Carolina, but the April issue is on sale at the Sloan Drug company news stand on Franklin street.

Dr. Leavitt to Head Humanities Council

A Southern humanities conference composed of representatives of organizations in six southern states was recently organized at the University.

Dr. Sturgis E. Leavitt of the University faculty, who represents the American Council of Learned Societies at the conference, is chairman of the new group. He has announced that the group will meet annually each spring.

David S. Burgess Will Speak Tonight On Labor Situation, Christian Church

Rev. David S. Burgess, popular speaker at the Student Volunteer conference on "Christian Frontiers" at the University of Kansas, will be guest speaker at the Presbyterian student group tonight. Supper will be served for students at 6 o'clock. Immediately after supper Burgess will speak; following the speech the floor will be opened for discussion.

At present Burgess is doing educational and organizing work for the Congress of Industrial Organizations in South Carolina. His office is located in Rock Hill, S. C. where he also serves as assistant to the Presbyterian minister. He has been actively interested in the Fellowship of Southern Churches and is now chairman of their labor commission.

Burgess was born in China where his parents were missionaries. After graduating from Union Theological seminary in New York, he was appointed minister to labor from the Congregational church. In this capacity Burgess served labor groups in Tennessee, Arkansas and Missouri. All of his work has been an effort to bring religion and labor closer together.

PAUL G. HOFFMAN, above, former president of Studebaker Motors and the Time-Life director was appointed last week by President Truman to head the newly created European Recovery Administration (ECA) which will administer the Marshall plan. (International)

Kerr Scott Charges Johnson Could Not Resign His Position

Gubernatorial candidate W. Kerr Scott declared yesterday that State Treasurer Charles M. Johnson could not resign his position even if he so desired. Scott, who is opposing Johnson in the race for governor, resigned as agriculture commissioner to enter the race.

Said Scott, "Johnson can't resign because if he did so the governor would have to appoint another state treasurer, and no new treasurer would take the job until an audit is made of the treasurer's books."

Scott said he is trying to point out that Johnson has proved himself a very poor "business" man from the taxpayer's standpoint by not investing the huge state surplus at interest.

DAVID S. BURGESS

Burgess will give the reasons why he as a minister decided to work in the labor movement. Secondly, he will outline briefly the situation in labor today. Finally, he will point out some of the things the Christian church can do.

Everyone is invited to attend.

ADPi's Awarded Cup In Sigma Chi Derby

Angas Selected As Fraternity's New Sweetheart

The Sigma Chi's last night selected Frances Angas, Brooklyn, N. Y., as their Sweetheart for the year. Fran is an outstanding coed who has just been elected to the position of Speaker of Coed Senate.

The selection of Sweetheart was made after an extensive contest between 41 coeds. The fraternity voted in the Wednesday chapter meeting, but the name of the winner was not disclosed until last night.

Highlighting the Sweetheart Ball last night was the impressive figure which took place inside a heart formed by members of the fraternity. Each member held a candle and the fraternity sang "The Sweetheart of Sigma Chi" as the girls of the Sigma Chi court appeared in the figure carrying red roses, and escorted by one of the brothers.

Jack Thompson, president, walked through the court and selected the sweetheart, presenting her with a bouquet of white roses, centered with an orchid. He then escorted her to the throne as fraternity members sang "The Sweetheart of Alpha Tau," local chapter song, which was written by Hank Beebe, who is pinned to Fran Angas.

Following this was a no-break dance for the members of the court and their escorts.

SP MEETING

The Student party will meet tomorrow evening at 9 o'clock in Graham Memorial to elect officers and re-organize. SP head Grann Childress said last night.

Tri-Delt, Pi Phi Are Runners-up In Close Contest

The Alpha Delta Pi's proved the dark horse in yesterday's Sigma Chi derby, as they triumphantly captured the coveted Sig derby cup with a total score for the afternoon of 19—three points higher than any of their competitors.

Delta Delta Delta and Pi Beta Phi tied for second place with 16 tallies after running the gamut of pie-throwing, sack-racing, egg-and-spooning and other pastimes that the Sigma Chi's had dreamed up for the fearless entrants into the competition.

In the local tabulations, third, fourth and fifth places were taken by Alpha Gamma Delta, Chi Omega and Carolina Independent Coed association, respectively.

Sarah Jane Farlow stole the show for the entire proceedings and especially for the ADPi's when she walked away with the "Miss Modern Venus" crown.

In the Sigma Chi Claiming division, another ADPi brought home the bacon as Bill Henderson's hawk-eye for pie-throwing won her the grand prize—having a pie neatly pushed into her face by Jim Hendrick, the previously suffering target of all the slapstick play.

The climax of the afternoon, according to many of the hundreds of spectators who watched the afternoon's proceedings on Fetzer field, was the final event—the skits. Captured by Tri-Delt with "Sinbad the Sailor," the playlets ran all the way from "Red Hot Riding Hood" to "Casey at the Bat."

13 O. K. WITH HIM

MT. VERNON, Ill. (UP)—Thirteen is Bob Yates' pet number. The 17-year-old Navy seaman, who lives at 1213 Casey Ave. here, entered boot camp as one of 13 new enlistees. En route, he was a passenger on car 13 and slept in berth 13. He arrived safely back home on Friday the 13th.

Glen Taylor Slated To Speak Tomorrow On Campus Following Twin-City Talk

Wallace Club Makes Plans For Convention

Local Wallace-for-President club members met Friday night in Bingham hall and made last-minute preparations for attending the Progressive party's two-day convention which convened yesterday in Winston-Salem, and is featuring an address by Senator Glen Taylor, third party Vice-Presidential candidate.

