

Students Barred From Parking Lots On Campus By Latest Set Of Rules

Steele, Phillips, Memorial, Carr Are Restricted

Assistant Dean of Students Bill Friday yesterday released a new set of parking regulations which prohibits student use of four parking lots on campus from 7 o'clock in the morning to 7 o'clock in the evening.

The amendments were passed by the Board of Trustees and will go into effect as soon as proper signs have been erected in the designated areas.

Areas that will be restricted to the use of students are as follows:

1. The parking lot south of Phillips hall and north of the buildings department.
2. The parking lot south of Memorial hall and the YMCA, north of Venable hall, Venable X and Venable Y.
3. The two parking lots south of the Playmakers theater and Carr building, north of the walk extending from Steele dormitory to the roadway leading to Emerson field, east of Steele dormitory and west of Caldwell.

Exceptions were also included in the amendments. They include the staff of the University and students who can demonstrate to the administration the need for special parking privileges. These students may park in the restricted areas if they display a parking permit issued by authority of the administration.

Persons considered in staff positions include administrative officers, the teaching faculty, the extension force, the clerical force and all other non-student employees of the University.

College Centers Are Being Operated In Four Cities in State This Year

By Jimmie Leeson

College centers are being operated in four North Carolina cities by the extension division of the University during the 1948-49 term, for veterans and non-veterans.

The centers, which are sponsored by the North Carolina college conference and the North Carolina state Department of Public Instruction, are located in Charlotte, Fayetteville, Greensboro and Burnsville. The centers have an approximate enrollment of 459 students.

The college centers were begun in the spring of 1946, when, all colleges and universities of the state found that they had more student applications than they could accept. The centers were formed through the cooperation of the Veteran's administration and other educational agencies of the state to help relieve the unprecedented educational problem.

Many individuals and organizations in the cities desiring centers helped in setting up "off-campus" centers. A steering committee was formed to ascertain the number of students who would attend these emergency centers, if they were established near their homes. Through questionnaires sent to many high school principals it was found that about 15 college centers might materialize with a minimum of 30 students in each.

Later, the steering committee approved the 12 centers most likely to meet the requisite standards and commissioned the extension directorate of the University to act as its administrative agent.

C. E. McIntosh was selected by the directorate as assistant director to have the centers ready to open about the middle of September, if possible.

Classrooms of local high schools were used. College center classes began soon after regular high school classes ended. Some classes lasted from about 4 o'clock in the afternoon till 9 or 10 o'clock at night. Average enrollment for the three quarters was above 900 with a total faculty of 95.

Dr. James Patton Hopes to Continue In Creator's Work With Manuscripts

By Charles Prichard

A hope of continuing the work of its creator has been expressed by Dr. James Welch Patton, director of the Southern Historical collection, an integral part of the University library.

The collection, which includes relative material of the people and history of the fourteen Southern states, has been around for a number of years. Each year a new group of students, coming to the University, discovers this manuscript division of the library, which had its beginning in the conceptive stage as early as 1833.

The new director, succeeding Dr. J. G. deRoulhae Hamilton, has been around since July in his new capacity.

"I am very glad to be in this new position," Dr. Patton stated. A graduate of the University and a former instructor, Patton assumed his duties in July. Prior to his coming to the University to continue the work of Dr. Hamilton, he was professor of history and political science, heading the latter department at North Carolina State College. He took his AB degree from Vanderbilt university and MA and Ph.D. degrees from the University.

The collection's creator, Dr. Hamilton, became the initial director in 1930 when the great body of source material was formally established.

Preserved and properly cared for, contributing to historical investigation of southern years and available to generations to come, the collection continues Dr. Patton. Gifts and material contributions merge to distinguish this collection as the largest gathering of southern manuscripts in existence.

"I am hoping to continue the work Dr. Hamilton inaugurated," said Dr. Patton, who has written books dealing with many Southern subjects. "Unionism and reconstruction in Tennessee" was written in 1934. In 1936 he wrote "The Women of the Confederacy"

LITTLE Mary Tobin who has just finished her meal at the Widden Hospital, Everett, Mass., looks none the worse for it after a 35-foot fall from the third floor of her home. Mary was rushed to the hospital by her father. The doctors could find no broken bones or apparent damage of any kind. She is being held for observation.

Rhodes Aspirants Must File Forms

Students who plan to compete for Rhodes scholarships must turn in their applications to C. P. Spruill, dean of General college, by tomorrow in 308, South building.

