stitutional history, he was head of the University's History Department from 1907, one year after he joined the faculty, until 1929, when he resigned in order to become director of the Southern Collection. Under his direction, the History Department quickly became one of the most distinguished divisions of the University and attracted favorable attention throughout the nation.

He was district director of the war issues course of the Fourth District of the Student Army Training Corps in 1918, and the following year he was lecturer in the citizenship unit of the Army Educational Corps of the A. E. F. He was consultant in general education to the war plans division of the General Staff from 1920 to 1922.

He has served as a visiting professor at Harvard, Michigan, Chicago, and Southern California. For 16 years, 1908-24, he was editor of the James Sprunt historical publications, and from 1921 to 1935 he was book review editor on the Greensboro Daily News.

Dr. Hamilton is the author of eight volumes on historical subjects, and he has edited six others. He has been a frequent contributor to newspapers, magazines and reviews.

He was born in Hillsboro, N. C., the son of Daniel Heyward and Frances Gray (deRoulhac) Hamilton. He was graduated from the University of the South in Tennessee with an M. A. degree and took his doctorate at Columbia University. Before coming to the University he was instructor in the Horner Military School at Oxford and was principal of the high school at Wilmington, Washington and Lee and the University of the South have conferred honorary degrees on him.

Forty years ago he married the former Mary Cornelia Thompson of Raleigh. They have two sons, J. G. deRoulhac Hamilton, Jr., a Washington newspaper correspondent, and Dr. Alfred T. Hamilton, a Raleigh surgeon.

much personal correspondence. On this subject, Dr. Hamilton says, "Public men were always conscious that their letters might be printed; they were apt to write guardedly. . . . In the letter of a son to a mother there is no concealment. . . ."

The Collection is sectional in nature, but it is national in purpose, character and scope. The collection is open to all investigators. Writers and scholars make extensive use of it and it is recognized as the final authority on practically every phase of Southern history.

High Estimates of Collection
High estimates have been placed on the value of the Southern Collection. Claude G. Bowers, former ambassador to Spain and Ambassador to Chile since 1939, said, ". . . as a student and writer of history, I know of nothing the South or any of its people have undertaken in many years that promises such lasting advantages to the Southern people. It is an inspiration of genius. No greater contribution to the truth of history has ever been rendered in this country."

Gerald W. Johnson, well known author and newspaper man, says: "Dr. Hamilton has been getting this collection together for 25 years and considering that he has had little assistance and less money he has done a great job, pretty nearly a miraculous job. It is the thing that will keep his name famous among historians when yours and mine are no longer even scratches on a tombstone. It will also make Chapel Hill a mecca for great men whose business is the study of the past."

Although he has retired as head of the Southern Collection, Dr. Hamilton will continue to write and edit, and our guess is that he is already at work on a history of the South.

Dodds to Go to Games
Boston, July 20—It seemed virtually certain tonight that galloping Gil Dodds—simpler leg and all—would go to the Olympic Games as the people's choice.

For the fans to whom the indoor mile king gave so much of himself, so often, for so little were rallying to raise funds to send him and his wife to the 14th Olympic as spectators.

University Sends Grumman to U.N. For Consultation

Director of the University Extension Division, Russell M. Grumman announced today that he will be sent by the University to New York to meet the United Nations director of public information William Agar on Monday at the Princeton Club.

"The purpose of the trip," he said "is to clarify various issues so that we might better set up the proposed United Nations Information Center here at the University."

A meeting was held last Thursday by the cooperating members and departments to draft a tentative plan of operation. Those present at the meeting representing the participating organizations and departments were: Benedicta Santos, CCUN; Earl Wynn, Radio department; Charles F. Miller, Visual Aid; Mrs. N. B. Adams, Extension Library; William P. Kellam, Library; E. R. Rankin, High School World Peace Forum; Charles O. Long, Dialectic Senate and Carolina Forum and Lincoln S. H. Kan, CCUN.

Grumman also announced that the Seminar on Great Books has been canceled due to insufficient enrollment.

City's Tax Rate To Remain Same

Although the cost of labor and practically all services have increased during the past year, Chapel Hill's tax rate, now $1.63, will not be raised, according to a tentative budget adopted by the Board of Aldermen for 1948-49.

Salaries of several of the town officials and of most of the policemen, firemen and members of the labor force were increased on an average of from seven to 10 percent under the new budget, which calls for a total expenditure of $118,084 as compared to a budget of $100,547 last year.

A report by Manager G. W. Ray showed that last year's budget was underspent by $3,973. The town on July 1 had an operating surplus of approximately $20,000.
