

Tar Heels To Battle Georgia In Athens Today

Carolina Favored In Important Tilt

By Buddy Vaden

ATHENS, Ga., October 1.—The University of North Carolina football squad is due to arrive here tomorrow morning at 7:15 on a special train from Raleigh, North Carolina. The Tar Heels, 38 strong, will make their headquarters in the Holman hotel. Accompanying the players are Coaches Carl Snively, Russ Murphy and Max Reed, along with managers and trainers.

The Tar Heels will face Coach Wally Butts' Georgia Bulldogs here in Sanford Stadium tomorrow afternoon at 2:30. Pronounced only in fair physical condition by the trainers, the Tar Heels will put the same offensive and defensive teams on the field that saw action against Texas last week in Chapel Hill, with the possible exception of end Bob Cox, who has seen only light workouts throughout the past weeks.

Starting Lineup

Mainstay of the Carolina offensive team will be tailback Charlie Justice, who had a hand in all five of the Tar Heels tallies last week. Justice, already a candidate for All-American honors, will be in the backfield with Hosae Rodgers, fullback, wingback Johnny Clements, and blocking back Don Hartig.

The Carolina line, which held the Longhorns to less than 50 yards on the ground in the Tar Heels' opener, will be the same, with Art Weiner and Cox or Mike Rubish at the ends, Chan Highsmith and Ted Hazelwood at the tackles, guards Bob Mitten and Sid Varney, and center Dan Stiegman.

Using a two-team system inaugurated last year against William and Mary, Coach Snively will have as his defensive starting team ends Ken Powell and Mike Rubish, Haywood Fowle and Len Szafaryn at tackles, Bill Wardle and Larry Klosterman at guards, Irwin Holdash and Bobby Weant backing the line, Bill Flamisch and Johnny Clements at halfbacks, and safety Bill Maceyko.

Georgia Always Rugged

Georgia, always a rugged team for the Tar Heels to tackle, will be the underdogs in tomorrow's contest on the basis of their showing against little Chattanooga. Although the Bulldogs won the game by one touchdown, they did not show much power in doing so. On the other hand, the Tar Heels climbed to the top of the national football rating list with their impressive 34-7 triumph over a supposedly latent Texas aggregation.

In the two Georgia-Carolina encounters last season, one in the Sugar Bowl, each team was credited with a win. The Bulldogs came out on top in the bowl game, 20-10, while the Tar Heels won the regular season game in Chapel Hill, 14-7.

UVA to Air Game

Officials of the Vets Club announced yesterday that the club will open this afternoon at 2 o'clock in order that any students who wish to, may listen to the Georgia-Carolina game.

The broadcast is scheduled to begin at 2:15.

NC Symphony Set For Membership Drive This Month

Final plans for the coming Orange County membership drive of the North Carolina Symphony Society were effected Tuesday evening September 28, at a meeting held in Gerrard hall, Chapel Hill. About 20 committee members were present and Norman Cordan, chairman of the Chapel Hill and Orange County Symphony Committee, presided.

Swalin Speaks

Albin Pikutis, business manager of the N. C. Symphony outlined plans for the membership drive which opens October 7, stressing the fact that membership holders were entitled to attend any concert by the orchestra throughout the state and calling attention especially to concerts in Durham and Raleigh. Benjamin Swalin, conductor of the Orchestra, spoke informally to the group.

Enlargements of the permanent Orange County board was suggested and 12 new members elected. Acting secretary Harold Weaver, was elected as permanent secretary and Miss Sally McNider, appointed chairman of the telephone committee.

Membership Cards

The opening date for the local drive has been set for Thursday, October 7, a week sooner than the date previously announced. General membership will be offered at $2.40 each, tax included and student membership for high school, university, and veterans wives will be sold at $1.20. Each membership card will entitle the holder to attend not only the Chapel Hill concerts, but all other performances throughout the state sponsored by the North Carolina Symphony Society.

Officers of the Chapel Hill and Orange County committee are: Norman Cordan, chairman; Mrs. A. C. Burnham, co-chairman; Miss Emily Pollard, co-chairman; Harold Weaver, secretary; E. Carrington Smith, treasurer; Robert Madry and Mrs. Arthur McKimmon, publicity. Children's concert chairman is Mrs. Fred McCall.

Renewals Due For Students Who Own Cars

J. R. Long of the state highway division yesterday warned that people whose names begin with the letters E, F, and G are not renewing their drivers licenses.

