

Summer Registration Reaches Record Figure Of 4,400 Students

Drop-and-Add Set To Begin Today In Venable Annex

GUY PHILLIPS

All indications pointed yesterday afternoon to a record-breaking summer school enrollment with approximately 4,400 students registered for the various University courses, according to Guy B. Phillips, director of this year's summer school.

1,800 New Students

Twenty-six hundred regular Carolina students had pre-registered prior to the opening of registration yesterday morning for new students. It was estimated late last night that the new students would total over 1,800. This number does not include health and intercultural work shop students, nutrition students and law students. The number of second-term students expected here has not been tabulated.

Pre-registered students found a long line at Woollen gymnasium, where registration took place, before the doors opened at 9 o'clock yesterday morning, but after the first rush, the students moved through the doors, picked up their cards and were out of the building within fifteen minutes. Students registering for the first time had a more difficult time of it, but were given appointment cards at the front of the gym eliminating a possible long waiting period before entering the building.

Drop and Add

Drop-and-add procedure is scheduled to begin at 8:30 this morning at the registration hall, located in Venable X, according to Mrs. Eileen Burton of the Central Records section. She added, however, that rain last night would postpone the movement of records from Woollen, and that if it did rain, the doors to the drop-and-add line would not be opened until 10:30 this morning.

Students Must List Summer Addresses

All students who have changed residences for the summer term were advised yesterday by Postmaster W. S. Hogan that they may change their addresses on special forms available for that purpose at the post office.

The only thing which must be done, he said, is come to any of the windows in the post office and fill out a Change of Address form.

He pointed out that this will be necessary for all former residents of the quonset huts, as no further mail will be delivered there.

COEDS BEWARE

Women students must not enter fraternity houses until further official notice appears in the Daily Tar Heel, Audrey Branch, assistant to the dean of women, warned yesterday.

Coeds are not permitted to visit fraternities until a visiting agreement is completed and approved between the fraternities and the University administration.

Bill Shuford Resigns Job As Student Union Head

By John Stump

Bill Shuford, well-liked director of Graham Memorial, has submitted his resignation to take a position as assistant executive secretary of the Alumni association, it was announced yesterday.

According to Dean Fred Weaver, secretary of the Graham Memorial Board of Directors, "Bill's resignation is being accepted with the deepest regret."

To Leave July 1

Shuford, who assumed the directorship on July 1, 1947, expects to actually vacate his former post this July 1 after holding it for exactly a year.

During that time, he has organized the Rendezvous room, which is now enjoying its greatest popularity since its establishment, and has taken a leading part in getting the Student Entertainment series back on its feet. Under his directorship, noted hypnotist Franz Polgar, Mickey McDougall, the card detective, the Deep River Rhythm boys, and many minor entertainers have been brought to the campus by Graham Memorial.

Shuford, a native of Asheville, is a member of the Carolina class of 1941. During the war, he served as an officer in the Armored Infantry for five years, two of them in Europe. He now calls Chapel Hill home.

While an undergraduate here, Bill, as he is known to everyone around Graham Memorial, was secretary-treasurer of the student body, delegata of the Grail, and a member of the Golden Fleece. He served two years on the Student council and was a member of the University club, Inter-dormitory council, and numerous committees.

Graham, Aycock Are Taken Over by Coeds

By Bill Buchan

Graham and Aycock dormitories, long used to the sound of male voices and the habits of college men, have adopted a new look with the beginning of the summer session.

Ambitious male students, looking for old buddies or taking a five-minute break on the way home from the tennis courts, will find the welcome mat withdrawn and a chorus of protesting feminine voices if they dare enter the once male-inhabited halls. The answer to the mystery, according to J. E. Wadsworth, University housing director, is the overflow of women students here during the summer months.

Married Couples

In addition to these two, Alexander and Whitehead dormitories have been filled with married couples and Stacy and Everett have been assigned to the Extension division for use by various groups visiting the campus for different occasions scheduled during the summer. Lewis, the remaining dorm in the lower quad, will remain vacant to permit a general overhauling and repainting job. It will be used however, Wadsworth stated, if overcrowded conditions make it necessary.

"A" dorm, the first of the three new dormitories to be completed, is in use for the first time by students this summer.