Bill Richardson, president of the club, presided over the meeting which named the club's executive committee as the 10 official delegates now participating in the convention.

$1,000 Token

A report by Doris Friedland, club member, showed the New Jersey state committee for Wallace had sent to the Winston-Salem convention a $1,000 token to be used by the Progressive party in placing Wallace's name on the North Carolina ballot.

A petition bearing 10,000 signatures, plus a "poll tax" charge of 10 cents per name, is required in order for Wallace to be recognized as a candidate, it was disclosed.

Richardson at Jersey

The New Jersey state committee has agreed to "adopt" the North Carolina Progressive party for this campaign fund drive. Richardson, who was a speaker at the Jersey convention, besides being influential in the raising of the $1,000 token, also brought back $165 rendered to him personally by convention delegates, said Mrs. Friedland.

A five-man committee, led by Richardson and Harvey Weinstein will travel to Women's college on Wednesday night to hold a joint meeting with the newly-formed Wallace club on that campus, the club decided.

Harrison Becomes Treasurer of UWF

Frank Harrison of Hendersonville has been elected to replace Hank Sewell, who resigned, as treasurer of the campus chapter of the United World Federalists. His election came at the last meeting of the UWF, following a discussion by the members of the group on the Czechoslovakian situation.

Sam Bartlett's Business Has Grown Fifteen-fold in 13 Years Existence

By Chuck Hauser

Today marks the 13th anniversary of the business concern that is 15 times as large now as it was at the time of its conception back in 1935. And the occasion brings to light a story that Horatio Alger would have been proud of.

Back in '35, a young fellow named Sam Bartlett tacked a "taxi" sign on his second-hand, 1934 model Chevrolet and began the business now known as the Carolina Cab company, which has a fleet of 15 cabs operating in and around Chapel Hill.

Sam, a native of Asheville rolled into Chapel Hill first as a freshman at the University. When a cute UNC coed caught his eye, he up and married her on April 12, 1925. Pretty soon the couple moved back to Asheville where Sam went to work as book-keeper with the city water department.

After two years' work in Florida, where they migrated next, Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett came back to Chapel Hill right in the mid-

Second Senior Meet Scheduled Tuesday For Memorial Hall

The second meeting of the 1948 senior class will be held Tuesday night at 7:30 in Memorial hall, according to an announcement made yesterday by President Benson McCutcheon.

Principal business on the agenda concerns "Spike" Saunders, University alumni secretary who will discuss plans for post-graduation organization of the class of 1948.

Also on the agenda will be Earl Fitzgerald, chairman of the Debate council, who will discuss the plan to re-offer the Willie P. Mangum Medal in oratory again this year.

Previously, the medal has been awarded to the member of the senior class who during his four years prior to graduation has best exhibited the qualities of oratory, debate and scholarship.

According to Fitzgerald, "The winners of this medal through the years of its existence have been men for the most part of equally high rank in life as that of Senator Mangum. It is the desire of the Debate council to see those excelling in elocution to continue being recognized through this program."

Although the boomerang is generally associated with Australia it did not originate there but in Egypt.

Introduction to Be Made by Dr. Straley, Physics Professor

By Jim Dickinson

Senator Glen H. Taylor, third party vice-presidential candidate, will arrive here tomorrow to deliver an address scheduled for 8 o'clock in Hill hall. He is in Winston-Salem today speaking before an estimated 2,000 people gathered there for the North Carolina Progressive party's founding convention.

The Idaho senator, Henry Wallace's running mate in the current presidential race, is appearing here under the auspices of the local Wallace for President club. Dr. Joseph Straley, physics professor, will serve as chairman of the assembly.

Reception Slated

An open forum session will follow the address, and immediately afterwards Senator Taylor will be honored at a reception in Graham Memorial.

From Chapel Hill Senator Taylor will journey to Charlotte for a Tuesday night debate with Dorothy Thompson, noted columnist, on the subject "Is the third party justified?" The discussion will be aired on the ABC network.

In Office Until '51

Senator Taylor, who was well received in an appearance here last year, has been a prominent figure in American politics since he was elected to the U. S. Senate from Idaho in 1944 in a dramatic race against isolationist Dr. Worth Clark. His present term runs until 1951.

His career in the Senate has been characterized by leadership on behalf of the farmer, the worker, the small businessman and the consumer.

Organized labor knows Senator Taylor for his fight against the Taft-Hartley law, at which time he talked on the Senate floor for eight hours in an attempt to defeat the opposition intent on overruling the veto.

Two Senator Team

Teaming with Senator Claude Pepper, who will appear here next Friday under the CPU sponsorship, Taylor sought to give the people back home time to tell Congress how they felt about the veto. Thousands of telegrams poured in from all parts of the nation to reward his gallant effort.

Most publicized among his senatorial achievements was Taylor's action in preventing the seating of the late Senator Bilbo by the 80th Congress. Taylor introduced a resolution demanding that the Senate refuse to seat Bilbo, and the subsequent uproar and the strength of the attacks against him convinced Bilbo not to force a test in the Senate on whether or not he was legally elected.

Cross-Country by Horse

Late in 1947, Taylor undertook a cross-country horseback trip as an effort to alert the American people to what he considered a dangerous present foreign policy. He explained the trip in these words:

"I am making a horseback and automobile trip across the country in order to warn the people of the U. S. against the danger of war in our present foreign policy. I have decided that in order to attract attention to a voice which opposes this trend, I must dramatize the issue."

Taylor has introduced bills and resolutions to restore price controls; raise the minimum wage; make credit available to small business; investigate the real estate lobby; establish control over monopolies.