Long said that all licenses for people whose names begin with these letters must be renewed by January 1.

"If people wait until mid November like they usually do, they'll be caught in the rush and will have to spend several hours down here getting their licenses," Long pointed out.

Any student who accepts employment during school will be required to procure an N. C. license. Anyone who has had an examination since July, 1945 will only have to fill in the form and pay the required fee. But if he has not renewed his license since then he must take the road test, eye test, road sign test and written examination. If he has a valid out of state license the procedure is the same.

Long also said that professors from out-of-state who are now employed here must have an N. C. license. He said that licenses may be procured for the first time no matter what letter your name starts with. Long is in the courtroom at Town hall Wednesday and Thursday every week.

Parking Tickets Dime Per Dozen

RICHMOND, Va. Oct. 1.—(UP)—Irritated traffic court officials waited for Edward V. Randall of Sandston to turn up with an alibi today, and warned that it better be terrific.

Randall has two court attachments against him, plus 16 summonses. Police explained they got tired of hanging tags on his car for parking and hauled it away on the 16th ticket. When Randall came to the station to get the car, he was given 16 summonses for the 16 tickets he hadn't bothered about.

He was due to appear last Tuesday to explain about the tickets. He didn't show up and a court attachment was issued for him. He was supposed to appear again yesterday to answer speeding charges, but again he failed to appear.

Warriner Works Hard for Student Government; Friends Give Him Rating of 'Good' Politician

Editor's note: This is the first in a series of Daily Tar Heel feature articles on personalities on the Carolina campus.)

By Bill Buchan

Dortch Warriner is a campus politician. This, of course is no novelty among the dozens of self-made politicians on campus, but Warriner is unusual in the line because he rates as a "good politician". Good politicians are rated as such, because in the opinion of their friends and associates they work not only for their individual party but for the betterment of the campus student government as a whole.

Warriner's rise as a campus "wheel" began almost immediately after he transferred here last September from Berea College in Kentucky. He joined the Student party and quickly rose through the ranks of the group until he was appointed to fill a vacancy in the student legislature in January.

. . . At Drop of Hat

He is a member of the Dialectic Senate, having served as chairman of the orientation and membership committees and is at present a member of the membership group. Last spring he and Marshall Pennix copped the Intramural debate crown for Whitehead Dormitory, where the two were living at the time. Dortch rooms with Pinnix this year in 313 Grimes.

Mentioned occasionally as a potential presidential candidate (a rumor which he denies), Warriner is getting a close-up view of top student government problems as a member of the student body president's coalition cabinet and as a member of the highly successful committee.

His views and opinions on local political questions are respected and sought out by student government workers, both SP men and those belonging to the University or Campus parties.

That Dortch Warriner is ambitious, that he plans big things for himself after his college life is finished, is obvious in his everyday work and plans. He's one of the many hard workers here who are interested only in improving our student government for the benefit of the entire student body. He's a man with ideas and he's definitely a man to watch.

New Editorial Staff Released By Mag

By Mark Sumner

The board of executive editors who will handle material submitted to the new Carolina Quarterly magazine was announced yesterday by editor Bill Sessions. The newly formed student literary endeavor is engaged in a twin drive to gain subscriptions and to find material for publication.

The editorial board will include: Vergie Matson, fiction editor, Frank Groselove, poetry editor, Harry Snowden and James Rathburn, feature editors, Charlie Gibson, who has long been active in student publication's circles, is serving as managing editor.

Sessions said that articles, stories, and poetry may be mailed to the Carolina Quarterly, c/o Graham Memorial, Chapel Hill, or the material may be brought in person to the magazine's office in Graham Memorial. Photographs are not being solicited at present.

John Hough, assistant business manager who is leading the campaign for subscriptions, pointed out that the Quarterly is to be entirely self-supporting, although its initial operations are underwritten by the student legislature. "For that reason," he said, "the subscription campaign is doubly important."

Hough, who announced his four phase campaign two days ago, listed the following students who are helping with the drive: Bill Koehnline, John F. West, Lindsey Stricklin, Sam Hirsch, (See EDITORIAL, page 4)

Wheelchair Student Enjoys Life at Carolina; Sees Good Will on Campus as Great Attribute

By Charlie Gibson

In spite of scaplers, thieves, and what-have-you, Iris Kiem is one Carolina student who believes that there is far-reaching goodwill on the University campus.