Just for Summer

The housing director emphasized that the dormitory assignments are for the summer and are not necessarily for the fall term. He urged all students who plan to remain at Carolina throughout the year to make a room deposit as soon as possible for the fall term.

"While we try to please all students in the assignments of rooms," Wadsworth said, "many of the rooms now occupied by students are assigned to students who are not in summer school. These rooms will be returned to their regular occupants in the fall and new summer school students will have to be assigned to other quarters."

House Delivers Welcome Speech To New Students

Chancellor R. B. House welcomed all new students to the University summer school in a brief orientation meeting held in Gerrard hall last night.

At the same meeting Student Body President Jess Dedmond also made a short speech of welcome which included brief instruction and indoctrination in the working of student government here.

Campus Code

Tom Eller, past president of the student body, introduced the newcomers to the Campus Code, the University's unwritten law of conduct, and a short talk on the honor system was made by a member of the Honor Council.

Following the hour-long orientation program old students and new met each other at an open air dance at 9 o'clock in the Y court. Music for dancing was provided by Pianist Chic Burroughs' eight-piece orchestra which formerly played under the name of Jimmy Marshall's Carolinians.

Coeds Meet

New women students met in their dormitories after the dance last night for instruction concerning social regulations. Coeds will meet again in the dormitories on Monday night to elect house presidents, who will compose the Women's council during the summer.

Previous orientation instruction was given 41 incoming freshmen on Wednesday morning when they met in Gerrard hall at 9 o'clock to hear a welcoming address delivered by Dean Spruill and to meet their faculty advisers.

After taking scholastic placement tests, the freshmen returned to Gerrard at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon for further orientation under the guidance of Bill Miller, chairman of the Orientation committee. The two-and-a-half-hour program was concluded with a general tour of the campus.

Lenoir Schedule Is Released for Summer

Grad Student from Oslo Ready To Go to Paris with Carnegie

By Jim Dickinson

A graduate student from Oslo, Norway, who came to the University on a "short visit" and ended up in school, has just received his master's degree in philosophy and is preparing to leave for Paris to accept a prominent position with the Carnegie endowment for international peace.

Erik Tranoy, who has been here since March, 1947, spent 16 months of 1944-45 in a concentration camp in Germany and after his release came to the United States in 1946.

He held a position with the Norwegian embassy in Washington, D. C., for a while and came to Chapel Hill for a visit. Highly impressed by the Chapel Hill and University atmosphere, he decided to continue his education here and was awarded the Graham-Kenan scholarship.

George C. Marshall Surprise Speaker At Commencement; 1,300 Get Degrees

Praises Dr. Graham For His Services To United Nations

"What we might say here tonight would go all around the world in 24 hours," Secretary of State George C. Marshall told the class of 1948 in commencement exercises in Memorial hall Monday evening.

For that reason, Marshall pointed out that he could not say anything definite on current issues. "They are either in such a delicate state of negotiation or in complete stalemate," he continued, "that it is inadvisable for me to engage in public discussions, except in so far as may be necessary to keep the people of this country reasonably advised of the general situation."

1,300 Graduate

The Secretary of State was a surprise speaker at the ceremonies in which approximately 1,300 seniors received their diplomas from the University. Arrangements were made last week for him to speak Monday night, but secrecy was maintained until Monday morning when it was learned that he definitely would arrive.

Marshall flew into the Chapel Hill airport about 4 o'clock Monday afternoon, only a few hours after Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall had landed at the Raleigh-Durham airport on his way here to receive an honorary degree.

Graham Did Service

The Secretary of State explained that the reason he took time off from his official duties to come to Chapel Hill to speak was the great service that Dr. Frank Graham, a personal friend of his, had done for his country. The speaker pointed out the need for more men like Dr. Graham to serve the government, particularly in relation to foreign affairs.

In his address, Marshall told the graduating class to avoid snap judgments in foreign problems. He advised the students to get at the "true facts" before making judgments on foreign affairs, asserting that "we Americans are sometimes inclined to emotional reactions, which can be very dangerous in matters concerned with international relationships."

Keep Informed

The speaker urged the students to keep informed on the United States' current role in world affairs and declared that it takes more than "mere superficial reading of a single newspaper or listening to your favorite radio broadcaster to get at the true facts."

Dr. Frank Porter Graham rapped the Mundt-Nixon Communist control bill in his address to the group Monday night.

