SBI Slows Down Scalping Market

By Herb Nachman

The sunny skies that smiled on football fans yesterday afternoon seemed gloomy for the usual crop of ticket scalpers along the Franklin St. ducat market—the SBI was there.

Plainclothesman from the State Bureau of Investigation made their rounds busily along the crowded sidewalks, and it wasn't long until the scalpers got the word. Business was awful.

Though the SBI agents were thorough, 50-yard-line seats were seen going for $15 a pair. Many other ducats were sold at face value.

But no arrests were made. The usual gathering places along Chapel Hill's main street were frequented by bargaining groups, concentrated near the Village theater.

The investigators reported that some transactions between scalpers and last-minute purchasers didn't come out too well for the illicit dealers. "One kid had just handed his tickets to someone when I sidled up behind him," a detective said. "He saw me and just walked off without receiving a cent of money."

An agent explained that no arrests were made because "we just want to see how they operate." He promised "next week we'll get hot after them."

A similar investigation by the SBI and local officers last year fizzled out when the football season ended in the middle of it.

As the morning wore on, sales became more and more difficult for the scalpers everytime a ticket seller looked up, he found an SBI agent staring him in the face. And toward noon, many tickets were going for cost.

By the time 1 o'clock rolled around, the SBI men had moved down to the stadium and the Franklin street crowd was apparently left holding the bag.

A young ticket-seller who didn't look more than 16 or 17 years old, sat atop an ash can in front of the Carolina Cleaners with a handful of end-zone seats. SBI agents said he was safe since the tickets were not being sold in his case for above the face value.

"In order to make an arrest, we actually have to see the money being passed above the marked value of the ticket," as agent pointed out.

As game-time grew closer, sales dwindled fast. Some of the tickets were practically being given away by 1:30. One ticket-holder stood in the middle of the sidewalk with his fist full of tickets shouting, "I buy, sell or swap tickets."

Henderson Club Meets Tomorrow

The Henderson club will meet tomorrow at 7 o'clock in Roland Parker lounge 3 of Graham Memorial.

Opposition

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 16.—(UP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower firmly opposes federal aid to education "so long as there is one atom of federal control of education."

Eisenhower, president of Columbia university, made his position clear last night at the 82nd convocation of the University of the state of New York. He received an honorary degree of doctor of laws after his introduction to college presidents, the board of regents and local school board members and principals.

"I am an old soldier, but now I, too, am an educator," Eisenhower said. "And I say that there is one educator who will not stand for one penny of federal aid to education, so long as there is one atom of federal control of education."

Men's Dormitory Elections Slated to Begin Tomorrow

By Margaret Gaston

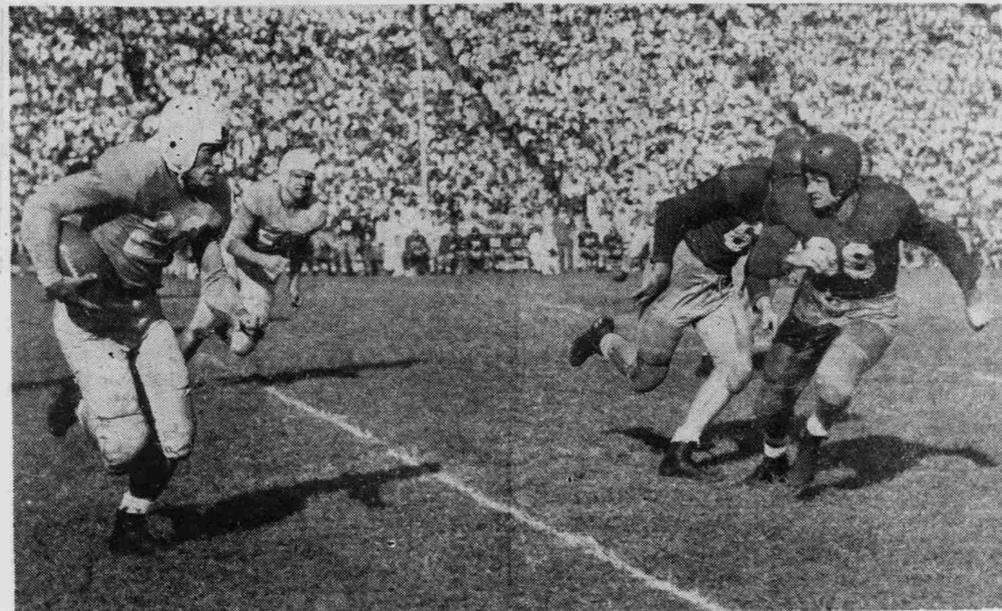

Elections for men's dormitory positions begin tomorrow and continue through Wednesday. Pete Gerns, president of the Inter-dormitory council, said yesterday. Nominations were made during dormitory meetings last week, and Gerns said write-in votes will be permitted.

