Second Negro May Attempt Registration

NORMAN, Okla., Oct. 13. — (UP)—G. W. McLaurin completed his enrollment at the University of Oklahoma today and the organization which sponsored his fight to gain entry said another Negro would apply for enrollment shortly.

McLaurin signed up for 12 credit hours of classwork and was instructed to appear at 2 o'clock tomorrow for his first lessons. All his classes will be held in one room, 104 Education building. It appeared that the university would arrange for him to sit in a room with whites but not in a chair next to them.

The room was being remodeled today but officials would not explain how it was being arranged.

Amos Hall, Tulsa, attorney for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said the group plans to have a Negro woman who sought admission to the university last spring renew her application in view of McLaurin's victory over segregation policies.

The woman, Mauderie Hancock Wilson, is now employed as a secretary in Oklahoma City. She wants to study social sciences in the OU graduate school. McLaurin expressed complete satisfaction at the reception given him here today.

"Everything seems to be natural and usual and I really enjoyed being here today," said the 34-year-old one-time college professor. "I am pleased with the way the university officials have received me and their attitude in giving me information."

Grail Dance Is Scheduled For Saturday

A dance, with members of the next North Carolina State and Tar Heel football squads as honor guests, will be given Saturday night from 8:30 to 12 o'clock in the Woollen gymnasium, sponsored by the Order of the Grail.

Admission will be $1 per couple or stag, and the student body at State has been invited to attend. Johnny Satterfield and his orchestra will play. There will be no advance sale of tickets.

The Grail will sponsor dances on Saturday nights following all home games, except the German weekend, a policy reactivated since the war.

Deadline Tonight For Yack Contest

The deadline for all entries in the Yackety Yack beauty contest is 6 o'clock this evening, yearbook officials warned stragglers yesterday.

The name, address, telephone number and $3 for each entry must be turned into the Yack office, Graham Memorial, before the deadline.

John Powers, well-known model-moulder and beauty judge, will choose the queen and her court. The crowning will take place in Woollen gymnasium at the Grail dance Nov. 20.

The queen and her attendants will appear in the 1949 edition of the Yack. Each girl, photographed by Laverne Johnson, beauty photographer for the book, will be given a full page.

Library Group Names Officers

J. I. Copeland was named president of the University Library Staff association at a meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Other officers named were Mrs. Margie Jo Fortescue, treasurer, and Miss Jean Ericson, secretary. Plans for the year include entertaining the Duke library staff.

Allen Says Street Dance Will Not Be Held Friday

By Lincoln Kan

Coach Marvin Allen, newly appointed chairman of the Faculty Dance committee said last night that the pre-game street dance scheduled after tomorrow night's pep rally had been cancelled.

Allen said, "It would be extremely difficult to enforce the Dance committee regulations in an open area. In addition it would be hard to keep the dance at the same level as the usual University dances, because of the unlimited attendance expected." Vic Huggins, president of the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Merchants association which was to have sponsored the dance, commented, "We are sorry to hear the news; however, we wish to abide by the administration regulations. We will cooperate in any way possible if in the future similar plans are contemplated."

The change of plans will cancel the proposed dance contest which would have netted the winners a set of free movie tickets for an entire week at the Carolina theater, donated by E. Carrington Smith.

Norm Sper, head cheerleader, announced that the beauty contest originally scheduled to be held at the street dance will be held instead at the pep rally which will still be held in Memorial hall 7:30 Friday night. CBS Announcer Red Barber has been invited to participate.

Each sorority and woman's dormitory may select three girls to participate in the contest. The winner will be announced before Saturday's game and "Miss North Carolina," Patsy Osborn, is expected to crown the Homecoming queen with a garland to proclaim her reign.

Dean E. L. Mackie, Dean Fred Weaver, Dean K. K. Carmichael, Mrs. Carl Snively and Jess Dedmond, president of the student body, are expected to be the judges at the beauty contest at the rally. The entries will wear evening clothes.

