UVA Open House Quiz Show Begins Large Summer Program

By Stewart McKeel

The University Veteran's Association went Dr. I.Q. Wednesday night. Featuring the lovely Eib Thomas as the roving contestant picker and Bob Allison as the MC, the UVA started their regular series of open house off with a bang.

Using a mixture of the different quiz shows that today are on the air the vets came up with a very successful idea on how to top off a night at the local night club.

All people present were given a number, with corresponding numbers placed in a central box. The MC's most able helper, Miss Thomas, would then draw a number from the box, the person holding the same number would come forward and take a whirl at winning a carton of cigarettes and a chance at the final jackpot prize of $10. Once forward, under the spotlight, the contestant would choose a category to suit their taste, or profession as the case may be. These eight categories were offered to the participants: drama, musical titles, slang expressions, true and false, government of the United States, everyday sayings, sports, and songs.

Of the eight contestants picked only two won a chance at the jackpot. To win this chance the two contestants answered the first three questions asked them, whereby winning a carton of cigarettes, and then went on to answer the next two questions. A total of five questions had to be answered without a mistake.

Frances Duklerian and Bill Dyer, the two contestants who reached the jackpot question were neither able to answer the question so the jackpot was carried over until next week. The jackpot question? When were the doors of the University of North Carolina first opened?

Cabinet Decides To Appoint Summer Council

The Coalition Advisory Cabinet Wednesday voted for a temporary student council for the summer school Jess Dedmond, president of the student body, said today.

This action was taken because only one member of the regular student council is in summer school.

Members of the council will be picked from recommendations made to Dedmond by the party chairmen. It is a standing policy that temporary appointments to elective offices be from the same political party that the regular officers are from, but due to the fact that it will be difficult in summer school to find capable appointees for the offices, Dedmond said "I asked the consent of the party chairmen to waive this right for summer appointments, and have received their unanimous approval."

Dedmond also has asked George Rodman, ranking officer of the student legislature, to call a special session of the legislature to confirm appointments made. The Election Bill of 1948 says that such appointments must be confirmed by the student legislature. The special session of the legislature will be held next Thursday night.

Eight members, two of them women, will be picked from the recommendations made. Final decision pending legislature approval will be made at a cabinet meeting next Monday at 5 o'clock. A majority vote of the cabinet members voting is necessary to confirm appointments.

Rehearsals Held For 'Mardi Gras'

Sound and Fury's new musical comedy "Mardi Gras" is now in the early rehearsal stages as Memorial Hall resounds with jokes and dance routines each night. The summer show is written and directed by Pete Strader with music by Tread Covington.

Pat Ellis, Colbert Leonard, and Jane Hunter lead the parade of names on the casting list. All three are well remembered for their outstanding work in last fall's S and F production, "Gin Lane."

Other members of the "Mardi Gras" cast are Alex Lassiter, Rita Loeb, Bill Sanders, Faith Adams, Tommy Thomas, Doris Weaver, Ig Heniford, Dan Morgan, V. Taylor, Violet LaRue, Ann Grainger, Ann Humphrey, Emily Ogburn, Ann Tucker, Alice Ferebee, Dorothy Charles, Betty McDonald, Nancee Black, Mary Lou Williams, Helen Beam.

The setting of "Mardi Gras" is in New Orleans during the time of the religious movement of that name.

Second Session On Intercultural Work Has Much Interest

The second summer Workshop in Intercultural Education, sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews is in full swing here and is scheduled to continue until July 20.

The workshop, under the direction of Dr. W. Carson Ryan, was initiated last summer to explore educational methods and to find ways to improve cultural and living conditions in the South. The students of the "experiment in education" come from ten Southern states and represent many different religions and creeds.

Dr. Lester Dix, consultant of the Workshop, explained its functions. "This is an investigation into human resources. By keeping the students of different backgrounds working and training together, we hope to reach a common denominator in thought and way of life."

Beside Dix, other consultants for the group are Marion Quin, supervisor of public school art in Elizabeth, N. J., and Myron Schwartz and Virgil Border of St. Louis, Mo. Quin will be here for two weeks and will leave after the completion of the art projects now underway.

The students are now busy making pink horses, purple and yellow polka dot rabbits, figurines and miniature stage sets for the puppet show which will close the art activities.

Later, the workshop students will split into smaller groups from committees now running the study programs. "We want to approach as many problems as possible in order that our students may inform themselves about new literature, science and philosophies. They will return to their communities to become centers themselves," Dix said.

At present they have a steering committee chaired by Phillip Ogilvie, editor of the North Carolina Catholic, Father Gerald McGuire, chairman of the Social committee, Velma Patton, head of the material committee, Julius Cohen, chairman of the public relations committee and evaluation committee headed by Anna Leahy.

Anthropology, psychology, child welfare and care will be topics of lectures by visiting consultants. These resource consultants are Dr. Hugh Kelley, Wake Forest; Rev. Edmond D. Benard, Catholic University, Washington; Dr. John Ivey, Jr., University Sociology professor, Dr. Ethel Alpenfels, internationally known anthropologist and others.

