Hold That Tiger

WITH THE FOURTH DOWN and still six to go, Carolina's brilliant but battered Tar Heels will be after big game this afternoon at Kenan stadium in their efforts to hold the visiting Tigers of Louisiana State and then annex on the side some sort of suitable victory.

The game promises to be a full $3.50 worth of entertainment including the tax. The Bengals have yo-yoed up and down all season long, breaking someone's heart one week and then finding their own shattered the next. The luckless Tar Heels, who gave up the avoiding of ladders long ago, have the continued misfortune of stumbling upon visitors on the wrong week.

For, trampled by Georgia in a fourth quarter rush last week, the Bijou boys are on top of their own little world today with nothing to lose but the car fare up and back. An LSU victory today would turn old Huey Long over in his grave, and skyrocket the Tigers back to the land of fame and fortune. The desperate man is not to be played with.

Nobody Knows

BY ALL SCORES outside of the local football bureau the game is all but the mere formality of dispensing with the scheduled action. The bookies, who must win more money than they lose, have taken to the Tar Heels like a long, lost 27-point son. Meanwhile, the comparative score lads have come up with a 29-point advantage for the locals by way of Athens and an astronomical 60-point edge by the Austin, Texas route. They should have their heads examined.

For, from the Snavely feedbag comes the word that these Tigers ain't hay. They have a powerful T-team which with all cylinders functioning can have an awful lot of spark. The Tigers can throw the football with ease and agility, bringing to mind the fact that all points scored on Carolina this season have come courtesy of some well-known airline. Carolina scouts, who have been chewing that Tiger rag for many weeks, keep looking to the heavens, and not for rain.

From the Bengal camp comes anything but optimism, leaving one to wonder if anybody really wants to win the ball game anyhow. The visitors have a casualty list that can equal the length of the Tar Heels' and still have a few tattered forms left in reserve. In addition, the Louisiana boys have never fared too well in North Carolina; on their last trip in 1929 they almost outdid the market of that year in crashing before Duke. They fear they are going down for the second time.

Slow at the Start

SOME OF THE LESS-WRINKLE-faced Tar Heels feel a certain degree of security in this afternoon's gathering. They will point out the Carolina team has not lived up to their press clippings or their own estimations for three straight weeks while Meriwelling by three rather good football teams. The question is: Can the Tar Heel talent and spirit be held down to its ebb limit for another week?

Snavely teams are notorious slow starters. They were last year and the year before. Except for a stifling spurt against Texas, they have initiated the act to perfection this season. After Mid-October, though, the Gray One is a hard man to beat at anything, and according to the bill collector that date has come and past.

The Louisianians, like a Qounset hurt spigot, may run hot or may run cold, but if the Tar Heels burst forth with that rabbit punch they have suppressed since the Longhorns lingered and lost, it will be extremely difficult for anyone to calm them. It would be enjoyable to convince oneself that all this fooling around with Georgia, Wake Forest and State was all part of the act. Or at least the calm before the storm.

The Lack of Luck

ONE THING THAT has almost mortally wounded the Tar Heels on several occasions is the apparent lack of the reknown Lady Luck. They haven't had a date with her in weeks. The good go early goes the old expression which certainly holds for the Carolinians whose sideline ensemble just grows and grows.

Also the Tar Heels have had less breaks lately than a self-conscious coed. They had a couple in the opening game this year and capitalized them into a national fortune. Since then, when you mention the breaks of the game around the locals, they simply answer, "What game?" You can't lose for winning.

Which leads one to picking the home town boys to take the chill out of the autumn air and the Tar Heel fans and insert it within the Tigers. It will probably take a red hot Tar Heel team to do it, but just how long can one football team simmer and not catch fire? From here on out the Tar Heels need only to win one for each crippled warrior they have saddled on the bench and they are proverbially in.

Toujours l'amour, today for sure!

Wiess, Brady Star As Tar Babies Get Second Win, 20-0

By Buddy Vaden

Coach Crowell Little's Tar Baby footballers gained victory number two yesterday at the expense of the junior Cavaliers from Virginia, when, sparked by the brilliant passing of Dick Wiess and the superb playing of Fred Brady and C. C. White, the local lads racked up 20 points and at the same time held the Virginians scoreless.

The Tar Babies completely dominated the show, never allowing the Gentlemen from the Old Dominion to come within shouting distance of the hallowed Tar Heel goal line. Only once were the visitors permitted to enter Tar Heel territory, and that time the Tar Babies pulled in the welcome mats before the Cavaliers got past the 46-yard line.

