House Group Passes Draft Bill; Would Take Men Between 19-25

Forrestal Brands Bill As 'Excellent'; UMT Not Included

Washington, May 3 — (UP) — The House Armed Services committee today approved the House draft bill by a vote of 28 to 5. The measure would call up for two years of military service young men 19 to 25 years old who are not veterans.

Passage of the proposal by the committee went through after Defense Secretary Forrestal branded it "excellent." It is, straight draft legislation with no mention of universal military training. It does not apply to 18-year-olds, who would be called up for one year of domestic training under the Senate measure.

Reserve Exemptions
Men who were in the army for more than 90 days but less than a year could be drafted, but they would be exempted if they joined an organized reserve. All other veterans would be exempt under the bill.

Drafting would begin 90 days after the bill became law. High school students under 20 years old would be permitted to graduate before their induction. College students would be allowed to finish out an academic year.

Third Year
After each draftee served a two-year tour of duty, at home or abroad, he would have to join the inactive reserves for five years. He could avoid this by signing on for another year of regular military service. The drafting would be done, as it was in World War II, by neighborhood draft boards.

Before the formal vote, Secretary Forrestal admitted he actually prefers the Senate bill, which combines the draft with universal military training.

MUNGER TO SPEAK

At the regular Tuesday night supper meeting of the married couples' and graduates' group of Wesley foundation the Rev. Bernard Munger, pastor of the Congregational church of Chapel Hill, will continue a discussion on "Modern Problems in Interpreting the Bible." The picnic supper will be held at the Methodist church at 6:45, and interested students are cordially invited to attend.

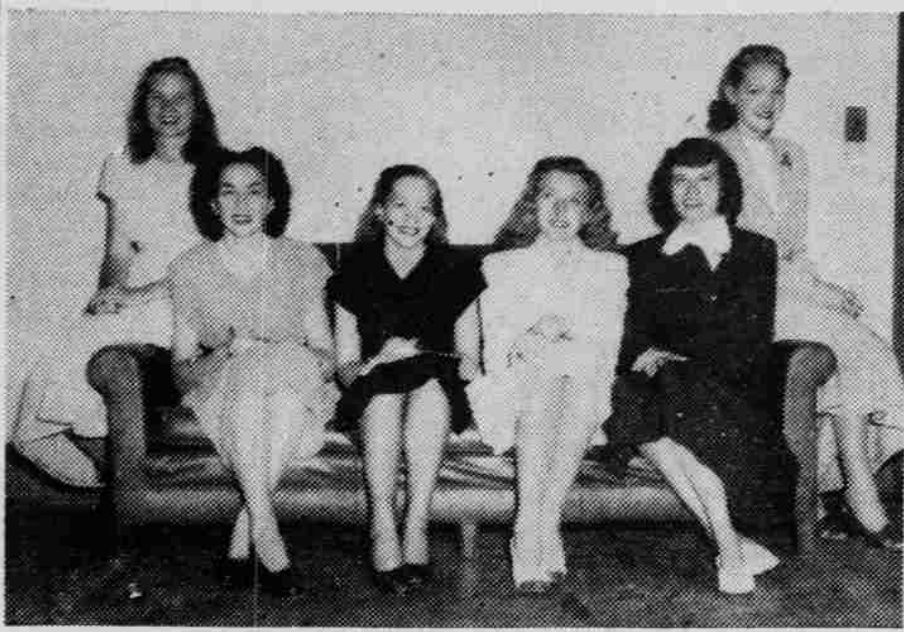

N. C. Veterans Will Get Subsistence For 15 Days After Spring Session

Raleigh, May 3 — World War II veterans attending schools, colleges and universities in North Carolina under the GI Bill of Rights will receive automatically subsistence payments for 15 days after the spring sessions end, but will not be eligible for service-men's readjustment allowances under the GI bill while receiving the subsistence allowances.

This announcement was made today by Henry E. Kendall, chairman of the Employment Security commission of North Carolina, which administers this provision of the Servicemen's Readjustment act of 1944 under direction of the Veterans administration.

Fine or Jail
Students under this program should make sure their GI subsistence payments have stopped before they file claim for unemployment allowances, since, in cases of deliberate attempts to defraud, there may be a fine or jail penalty for drawing "concurrent payments," as well as the forfeiture of all rights under the readjustment allowance program. Chairman Kendall explained. Incidentally, he cited 192 cases of fraud in all types of veteran claims were referred to the Federal Government for prosecution in March and April.

Veterans are reminded also that they are required to apply for

Catherine Holt Is Crowned May Queen In Forest Theater Festivities On Sunday

By Weddy Thorp

Catherine Lee Holt, senior from Burlington, was crowned Queen of the May at the annual May Day festivities held in the Forest theater on Sunday afternoon.

