however, still remains as the major job at the present time," said Coach Casey. "The boys are not even in good enough shape to swim time trials." Casey will seek to give the boys incentive to work harder by scheduling intra-squad meets the next two weekends.

Three of the stars, however, still have not reported for workouts. Sper, the head cheerleader, has been spending long hours working with the card stunts, but now that the initial difficulties have been worked out, it is expected that he will now find time to practice. Jim Thomas had a nose operation in August and still has not received the doctor's permission to enter the water. Jesse Greenbaum, last year's co-captain, is a standout on the soccer squad; hence, he will not report until November.

YOUTHFUL PROPHECY

NEW YORK, Oct. 6—(UP)—Charles Hankinson, 7, first baseman for the third grade team at Public School 165, took on considerable stature as a baseball prophet today.

Before the World Series began, Charles announced, to the jeers of his school friends, that the Boston Braves would win four straight games. He went out on the slimmest of limbs by predicting also the exact score of each game. His prediction for the first game: Boston 1, Cleveland 0.

thus sparing them the ennui entailed by such trivialities — is more than I can comprehend. I am told that there are two cars in every garage in Russia, that the Russians eat chicken not only on Sunday but every day of the week. Compare this to our half-starved, ill-housed workers in America, who are but slaves of the fat, capitalist war-mongers!

You can imagine the impact with which this great expose struck my trusting nature. It was horrible! I thought of suicide. Only my cowardly lack of courage saved me from taking the "easy way out."

I am even now besieged by conflicting doubts. Capitalism still has certain attractions for me. Being a college boy, I figure I shouldn't fare too badly in the awful "dog-eat-dog system" of the status quo. But, on the other hand, if I had some assurance of being among the more-equal-than-others cla—oops! — I mean group, then, I'd be willing to abandon capitalism altogether in favor of a class-less society.

But how can I be sure that I'll be among the "more equal" class in such a class-less society? That is my dilemma. Can you tell me, Bill? Or, should I sharpen my teeth and prepare to eat some dogs?

Holmes, the leadoff man and the top hitter in the Boston lineup, Sibby Sisti went in to run for Stanky, and Feller nearly got out of the jam unscathed when he wheeled around and rifled a gorgeous snap throw to Boudreau, almost catching Masi off base.

Boudreau tagged the belly-landing pinch-runner in the snatch of the back and stomped in rage when Umpire Bill Stewart called Masi safe.

That left it squarely up to the dark-haired wrist swinging Holmes, called a cheese hitter by enemy ball players because his hits frequently come with Dark back of third.

Disdaining that title, he scorched a single on the ground past third baseman Ken Keltner and Masi came thundering in to the plate, snatching his cap from his head and carrying it in his hand as he crossed the rubber standing up with a full head of steam. Sisti speeded to third and Holmes went to second on the throw-in.

houses the Department, wandering wearily from the carcass of the longhorn in Kenan Stadium to the pile of empty fifth on Cameron Avenue. Finally, he collapsed, disheartened and dehydrated, dying rather uneasily in mid-campus.

So now the institution has a brand-new tradition. The ghost of poor Jasper roams the traditional walks, dust thick on his ectoplasmic feet, forms still grasped firmly in his transparent hands, and all about his wasted body gleams tangles of red tape.

Prepare Bundles Early Is Request

The University laundry yesterday requested students living in town to put their bundles out the night before the scheduled pick-up day. The laundry also said it would not be responsible for fraternity and sorority pins left on clothing.

Laundry office hours at 106 West Franklin street are from 8:30 to 4:30 weekdays and from 8:30 to 1 o'clock Saturdays.