Another feature of the Homecoming activities will be the Homecoming Cup competition for the best display by fraternities and sororities. Joe Ward, acting University club chairman, reminded participants that the $2 entrance fee must be in by 8 o'clock this evening. All fees should be turned in to Ward between 11 and 12 o'clock at the Y or at the Sigma Nu house this afternoon.

Dedmond To Discuss 'State Of The Campus'

Student Body President Jess Dedmond will deliver his annual "State of the Campus" address tonight before the Student Legislature at 7:30 in Di hall.

Dedmond said yesterday that he will make recommendations for the improvement of the financial structure of student government. It is expected that he will ask for an increase in the student block fee structure, and will call for the abolition of the appellate power of the Student council to review cases tried by the honor councils.

As part of the president's program the following bills will be introduced on the floor tonight with his approval: (1) A measure to give the Budget committee more power in the financial structure of student government; (2) A bill providing for the establishment of a National Students association committee on campus; (3) A bill to make the office of attorney general permanent. At present this office is filled at the discretion of the president.

A bill will also be introduced providing for the conducting of freshman elections.

Two Student party nominations for vacancies in the Legislature will be passed on by the group; Dortch Warriner to replace Dick Allsbrook and Jim Southerland to replace Bob Allen.

American, British Foreign Policies In Wrong Direction, States Frazer

Prof. K. C. Frazer of the Department of Political Science told members of the International Relations club Tuesday night that American and British foreign policy would best be directed toward evacuating Berlin.

"There is no point in our staying in Berlin," he said. "This has become a matter of strategy, not of appeasement. To clarify this point: We have two men—one sitting in an armchair smoking a cigarette, the other in the center of a table standing on his head—the question being which one can hold out longer."

State Director Of Unemployment To Discuss Jobs

Earnest C. McCracken, director of the State Unemployment service, will speak this evening at 8 o'clock in room 103 Bingham hall on "Job Trends and Opportunities in North Carolina."

McCracken's address is the first program being presented by a group of students who are reactivating Alpha Kappa Psi professional fraternity on the campus. All students and faculty members are invited to attend.

The meeting is designed particularly for commerce students who will be seeking jobs in industry and business upon graduation.

Harry, Tom Stump West, Swap Blows

By United Press

President Truman and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey stumped the Midwest yesterday, swapping angry charges of double-talk and incompetence.

Swinging through Wisconsin and Minnesota, Mr. Truman unleashed his most furious attack on the Republican presidential nominee so far in a nationwide broadcast from St. Paul, Minn. Accusing Dewey of trying to win the election with "catch phrases" and "mealy-mouthed political speeches," he said Dewey has "little foresight" in world affairs and that it would be too risky to entrust the white house and bi-partisan foreign policy to "recent converts who now come along and say 'me too, but I can do it better.'"

The New York governor, campaigning through Oklahoma, assailed the "incredible incompetence" of the Truman administration and pledged that, if elected, he would give the country government adn foreign policy so strong "that no dictator will dare attack us."

Their invective was matched by their supporters around the country. Chairman J. Howard McGrath of the Democratic national committee accused Dewey of endangering bi-partisan efforts for peace by "loose talk."

Colclough Talk Slated Tonight

A large audience is anticipated for an address this evening by George D. Colclough, secretary of the Burlington Chamber of Commerce.

Colclough's speech, highlighting the first meeting of Delta Sigma Pi, professional commerce fraternity, will begin at 7:30 in the banquet room of the Carolina Inn.

After the meeting, an informal smoker will be held at the house, 211 Pittsboro street, to which all commerce students are invited.

Fraternity Bids Available Today

Freshmen, transfer students and all other men students may pick up fraternity rushing bids at Gerrard hall today and tomorrow from 10 o'clock in the morning until 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

Unlike last year's procedure, each man is directly responsible for picking up his own bids. The fraternities will not deliver them. Last year was the first time the other method was ever used, and it was decided not to continue the practice this year.

Interfraternity council spokesmen said yesterday that all freshmen and other students should check by Gerrard hall to ascertain whether or not they have received bids to visit any fraternities, even if they are not expecting any bids.