Summer Students Registration Set

All general college students who expect to attend summer school, either one or both terms, will register for their courses by appointment with their advisers during the period May 10-15. Appointments may be made by signing an appointment sheet at the information desk, main lobby of South building, after 2 o'clock any day this week.

Those students who have been notified of their transfer to the upper college should not make an appointment with a general college adviser but should register in the College of Arts and Sciences or the School of Commerce.

A later announcement will be made concerning the pre-registration of those students who will return in September but who will not attend summer school.

Crowned by House

Chancellor R. B. House placed upon her a floral crown climaxing the ceremonies which included a colorful pageant and the presentation of the May Court. The Queen, the two maids-of-honor, and the other members of her court had been selected from the senior class several weeks ago by a cod vote, but their identity had remained a secret until they formed the procession which filed down into the Forest theater.

The Queen wore a gown of white organza with a short train and organza ruffles at the hem, and carried a nosegay of white flowers.

Harrer Directs

The pageant, which was written by members of Chi Delta Phi, was under the direction of Marcella Harrer of Chapel Hill. It was enacted by members of the junior high school group of Chapel Hill.

The pageant opened with the old English ballad, "Summer Is A-Comin' In," played in rondo form by a trio of faculty members, A. L. Lancaster, Eugene Davis, and G. A. Harrer. The action took place in the land of Somewhere and represented a court scene where a prince was charged to find a bride before his 25th birthday. The devil conjured up famous beauties of history before the prince, but they were rejected.

The May Court was announced as the attendants entered the theater, and the prince found the queen to be the one for whom he was searching.

Sponsors Listed

The May Day ceremonies were sponsored by the Pan-Hellenic council, the Carolina Independent Coed association, and Chi Delta Phi. Co-chairmen of the event were Ferne Hughes, Rainelle, W. Va.; Sarah Blair Pearson, Gastonia, and Marcella Harrer, presidents respectively of the sponsoring organizations. Committee chairmen were: publicity, Sue Stokes, Raleigh; gowns, Kay Holden, Raleigh; finance Edith Knight, Alexandria, Va.; programs and flowers, Ferne Hughes; and elections, Sarah Pearson.

Supreme Court Upholds Negroes In White Areas

Washington, May 3 — (UP) — The United States Supreme Court ruled today that real estate covenants barring Negroes from all-white residential districts cannot be enforced in the courts.

This ruling gave a victory to American Negroes and other minority groups. The Court's decision would apply to a Negro family that moves into a neighborhood having an all-white covenant. Under the new ruling, the family cannot be forced to move out by legal action.

However, the high court maintained that private covenants are in themselves legal. In other words, if the land-owners in one area wish to join together and set up rules governing their neighborhood, the action would not be illegal although the group could not go into any court to enforce the agreement.

Other important decisions passed by the Supreme Court today included sending back to a lower court the anti-trust suit against eight big movie companies. The suits will carry the Supreme Court's suggestions for tougher penalties against the movie firms.

The Court also held that it is illegal for large grocery chains to undersell independent grocers by wholesale discount plans.

In another ruling the court upheld the right of states to impose taxes on oleomargarine.

Damon Misses Rock-Wall Time

By Jim Dickinson

"I feel like a man without a country," was the wailing cry made Sunday by Walter Damon, former Carolina student who transferred recently to N. C. State college to study architecture.

"I'm trying desperately to divide equally my loyalty between the two leading counterparts of the Greater University," he moaned.

Damon, a Robeson county product, came over for the week-end to see the Blue-White skirmish and "to catch up on my rock-wall time in front of BVP." He admitted a long-harbored desire to see Choo Choo Justice in action again.

Playmakers Schedule 'Cyrano' For Forest Theater May 21-23

By Mark Sumner

Edmond Rostand's famous French comedy, "Cyrano de Bergerac," will be presented by a cast of 40 as the Carolina Playmakers' annual out-door production in the beautiful Forest Theater on May 21, 22 and 23. It will be the final major production of the Playmakers' 30th season, and is to be directed by Foster Fitz-Simons.

Selection of "Cyrano" was made after many requests for it had been received. It replaces the previously announced "The Shoemaker's Holiday."

Samuel Seldon, department head, said, "We have wanted to present 'Cyrano' for several years, and the demand for it has increased steadily, but this is the first time that we have had the necessary number of trained technicians for producing the five sets of scenery needed in the short time we have on a crowded schedule."

First Given in 1897

"Cyrano de Bergerac" was first produced at the Theatre Porte Saint-Martin in Paris during 1897, and the first night audience rose to its feet at the close of each of the five acts and cheered for minutes. It was so well liked that the second night crowd caused a riot in the streets' outside as people fought for tickets.

Director Fitz-Simons, who held tryouts last week, announced over thirty of the cast members. The leading role of Cyrano will be acted by Frederick Johnson, and Gloria Gunn will portray the heroine, Roxane. Both are graduate students.
