CAROLINA ROLLS OVER GEORGIA 21-14

S and F Sets Monday Night For Tryouts

Sound and Fury, Carolina's musical comedy organization, will hold its first meeting of the quarter tomorrow night at 7:30 in Memorial Hall. After a brief meeting acquainting new members with the officers and production staff, final tryouts will be held for the Fall production of last summer's successful "Mardi Gras".

Working on the assumption that nothing, not even Sound and Fury, is perfect, Composer Tread Covington has been polishing his music and lyrics, while Fred Young has been putting the finishing touches to his authentic "mood" songs. Author Pete Strader has been busy shuffling plot, comedy and characters into different situations and states that "we hope the last deal will bring us a full house".

Hero Beauregard St Charles, aided by the lovely young painter, Meg, wreaks havoc on the sanity of the inhabitants of the Vieux Carre as he explains his plight. A gentleman named Charon has informed him of his death, and to cross the River Styx into the Underworld, Beau must have a dime for the ferry. Breaking loose from Greek legend the musical romps through the courtyards and bayous of present-day New Orleans, leading the cast through a web of frustrated lovers, harried officials, and musical numbers, as Beau attempts to obtain one thin dime.

Casting will be decided tomorrow night, and a variety of acting, singing and dancing parts are open for a large cast. Technical crews will be signed at the same time.

The production will be directed and designed by Pete Strader, with dances by Tommy Thomas and lighting by Colbert Leonard.

Town Men's Club Plans Membership Drive This Week

An all-out three-day membership drive will be conducted by the Town Men's Association on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. According to John Van Hecke, president of the group, tables will be set up in the Y building for the purpose of signing new members.

Any men students living in town, outside of fraternity houses, are eligible to join the group. Fraternity men who live out in town, but who are not staying in frat houses, are eligible to join the organization as well as other town men.

The purpose of the organization, as outlined by Nelson Taylor, member of the executive board, is to provide representation for town men on the various student organizations on the campus. "We feel," said Taylor, "that the town men have been lacking in proper representation since the TMA was disbanded during the war. Through our reorganization, town men should receive equal representation with the dormitory men."

Membership fees are one dollar per quarter and prospective members will be able to join Monday through Wednesday from 8 until 1 at the YMCA.

Former DTH Editor Says UNC Has Undergone Many Changes

By Leonard Dudley

Lt. G. E. "Ed" French, USNR, a graduate of the University, class of '32, and former managing editor of the DTH, has been assigned to the staff of the Naval ROTC unit on the campus as an instructor. He has been on active duty with the Board of Naval Personnel in Washington, D. C.

Lt. French said the thing that impressed him most about the DTH was "the addition of women to the staff." "In the days when I was managing editor," he wailed, "we only had one or two girls working on it and now you have several 'slick chicks' putting out columns."

In those days, French said, things were really tough. The managing editor was the man responsible for putting out the paper. "There was no such thing as 'night' editors," he added.

Another thing that has changed is the size of the paper, he said. "At that time it was a six-column tri-weekly and the students voted to increase the fee and make it a daily," he said.

Becky Huggins Chosen Queen Of Durham Tobacco Festival

Miss Becky Huggins of Chapel Hill was crowned Queen of Tobacco at the Coronation ball of Durham's annual Merchants Association Tobacco Festival Friday night in the City armory.

Lyndon Hobbs, Miss Huggins' escort who is also from Chapel Hill, reigned as king of the festival.

Miss Huggins, winner of a beauty contest sponsored by the Durham Merchants Association, is the daughter of Vic Huggins, president of the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Chamber of Commerce and Merchants club. Both the king and queen are students at the University.

Miss Elizabeth Lyons also represented Chapel Hill at the three day festival, which was climaxed by a 50 unit parade down Durham's Main Street yesterday morning and a square dance in the City armory last night.

Friday's festivities included the Merchant association sponsored beauty contest in which Miss Huggins was chosen queen from among 22 girls from the Durham area, and a fashion show at the City armory.