Formal rushing for the fall quarter will begin on Sunday from 7 o'clock until 9:30 in the evening, and between the same hours on Monday and Tuesday.

Then an informal rush period of a week and one half will follow, from Wednesday through Sunday, Oct. 31. Men may visit fraternity houses between 2 o'clock and 8 o'clock any day during the time except Fridays and Saturdays.

On Monday, Nov. 1, the second formal rushing period begins. The hours on Monday will be 7 o'clock until 9:30, and on Tuesday, which is shake-up day, from 7 o'clock until 10:30. This is a correction of the printed rush period rules which state that the second formal rushing period lasts through Wednesday, Nov. 3.

Fraternity rushing rules explicitly state that all rushees are forbidden to signify their intentions to pledge any fraternity until the official shake-up day, Nov. 2. A violation of this rule can result in the ineligibility of the rushee to pledge any fraternity for a period of six months.

Final bids to pledge a fraternity will be issued in Gerrard hall on Thursday, Nov. 4.

Women Smoking More Cigarettes

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—(UP)—The government sees nothing but good times ahead for tobacco growers, because more women are smoking more cigarettes than ever before. And they start younger than Mother did.

At least, that's the expert opinion of Arthur G. Conover, an Agriculture department statistician who discussed tobacco today at a conference on the outlook for crops between now and 1954.

Plans for the traditional Christmas dance will be worked out by the new officers and special committees at an early date. The Charlotte-Carolina club's co-tuition is a highlight of the yuletide season. It was also announced that the club has 306 members on the campus this year, a new record.

Since completing his work there, Oliphant has been associated with the Federal Land Bank, the Regional Agricultural association and the Farm Credit administration. Gives Facts On Inflation Before 600

By Sam McKeel

Stating "I am in favor of a short term offense, even at the risk of war, in order to insure peace," Marriner Eccles last night depressed a Hill hall audience of 600 with his pessimistic view of the future.

"Unless the present generation does better in the future than my generation has done so far, I can't be very optimistic about the future of the world," Eccles said.

Speaking on inflation, its causes, effects and cures, Eccles spoke under the auspices of the Carolina Forum and the Carolina Political Union.

"Our postwar inflation," Eccles said, "is traceable in the first instance to the excessive money supply which we created to finance war. The adjustment of a peacetime economy to this large money supply almost inevitably would have involved some general price increase." "The transition could have been eased by a continuation of direct controls," he said, "for a period after the war until the supply of goods had been reestablished. But we took off our direct controls and let prices go their own way, which was upward."

"The amount of money we had when the war started was about one-third of what we had when it ended," Eccles said. "Unless federal expenditures are cut, or taxes increased, we face a budgetary deficit next year."

Speaking of price controls during the war Eccles said "Price controls were ineffective, unworkable, and played right into the hands of the black market. Millions of dollars were made after controls were taken off. Black marketers strongly advocated price controls, just like bootleggers strongly advocate prohibition."

"We need now to do something to bring our monetary inflation under control," he said. "Admittedly, the Federal Reserve could check the inflation by abandoning its support of the government securities market. This would be very strong medicine indeed."

Other courses of action should be tried first, Eccles added. Additional authority should be granted to the Federal Reserve System by Congress, so that the Federal Reserve could offset the credit-easing effects of sales by institutional holders of Government securities.

"We need to restore a budget surplus by increasing tax revenues and decreasing government expenditures," Eccles said. Obviously government expenditures cannot be decreased in the present international crisis."

Engineer Says Dewey 'Just as Dumb as Me'

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Oct. 11.—(UP)—Lee Tindle, 54, locomotive engineer who backed Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's campaign train into a crowd last night, said today he was sorry about the incident but that he didn't believe Dewey should have called him a "lunatic."

He said Dewey was "just about as dumb as I was to make a mistake like that."

However, he said Dewey's remark would not influence his vote in the November election. "I wasn't going to vote for him anyway," Tindle said.

The incident occurred last night when the train stopped at Beaucoup, Ill. About 1,000 persons crowded around the rear of the train to hear Dewey. Suddenly the train jerked and started backwards.