Voting will take place in Old East, Old West, Steele, Mangum, Manly, Grimes and Ruffin tomorrow; Miller, Nash, Everett, Aycock, Graham, Stacy and Lewis on Tuesday; Alexander, "A", "B", "C", Battle-Vance-Pettigrew and Whitehead on Wednesday. The voting will be by secret ballot from 9 o'clock in the morning to 9 o'clock that night on the day designated. Names of nominations for Y positions have not been released as yet.

Gerns released the following list of nominees in Monday's election.

Old East: Oliver Beaman, Robert Milks, president; Anies Daye, Joe Putman, vice-president; Benjie Ward, secretary-treasurer, and Ben Setzer, Charles Reece, athletic manager.

Old West: P. J. Transou, Charles Hayes, president; Wallace secretary-treasurer.

CHARLIE JUSTICE, Carolina's tailback extraordinary, is shown returning a State college punt early in yesterday's contest at Kenan stadium which the Tar Heels came back to win. Justice was run out of bounds immediately after the picture was made, by Harry McLeod (88) and an unidentified friend to the rear. The Carolina Player moving to the rescue is Irv Holdash.

Dr. Graham To Introduce UWF Speaker

The concluding speaker of the United World Federalists statewide convention which is being held at Greensboro, will be introduced tonight at 7:45 at the West Market street Methodist church by Dr. Frank P. Graham, president of the greater University. The speaker will be Cord Meyer, Jr., president of the United World Federalists.

Members of the faculty of the University who have been attending the convention are Dr. Henry P. Brandis, dean of the law school, and Russell Baldwin, state student chairman of the UWF.

Other speakers who have addressed the convention include Mayne Albright, former gubernatorial candidate, Robert Lee Humbr, author on world peace, and Leland Stowe, world wide lecturer.

'Granny' at Game

Mrs. "Granny" English had a wonderful time. She saw the downfall of the greatest defensive team that was out-dressed by the No. 1 team of the nation.

When "Granny" saw the first touchdown, all she could do was cry. She said in a broken voice (caused by loud yelling), "This is the team we have been cheering all year."

Granny is 75 years old, but the University has never had such an ardent fan.

Line Play Praised By Tar Heel Backs After Tough Game

By Buddy Vaden

Carl Snavely's Tar Heels found out how it was to be on the top and have everybody gunning for you yesterday when his slightly rebellious spirit. They were out to whip the big boys, and threw quite a scare into them at that. Soon after finding their seats, the "Rebels" blossomed forth with a creakily but spirited rendition of what they termed the "national anthem," "Dixie."

Everybody was glad it was over late yesterday afternoon and in the dressing room the Tar Heels seemed to have found out that all isn't glorious at the top of the nation's football heap. Charlie Justice, who did well, but didn't quite meet up to past standards, was "glad that we got it out of our systems." He said, "We found out today that we aren't supermen. State outscraped us for the better part of the ball game today."

Coach Snavely, in commenting on the State team, said, "We played a very good team. Beattie Feathers deserves a lot of credit, for State was well coached for this game."

"But we did as much as we could to defeat ourselves," he continued. "The work of our line when it was in tight spots was highly creditable. They saved our lives twice." About the running of Hosea Rodgers, who had a touch of fumbleitis at first, he said, "Hosea did some fine running. He got it when we needed it."

"Many teams might have quit after having such a tough time in the first half, but our team did not! That's what saved us."

Tar Heels Sigh, Wolves Cry As Carolina Romps to Victory

By Zane Robbins

Carolina's Tar Heels, nett scoreless by a surprisingly strong N. C. State eleven throughout the first half, came battling back with a vengeance in the final two periods yesterday to rock the nation's top defensive team back on its heels. Score, 14-0.

It was a great game between the two male factions of the Greater University of North Carolina with the full sixty minutes crammed from stem to stern with thrills. All the thrills enjoyed by the sellout crowd of 44,000 were not confined to the playing field, however.

One of the first groups to enter Kenan stadium's gates was a half-dozen Statesmen carrying a tattered and torn Confederate flag that exactly typified their rebellious spirit. They were out to whip the big boys, and threw quite a scare into them at that. Soon after finding their seats, the "Rebels" blossomed forth with a creakily but spirited rendition of what they termed the "national anthem," "Dixie."

Powerful Wolfpack Line Holds Locals For Half

By Dick Jenrette

For more than half the game yesterday, N. C. State college's fighting Wolfpack gave Carolina's Tar Heels a run for their money, but Tar Heel power finally asserted itself late in the third and fourth quarters to score two touchdowns and a 14-0 victory over their old rivals from Raleigh.

Carolina had a rather substantial edge in the statistics, but bad breaks in the first half provided several excellent scoring opportunities for the Wolfpack. The stalwart Tar Heel defensive team stopped State on the one-yard line on one occasion after the Pack had covered a Carolina fumble on the 20.

State's other major scoring chance came on another fumble recovery, this time on the 25. Coach Beattie Feathers' charges drove from this point to the Tar Heel six-inch marker before running out of downs.

Blue Devils Hand Terps First Loss By Score of 13-12

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—(UP)

Duke's Blue Devils dealt Maryland's perfect football record a compound fracture today with two precision plays that carried them to a 13-12 victory in a clanging battle before 21,914 fans.