Air Reserve Meet Set For Monday

There will be a brief, but important meeting of the Air Reserve Association in 103 Bingham Hall, Monday night at 7:30. The purpose of the meeting is to determine the extent of the local chapter's summer activities and to plan a summer flying schedule for pilots, provided there are enough of them interested.

A substantial attendance at this meeting is imperative since a lack of interest will probably result in cessation of all ARA summer activities on the campus.

Invitation to attend the meeting is especially tendered to new students and to anyone who is interested in joining the local chapter of the Air Reserve Association.

Students Must Apply

All men students and married couples who plan to occupy dormitory space for the second summer session are requested to notify the Housing office not later than July 1, according to an announcement by J. E. Wadsworth, housing director.

Cards have been distributed to the campus which students may use in supplying the information. Failure to comply may result in the loss of dorm space.

Johnstone Says Yackety Yacks Expected Today

Gene Johnstone, member of the board of editors of the Yackety Yack, said yesterday he expects the first shipment of the long awaited yearbooks today. By the middle of next week, Johnstone said, he expects to have approximately two thousand copies on hand and in the process of delivery to regular University students who have been in school for the past three quarters.

The delay, according to Johnstone, was caused by a number of factors beyond his control. The enlarged size of this year's annual, the large number of irregularly shaped cuts, and the fact that the thick paper has taken a longer time to dry than was first anticipated are considered as several reasons for the unexpected delay.

When asked if he had been bothered by anxious students in search of their Yacks, Johnstone stated that he averages between fifty and one hundred phone calls per day. He added, however, that the delay is not the fault of the local staff and that he was not worried about the inquiries, but merely attempts to be patient while explaining the story to the ninety ninth questioner.

The Yacks will be distributed from the Horace Williams lounge, just off the main lounge in Graham Memorial when they arrive. Those slated to be mailed will be shipped directly from Charlotte.

Contract Let for Disposal Plant

The contract for the construction of the new town-University sewerage disposal plant to be located on the Mason Farm, one and one-half miles south of Chapel Hill, was awarded to the Boyd and Goforth Construction Company of Charlotte by the town board of aldermen at its meeting last night, according to G. W. Ray, town manager.

The Charlotte contractor, who was the lowest bidder for the work, offered to build the plant and lay the sewerage line from Chapel Hill to the plant site for $394,574.27.

Cheney Electric Company of Jacksonville was given the electrical work by the aldermen, the bid of that firm being low at $6,158.

Ralph B. Carter Company and the Worthington Pump and Machinery Corporation, both of New Jersey, entered a joint low bid of $3,735 for the job of installing pumping equipment in the new plant.

Engineering costs of approximately 6 per cent bring the total cost for the long awaited project to $421,533, which is $3,427 under the $425,000 estimated figure for the completion of the plant.

Money for the construction of the project was obtained when the Town of Chapel Hill, long without adequate sanitary facilities, floated a bond issue of $200,000 to combine with $225,000 allocated to the University for the project by the State Legislature.

Two sites on Mason Farm were under consideration for the sanitation project. One of them, known as the "lower" site, was further distant from Chapel Hill. The additional cost for running a sewerage line to this site was estimated at $75,000. University and town authorities asked the Board of Trustees to request this amount from the state.

Lawn Concert

Lawn concerts of favorite classical music, excerpts from symphonies, and concert arrangements of popular songs will be presented by Graham Memorial twice a week during the summer months.

The concerts will begin at 7:30 on Sunday nights and at 8 o'clock on Wednesday nights.

WSSF to Hold 'Daffy Auction' At Charity Show

A one-act play, musical skits, and a "Daffy Auction" will be included on the program of the World Student Service Fund charity show which is to be presented jointly by the Playmakers and Sound and Fury next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in Memorial Hall.

Highlights of the show will be the comic auction of girls for dates and faculty members to baby sit, walk dogs, shine shoes or do homework. Mademoiselle D'Amour, the mysterious queen of love whose identity is to be kept secret until the show, will also be sold to the member of the audience who pledges the largest donation to WSSF. Auctioneer for the program will be E. J. Woodhouse of the political science department here at the University.

The Playmakers' production of "Close Quarters," a brief light comedy depicting trailer life at a university, will open the program. Sound and Fury will then stage several skits and musical numbers, combining forces with the dramatists for the charity for the first time since the musical comedy group was organized several years ago.

The benefit show will be sponsored by the YMCA and YWCA as a feature of their summer schedules with all funds collected going to provide educational equipment for students all over the world. Admission will be 55 cents per person, tax included; and tickets will go on sale in the "Y" lobby early next week.

Co-chairmen of the entertainment for the evening are Eloise Jacobi, Emily Ogburn, and Jerry Weiss. Working with them are Tiff Cunningham and Betty Jane Bialock.

SP Dance Slated For GM Tonight

The Student Party, one of the three political parties on campus, will entertain at a dance from 8 until 11 in the Roland Parker lounges of Graham Memorial. The dance is open to all old and new students who wish to attend. Refreshments will be served during the evening.