Music for the Coronation ball was furnished by Johnny Satterfield and his orchestra.

Tar Heels' Pep Rally Stops Athens Traffic

By Chuck Hauser

Athens, Ga., Oct. 2.—Some 500 carefree Carolinians showed the none-too-friendly town of Athens some real school spirit and thundering cheering at noon today as they met for the official pre-Georgia game pep rally outside the large Georgian hotel here.

A traffic-blocking parade of the traveling Tar Heels then wound through the streets of town and onto the University of Georgia campus, chanting, singing and cheering. Head cheerleader Norm Sper led the rally, assisted by cheering squad members Sarah Jane Farlow, Claudia Lee, Wray Farlow and Durwood Jones.

A smaller, but just as noisy in proportion, group of Chapel Hillians got up—or stayed up—to welcome in the caravan train carrying the team, students, and hundreds of alumni and friends of the University. The rail-riding sons of Carolina arrived in two train sections at 7:30 and 8:30 this morning.

The new arrivals were paraded from the train station to their respective hotels, elderly alumni and students-alike either walking or riding the several-block trip. Two buses took the team to their hotel where they rested and relaxed in preparation for the gridiron tussle which began at 2:30 this afternoon.

Some Georgians Rude

University students here for the game have found many of the Georgians, both students and townspeople, friendly, courteous and eager to assist their weekend guests. But most comments are of rudeness and unfriendliness on the part of North Carolina's hosts.

Several acts of vandalism have already marred the Georgia week-end slate. At least two students reported that their car radio aerials were torn from their automobiles, and one owner of a well-advertised "Carolina 34, Texas 7—Georgia, you're next" car discovered that Georgia students, re- (See HAUSER, page 4)

This is an annual gathering for reserve officers, and the only change made is that those attending will be in uniform.

GM Fans Are Sad, Remain Confident During First Half

By Stewart McKeel

It was only half time, and it was only a football game, but it might have been the funeral of the greatest man alive according to the long faces in the main lounge of the student union on the campus of the University of North Carolina.

The score was only seven to nothing but it might as well have been 70 to nothing. Most of the students who were there for the main purpose of listening to the football game were very quiet, talking listlessly to one another.

The radio was giving Carolina most of the credit, but after all the score was against the Tar Heels, the team that was rated number one in the nation the past week. True, they had pushed Georgia all over the field, and had gone down to the Georgia 12 inch line, the one yard line, and the five yard line, but on none of these occasions did the Tar Heels score.

For all of these long faces though no one gave up hope, all around could be heard the remarks, "It's only half over," "we only need one half," and "spot them seven points, they will need all of them and then some." Yes, for all of the disappointment that these students felt they still had faith in their team. Forever confident that as last week, the Tar Heels, in the weeks to come, would still be rated among the top in the land.

The house was rented from the University following the expiration of the lease on the sorority's former residence on Battle lane. It is located directly in front of the partially completed Morehead Planetarium on Franklin street.

Crystal Palace has seen many changes during the 90 years of its existence. The small servant's dwelling which once stood behind was torn down for fire wood during the depression. Also notably absent are the elm trees which once shaded the place and the pasture in which the cows grazed.

The University bought the old house in 1946 from Mrs. R. B. Parker of Enfield, who had inherited it from Mrs. Barbee, her sister.

Come From Behind To Achieve Victory

By Buddy Vaden

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 2.—Overcoming a seven-point deficit at halftime, the University of North Carolina Tar Heels pushed across three second-half touchdowns to defeat the Georgia Bulldogs, 21-14, in Sanford stadium here this afternoon. A capacity crowd of 43,000 witnessed the nation's number one grid team capture their second win of the season.

The general opinion in the Carolina dressing room after the Georgia game seemed to be that Georgia (and Carolina) had better teams than the score would suggest.

Coach Snavelly, who was pleased with the outcome, but was not totally satisfied with the first two periods, said, "It was a tough ball game, and we made it more so ourselves by failing to score when we had the opportunities. Georgia played a bang-up game, but we had anticipated that. We expected them to be rough." Snavelly continued.