Graham said the answer to a divergence of opinion is "not denunciation, not a concentration camp, not the Mundt-Nixon bill now pending in the Senate. The answer to error is not terror but the cleansing power of light and liberty under the Bill of Rights and the Constitution of the United States," he declared.

Confusion on Americanism
The president of the Greater University went on to point out that there is much confusion to (See MARSHALL, page 4)

DTH MEETING

All students interested in working on the Daily Tar Heel during the summer are urged to attend a DTH staff meeting at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the DTH offices, second floor Graham Memorial. All regular or former staff members and all those interested in joining the staff are expected to be present.

Dewey Makes Pledges In Burlington Speech

By Chuck Hauser

Burlington, June 10—New York's Governor Thomas E. Dewey told a crowd of over 2,000 people here today that the Republicans "want to relieve Truman of all his problems" and predicted "the finest house-cleaning of left-wingers and fuzzy do-gooders that we've had in a long time."

THOMAS E. DEWEY

The little governor who looked as if he had just stepped off a wedding cake also spoke in Durham today. He barely caught a glimpse of Chapel Hill out the window of his convertible, however, as his 13-car motorcade whirled through the University community about 11:15 this morning.

One state highway patrol car preceded the caravan as it roared through Chapel Hill, but on the outskirts of Burlington, the local chief of police waited with motor running to lead the way into the town where the "next president of the United States," as he was introduced, was to speak.

The motor parade pulled into downtown Burlington and stopped. The top flipped down and Dewey's convertible and the governor himself stood up on the (See DEWEY, page 4)

Fifty-Three Named To Run Orientation During Fall Quarter

The names of 53 men who will serve as orientation counselors during the forthcoming fall orientation were released yesterday by the Orientation committee.

The men, who have been collectively described by the committee as "the closest possible approach to a complete list of the top men on this campus," have been participating in a counselor's training program for the past ten days.

At two meetings and through the medium of an outline of the subject matter covered, they have been familiarized with the things which they are expected to transmit to the incoming men.

Reporting one week before the opening of school this fall, they will spend the next week on orientation. Each will be identified by an armband with a C on it.

According to chairman Bill Miller of the Orientation committee, their response and interest thus far has been "heartening."

Those selected are Herb Mitchell, Nat Williams, Don Evans, Nemo Neerman, Jim Gwynn, Bob Kirby, Tom Whar- (See COUNSELORS, page 4)

Rendezvous Room Opens Tomorrow

The Rendezvous room, which has been closed since May 30, will re-open tomorrow evening, Graham Memorial director Bill Shuford announced yesterday.

Billed as the coolest place in town, the nite spot is located in the basement of the student union building. Tomorrow, as usual, the snack bar will be open to sell a variety of toasted sandwiches, cigarettes, coffee. The juke box will be available for dancing.

During the summer, Shuford said, the room will feature the Jack Sturgill trio each Friday evening.

FACULTY RECEPTION

All new students are invited to meet the members of the faculty at a reception to be held in the main lounge of Graham Memorial Sunday afternoon from 4 until 6 o'clock.

Many Carolina Students Going To Europe for Summer Months

By Sally Woodhull

That the charms of the Old World have not been completely buried in the Atomic Age is evidenced by the number of Carolina students who plan to visit Europe this summer. They are going for a variety of purposes, from business and study to pure sight-seeing, and in a variety of ways, from airliner to cattle boat, but they all want to see gay Paris and the German beer gardens.

Peggy Ellis, graduate student from Rayville, La., and Erwin Danziger, rising junior from Chapel Hill, have each been accepted for one of the international holiday courses at a German university operated by the Educational and Cultural Relations division of American military government.

Peggy will be one of 100 American students studying at University of Munich under outstanding professors from Europe. About 200 German students will join the Americans in this three-week course of study, aimed at fostering international understanding among university students.

Planning to sail from New York about the middle of June, Peggy will take a student ship operated by the Institute of International Education. On board, students will be given orientation courses in European customs by the American Friends Service committee.

Although this is her first trip to Europe, it is not the first time Peggy has left the States, for during the war she worked with Civil Service in Hawaii. She took her undergraduate work at Louisiana State university, and has been doing graduate work in psychology here. She is graduate counselor and assistant hostess for Alderman hall.