Tom Carter, Carolina student from Jacksonville, Fla., and member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity, was elected treasurer of the party for the summer terms at a recent meeting. Bill Anderson and A. W. Sapp, Jr., both of Greensboro, were elected to the executive council of the party for the summer.

roster has been fixed for public use and especially the one time annually when it has been printed for sale during the fall, the Smith clan has been found to be almost as predominate in Chapel Hill as dogs and rain. Now behind the 54 inevitable Smiths, the nine next most common last names are Williams, 36; Johnson, 31; Wilson and Jones, 23 each; Harris and Taylor, 20; Brown, 19; Moore, 18; and Davis, 17.

At a dime per copy this directory became a best-seller in the past year. The success of the campus "Who's Who" and "Who's Here," two names for the name catalogue itself, is sometimes attributed to the fact that it reads like a zoology textbook, a trade magazine, a menu and Webster only knows what else.

In the directory zoographers can count sixteen different animals whose proper names are used on campus. Dormitories and not zoos house the two Bucks, Buffaloes, Crows, and Sparrows; the three Moooses; the four Foxes; and Helen Bear. Paul Beaver, Marion Bird, Harry Collie, Robert Eagle, Frank Giraffe, Irene Herring, Daphne Lamb, Jonathan Steed, and Al Swann. A zoologist might also find four Manns along with two Hipps and Zack Finger.

Victory Village Speeds To Stop Spread; Houses To Be Sprayed With Disinfectant

By Clyde Osbourne

Densely populated and child-filled Victory Village was a mass of activity yesterday following the shocking news received late Wednesday afternoon that an illness of one of its residents, Mrs. Frank W. Nelson of 206-A Jackson Circle, had been diagnosed as poliomyelitis by Dr. Fred Patterson of the University Infirmary.

Mrs. Nelson, the wife of a senior in the Department of Physical Education, was rushed to Rex Hospital in Raleigh for treatment.

Commerce Meet To End Program Saturday Morning

By Jim Dickinson

An all-day program today will climax a festive week of learning, fun and frolic for approximately 280 Southeastern Institute of the Chamber of Commerce executives now attending the third consecutive annual session on the University campus.

The week's session for students, faculty and visitors from 13 states includes a series of lectures on general civic, commercial and industrial activities.

Classes are being held daily from 8:15 in the morning until 3:50 in the afternoon in Bingham hall annex and 103 Bingham hall. Examinations on Saturday morning for first-year and advanced students will bring the week's agenda to a close.

About 75 members of the group are attending their first annual session while 108 executives have attended one or more of the previous sessions of the chamber. Approximately 100 visitors round out the meeting's total participants.

Headquarters for the group are set up in the Armory of ROTC and housing facilities in Carolina Inn and Whitehead and Stacy dormitories.

The highlight address of the week was given yesterday morning in Gerrard hall by Earl O. Shreve, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. He spoke on "The Institute's Place in the World Today."

James H. Gray, editor of the Albany Herald, Albany, Ga., spoke Monday morning in Gerrard hall on the topic "Setting the Stage for Southern Progress." (See COMMERCE, page 6)

CPU Meeting

The Carolina Political Union will meet Sunday night at 8 o'clock in the Grail room of Graham Memorial to discuss the implications of the nomination of the Republican candidate for president. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Little Sue Nelson, 13-month-old daughter of the victim of the disease was taken to Duke Hospital when she displayed some of the same symptoms as her mother. Fortunately, medical authorities of that institution found no trace of the virus in the spinal fluid of the child.

Speeding to halt the possible spread of the most feared of all childhood diseases, Mayor Bill Goulding, after getting the report of the case at about 5:30 p.m. Wednesday, called a special meeting of the Victory Village Council to discuss measures for attempting to prevent further occurrence of the crippling illness.

Information Obtaining
Mayor Goulding consulted a physician for information. Councilwoman Mrs. R. L. McKee visited the local health department to obtain pamphlets and information and Sanitary Engineer James A. Westbrook of the District Health Department came in to speak to the council meeting. University Director of Operations J. S. Bennett and P. L. Burch, Victory Village Manager for the University, attended the called session, which took on more and more of the appearance of an old fashioned town meeting as it progressed, because of the influx of anxious parents and residents.

In advising the gathering, Westbrook stressed the fact that science hasn't yet learned all there is to know about how infantile paralysis is spread, but that it is known that the common housefly is a carrier of the virus and suggested ridding the village of all insects as the first step to be taken.

Odd Names Just 'Run o' Mill' To Historians

By Charlie Gibson

It was revealed this week that Henry Adams, Charlie Chaplin, James Monroe, and Robert E. Lee are attending summer school at the University. Historians were not as startled as might be expected, however, when these famous names appeared in the summer student directory recently completed by the YMCA.

In the typed directories now available for reference at information desks in the "Y," Graham Memorial, South building, and the Western Union and telephone offices, the letters "S" and "X" have the most and least names under them respectively. While "X" is exclusive for two students named Xanthos, "S" surpassed "M," "W" and "B" in popularity among last initials.

The astounding size of the "S" division is largely due to the Smiths. Each quarter when the