Concerning the brilliant exhibition displayed by Charlie "Choo Choo" Justice, Coach Snavelly commented, "Charlie seems to get better and better with every game. He's a great little ball player and great to have on our team."

There were more compliments for the Asheville flyer from the rest of the team. Ted Hazelwood, who played a bang-up line thought that Georgia had a wonderful team.

"I'm glad we won," he commented, "and with a few more breaks we would have added several more TD's."

Max Cooke was of the opinion that this Georgia game was tougher than the Texas rout. "We were lucky to get by them. The rest of the teams on our schedule will be 'up' for us now. We're the team to beat," he said.

Art Weiner was no different from the rest of the tired, but happy Tar Heel crew. All he could say was, "I'm just glad it's over. It's been the toughest game I've been in in three years."

Irv Holdash, defensive line backer superb, seemed relieved too. Said he, "Our team looked great today after coming from behind and going on to win. We can really get those points when we need 'em most."

Girls of Alpha Gamma Delta Now Live At Crystal Palace

By Emily Baker

The girls of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority started moving into their new home, the Crystal Palace, on September 23. The house, belonging to the University, is also known as the Algernon Sydney Barbee place.

The house was rented from the University following the expiration of the lease on the sorority's former residence on Battle lane. It is located directly in front of the partially completed Morehead Planetarium on Franklin street.

Even though the score was very close, the ball game was not so. Although unable to score in the first half, the Tar Heels were inside Georgia's fifteen yard line four times. Twice the locals advanced the ball to the one yard line.

Choo-choo Charlie Justice, living up to his pre-season All-American ratings, scored all three Tar Heel touchdowns. He went over from the nine for the first score, went 14 yards through the middle for the second and returned a punt 83 yards for the game winning third touchdown.

Carolina Line Holds

The big Carolina defensive forward wall held Georgia's running game and it was not until the final minutes of the game that the Bulldogs could put on an offensive drive to score. Johnny Raucher's highly-touted passing was finally successful with three minutes to go when he tossed a 29-yard pass to Lorenzo for the score.

Time and again the Carolina offense rolled up first downs while Georgia was not able to register a first down until their scoring drive began in the fourth period. The Tar Heels ran up 21 first downs to 3 for the Georgians.

The game was close all the way from the opening Carolina play down to the final gun. At one time the Tar Heels held a 21-7 lead, but the Georgia charges of Wally Butts came back fast to register their second touchdown and make things look tough for a time.

Carolina Supporters Go Wild
Carolina supporters, several thousand strong, went wild in the second-half as their team finally began to cross that previously forbidding double stripe.

Georgia broke into the scoring column midway in the first quarter when halfback Eli Maricich intercepted a Hosea Rodgers pass on his own 30 and raced 70 yards for a touchdown. Joe Geri split the up-rights to make the score 7-0 for Georgia.

Carolina had previously driven to the four-yard line where Art Weiner fumbled on an end-around. Carolina had recovered Geri's fumble on the Georgia 25 and Carolina rooters were sure the Tar Heels would be able to push the pig-skin over.

Tar Heels Move 69 yards

After an exchange of punts, the Tar Heels worked the ball 36 yards to the Georgia 30, only to lose possession on downs. After three Georgia plays, Geri kicked and the locals were back knocking on Georgia's door once more. It took 16 plays to move the ball 69 yards and two feet, but Billy Hayes fumbled when trying to buck the center for the last foot. Georgia recovered in the end-zone for a touchback.

Just before the first half ended the Tar Heels again began to drive for pay-dirt and got to the one yard line when time ran out. This Tar Heel drive covered 64 yards, but was again unable to cover the few remaining feet that lay between scrimmage and the chalk mark.

Carolina started the second-half with a big bang. Running plays without huddling, Justice, Rodgers and sub fullback Bob Kennedy worked from their own 43, where Rodgers had taken the (See CHOO CHOO, page 4)