Iris brought her wheelchair along when she left home—Miami, Fla. and came here this fall to do graduate work in bacteriology. She had already spent one year at Northwestern University and had received her B. S. in biology last June from the University of Miami.

At the latter school Iris was befriended and helped by Alpha Phi Omega, a service fraternity connected with the Scout movement in America. There whenever Iris faced class building steps and bewilderment, a member of APO was always on hand to lift both her wheelchair and

UNC Freshmen Attend Dance At WC Tonight

Freshmen at Carolina will tonight emigrate to Greensboro where the freshmen at Woman's college will entertain at a dance in their honor in Rosenthal gymnasium at 8 p.m.

Arranged by the orientation committee in cooperation with Graham Memorial, the dance is open only to freshmen from Carolina, and all those attending must have identification. Freshmen name tags or certificates secured from GM's travel agency on the second floor will serve as admission.

Special buses will transport those not going in cars, to leave from GM at 6 p.m. Only those who have secured tickets should plan to go on these buses, which will return after the dance.

First affair of its kind this year, the dance will be repeated if it proves successful tonight. All those attending should go immediately to the gymnasium, located on Walker Ave. at the western end of the campus; where the girls acting as hostesses will be waiting.

... To Push Her Along

Lest He Be Left Out

TEANECK, N. J., Oct. 1.—(UP)—Louis Rich enrolled at Bergen Junior College today. A retired businessman, Rich is 85 years old.

"This is an atomic age," he said. "You can't be left out of the swim."

However, she does require assistance in getting from the chair to the seat. W. T. Sloan, Chapel Hill chief of police, plans to reserve a parking spot for her near the Kenan entrance.

"I like to see a little of everything that goes on," Iris says, "especially the Tar Heel football games." Last Saturday she sat on the sidelines in front of the student cheering section; now she is determined not to miss a home game in Kenan Stadium.

She is a movie-goer, too, although heavy school work has kept her too busy to try local theaters as yet. "Just so I can find a seat on the aisle."

"Just as soon as you meet Iris," a dormmate of hers said, "you are impressed with her ever-giving disposition and sincere appreciation for the little things people find to do for her."

Picture Schedule For Yack Fails

Students are not keeping their Yack appointments and are disrupting the schedule of the Yackety Yack, Bill Duncan, editor, said yesterday.

According to Duncan, the photographers have only taken 723 pictures to date, 500 under the 1200-photos quota set for today.

"If this failure to keep appointments continues, the 1949 Yack will not be ready for distribution May 3," Duncan declared. Duncan urges all students to come in on schedule.

Fruchtman Joins UNC Music Staff

Efrim Fruchtman, Juliard School of Music graduate, has joined the University Music department as an assistant instructor in music 1. Fruchtman has also attended the University of Florida and Teachers College of Columbia University.

At the University of Florida he was assistant to the director of the band and orchestra. Mr. Fruchtman has appeared as soloist with the University of Florida symphony orchestra, and has done concert work in the south and performed with chamber music groups in and around New York. He will present his first recital here on October 10 in Hill Hall.

Girls Glee Club Set for Tryouts

Tryouts for the women's glee club have been extended through the entire week of October 4-8. Women interested in glee club work who were not able to try out due to sorority rushing are urged to see Paul Young in Hill Hall, room 207, between 4 and 5 p.m. any afternoon.

The women's glee club rehearses Tuesdays and Thursdays at 5 o'clock. It will make its first appearance of the year at the Founder's Day program.

Choral Group Plans Rehearsal

The Chapel Hill Choral club will hold its initial rehearsal of the fall quarter Monday, October 4, in Hill hall, room 108. The club is a volunteer organization of students, faculty, and townspeople. All singers are invited to participate. Paul Young is musical director of the group.

Mendelssohn's "Elijah" is the work to be performed by the group at its annual fall concert.

For Draftees

Roy Armstrong, director of admissions, reported yesterday that students could register for selective service when they reach their 18th birthday, or one week later, each Thursday in room 208 South building from 9 until 4:30. This is a service offered to University students to enable them to register without leaving Chapel Hill.

Medical Exam

Pre-medical students, eligible to enter Medical school in September of 1949, who plan to take the Medical College Admissions test on October 30, must register on or before October 12 with Mrs. McGoogan of the University Testing Service at 102 Peabody.