The margin of triumph was supplied by Mike Souchak who kicked the extra point after Duke's first touchdown. Tom McHugh missed both Maryland conversion tries—first on a poor pass from center and then on a blocked kick.

Duke was forced to come from behind to win the thrill-packed battle. It was a blazing 82-yard run by Billy Cox in the third period that brought victory to Duke after Maryland had forged into a 12-7 lead a minute before an 81-yard 10-play drive.

Field Goal Try
Maryland, fighting desperately to fashion an upset, roared to Duke's nine-yard line in the final period. Then a field goal attempt from the 18-yard line by Jim Goodman went wide.

The Marylanders fought back again, but this "T" drive was spiced by a pass interception on Duke's 32.

Two explosive plays gave Duke its touchdowns. After a 72-yard touchdown run by Fred Folger was nullified through a clipping penalty, Folger passed to Tommy Hughes. Hughes pulled away from Joe Tucker's grasp on Maryland's 40, dropped the ball on the 30, picked it up on the first bounce and raced the rest of the way on a play that covered 67 yards. Souchak then made the vital conversion.

Begin to Roll
Then Maryland's split-T attack, with heady little Vic Turyn doing the quarterbacking, began to roll. With three minutes to go in the second period, Hubert Werner smashed over from the one-yard line to climax an eight-play assault sparked by Turyn.

Maryland roared ahead early in the third period with an 81-yard 10-play drive that ended with Turyn pitching a scoring pass to Stan Karnash in the end zone.

One play after the ensuing kickoff, Cox set sail around his right end and raced 82 yards to the deciding score.

Maryland, using the two platoon system—one team on offense and another on defense—outplayed Duke. But the North Carolinians' line with tackle Lou Allen in the star role—had it when the chips were down.

Most important of all is the fact that Carolina won, and it was the fourth in a row. The triumph extended the two-year record to 11 wins without loss.

The 14-0 victory marked the first time this season that Carolina has blanked its opponent. Texas and Wake Forest each racked up one touchdown against the Tar Heels and Georgia tallied twice.

First Quarter
There was little to cheer about from the Carolina standpoint in the first quarter, for State held possession of the ball on 20 of the 27 plays. The Pack threatened seriously midway in this stanza. Gwynn Fletcher, standing on his own 37, got off a high kick which bounced off Bobby Weant's leg when it came down. Harold Saunders covered the ball for State on the Carolina 20.

Bill Thompson sailed around right end, cut back sharply, and (See CAROLINA, page 3)

In fact, almost the entire first half was played in Carolina territory. The best indication of how critical things were for the locals may be judged from the fact that State ran 57 plays to 16 for Carolina in those first two quarters.

Different Story
Things were different in the second half, and Carolina dominated play rather completely. The hard running of Hosea Rodgers featured the first touchdown march, which covered 50 yards. This score came with only 1:40 remaining in the third quarter.

A long, looping pass from Charlie Justice to Art Weiner accounted for the other Tar Heel touchdown. Justice, standing on his own 40, arched a pass down the left side to Weiner on the 28. Art dashed the rest of the way to the goal after a futile tackle attempt by State's Bob Smith, who was covering on the play. Only three minutes remained in the game after this TD.

Faithful Bob Cox booted the extra points after each score. He now has a record of 13 good kicks in 14 tries.

Always a Prize
A jam packed crowd of 44,000 turned out for the affair, which was homecoming for Carolina alumni. Most of the fans were a bit disappointed that the Tar Heels didn't win by a bigger margin, but a two-touchdown victory over an old rival like State is always a prize. Moreover, the Wolfpack had the nation's best defensive record prior to yesterday.

"We Lead"
MACON, Ga., Oct. 16.—(UP)—The grasshopper-eating fad is spreading.

A few days ago, Ann Miller, Mercer college coed, set the pace by eating a grasshopper in a psychology class. The class had been talking about the strange things people do sometimes. A routine assignment.

Benjamin Harrison, Lanier high school student, went the college girl three better. He ate four grasshoppers, without a chaser, before a large crowd of startled witnesses.

Harrison pointed out that his school motto is "We Lead."

Student Government Project Set

A questionnaire regarding student problems and activities will be sent to all state universities, sponsored by the Campus Affairs committee of the YWCA, in order to make an analysis of university student government.

Full details will be worked out at a meeting tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Y cabinet room, to which all interested students are invited.

Planning Session Slated Tomorrow

Bill Friday, assistant to Dean Weaver, addressed the committee at its first meeting. He pointed out, in an address titled "What Student Government Means to the Student," that participation in student government is one of the most profitable things to do in college.

"Such activities develop the ability to lead," Friday stated. He defined a leader as one who foresees a problem and works toward a solution with honesty. James Little of the vocational guidance department, will speak to the Careers committee, headed by Faith Adams, at their meeting tomorrow at 5 o'clock. He will describe tests offered to students without cost aiding them to choose a vocation.