To be eligible a candidate must be a citizen of the United States, be between 19 and 25 on Oct. 1, 1949, and have completed at least his sophomore year by the time of the application.

A three-man faculty board, consisting of C. P. Spruill, Cecil Johnson, and William Wells, will judge the applications and select four or five to submit to the state commission. The state commission will select two applications from North Carolina, and these students will meet either in Atlanta or Columbia for the final step toward becoming a Rhodes scholar.

in collaboration with Francis B. Simkins. He has contributed to many journals.

He has served on the faculties at Woman's college, the University, the Citadel, Wittenberg college, and Converse college where he was head of the History department for 11 years before going to N. C. State. He is a member of the American historical association, the Mississippi Valley historical association, Southern historical association, historical associations of South Carolina, East Tennessee and North Carolina.

Stylists Who Made Falsies Popular Are Now Giving Men That Uplift Look

By Claire Cox

NEW YORK, Oct. 5—(UP)—The stylists who made falsies a household word are giving men an uplift, too.

For the sake of sex appeal corpulent males are tucking their girth into boned corsets with laces in the rear.

Max Brainin, who has snapped two-way stretch, believes the world is full of men who are putting up a false front. He's been wearing a girdle himself for 20 years. He says it makes him feel more manly.

Scores of men squeeze into bones and stays at Ruth Merzon's corset salon, where Brainin is chief designer. Mrs. Merzon is even thinking of manufacturing corsets for men on an assembly line. She's making a nationwide survey of masculine bulges in her campaign for girth control.

Men who suffer from Executive's Spread, an affliction peculiar to those who work with their feet under desks, or Pluto-eratic Paunch usually slip into the salon with the mysterious air of a woman who's about to have tucks taken in the crows' feet under her eyes.

The broad of beam, often driven to it by their wives or sweethearts, telephone before reporting for fitting room exposure. They sneak in so they won't be seen by their wives' best friends. Once reduced to the indignity of trying on a corset for size, they stop talking. They won't give their names. They want to pay cash, not an incriminating check.

"They like secrecy," Brainin said. "Getting your 'girlish figure' back is a delicate matter."

A few men have confessed before they clammed up, however, that they tried on their wives' girdles before getting one of their own.

Brainin said girdles are just the thing for men who stand on their feet a lot, whether they are grocery clerks or lawyers. Traveling salesmen sag from carrying valises. The iceman probably has a fallen stomach.

Students Asked To Notify Address

All students are urged to notify the housing office, located behind the Geology building, of any change in address, Roy Armstrong announced yesterday.

Students are also urged to check the DTH carefully for lists of students who have been admitted to dormitories. If students fail to supply a change of address to the housing office, the office is unable to locate them to inform them of their room assignments.

Armstrong also added that students who have moved out of the quonset huts should notify the housing office, so their room assignment, when it comes up, can be assigned to someone else.

Openings Available For Local Musicians

Director Earl Slocum of the University symphony orchestra announced yesterday that openings were available for interested students, faculty, and townspeople who wish to join.

The first formal concert is scheduled for Nov. 1. There will be a total of three concerts to be presented this year.

Rehearsals are held every Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock and Monday nights at 7:15.

Col. F. C. Shepard Answers Two Veterans' Questions Most Frequently Asked, and He Asks Question Himself

By Leonard Dudley

Two of the most frequently asked questions relating to veterans' affairs, according to Col. F. C. Shepard, are: When will the checks for the fall quarter start coming in, and what should I do if it doesn't come on schedule?

The answer to the first one is, checks should begin coming in after the first of November. These will be a full month's pay for October plus the last 10 days of September.

Answer to the second question is, you should not do anything until after the 10th of November. If a veteran has not received his check by that date he should see Col. Shepard, 315 South building.

Col. Shepard said that a veteran should wait the 10-day period because of the large number of accounts that the VA has to handle for the month of October.

The tables are now turned and the veteran's advisor asks this question: Have you received form 7-506 from the VA? This is the authorization of pay form sent to all veterans who are enrolled in a course of training.

It shows the dates on which a veteran's pay starts and ends. For instance, a veteran enrolled here should be paid from Sept. 21 through June 6 if he stays in school for the three quarters. If a veteran is taking the 15-day leave his form 7-506 should read Sept. 21 through June 21.

Any veteran who has not received this form by Nov. 15 should see Col. Shepard in South building.