But the Tar Babies, who fought on even terms with the Virginians during the first period, got hot in the second quarter and scored once before allowing the Cavaliers to retire to their dressing rooms.

The scoring play came after a march from the Tar Baby 33-yard line. Wiess passed to end Eddy Walsler who gathered the ball in on the 15 and scampered across the goal unmolested for six points. Eggle Williams added the extra point with apparent ease. So, at the end of the first half the Tar Babies were in command with a seven-point lead.

Midway in the third period the Tar Babies got touchdown hungry and Wiess whetted their appetites with some more of the same dish-good passing. After a march from the Virginia 45, Wiess carried the ball into the Cavalier end zone, only to be told that a Carolina back was in motion and therefore the TD did not count. However, Wiess, who can be determined, passed to C. C. White on the next play from the 11-yard line and White ended up in six-point territory. Again Williams' conversion split the uprisings.

The Tar Babies' final score came five minutes later when Wiess intercepted a Virginia pass on the Cavalier 15-yard line and cut down the sidelines to the end zone. This time Williams' extra-point attempt was blocked.

Although he failed to figure in on any scoring plays, tailback Leon Carson played an excellent game. He never failed to gain ground on what seemed to be his favorite play, the reverse. Other bright spot in the game yesterday was the outstanding work of the forward wall. The Tar Babies did well to confine such Virginia backs as William Landes and Robert Skinner.

The long work on pass defense seemed to pay off yesterday. The Tar Babies intercepted more Virginia passes than the faltering Cavaliers could complete to their own men.

Harriers Entertain State Today

By Frank Allston
The Carolina cross country team will attempt to enter the win column for the first time today when they engage the North Carolina State college harriers at 11 o'clock on the Carolina four-mile course originating from Fetzer field.

In both of their previous meets this season, the Tar Heels have been defeated largely because of a lack of balance on the squad. Virginia Tech's, conference runners-up, topped the locals two weeks ago while the always strong Navy runners were on the short end of the score at Annapolis last Saturday.

Sam Magill, however, won first in both of these earlier meets and will be the favorite in the meet this morning. Durable Sam trotted home ahead of the pack in 21:45 in the VPI meet, which was run on the local course.

Frank Hooper, who finished fourth in the Tech meet and third at Navy, will be counted on today by Coach Dale Ranson to help the Tar Heels improve on the previous two runnings.

Julian MacKenzie, recently elected captain of the Tar Heel harriers, is another of the first boys home who will be counted on to lower the Tar Heel scoring. MacKenzie was a strong fifth in the Virginia Tech contest.

MONOGRAM PARTY

There will be a party for all Monogram Club members this afternoon at 6:30 at Hogan's lake. Any member desiring a ride should meet in front of the fire house at 5:30.

Ranson will also be counting on Jim Hunt, Warren Barringer, Jerome Lewis, John Ross, Otis Hunnicutt, Dick Gregory and Bob Rhyne. All of these boys turned in good times in the time trials held on the local course on Thursday.

Two freshmen, Ross and Culpepper, are also on the Blue and White team and may run tomorrow. Under Southern conference rules, a freshman who has served in the armed forces may compete in varsity athletics.

Coach Ranson was pleased with the performances turned in by his runners in the earlier meets, but expressed a preference for a winning performance.

Carolina To Romp Over Tigers; Davidson, Blue Devils Favored

By Zane Robbins

A fellow in a black shirt with a half-smoked stogie in his mouth swaggered to us on Franklin Street the other day, pushed a low-brimmed cap back from his forehead, and said, "Hey Bub, c'mere a minute. Got a little tip fer ya."

I ambled over to this character, hoping to pick up a hot tip on a couple of Saturday's big games, and inclined an ear in the general direction of his mumbblings. "Look Buddy, for a couple bucks I can give ya the word on all the big games."

Sounded good so I dug a pair of George Washington etchings out of my pocket, handed them to him and listened as he began drawing about the football fortunes of the nation's best.

"Kinda think the home-town boys will win by three, mebbe four touchdowns," he began. "LSU hasn't been too hot at any time during the season and look lopsided lickings from Texas and Georgia, a couple of Carolina victims. Don't bet everything in the wife's cookie jar, but I'd say Carolina, 35-0."

Score Second Win On Goals by Boak, Ferebee, Langley

By Larry Fox

Scoring once in each of the first three quarters, Carolina's soccer team easily defeated the University of Virginia booters, 3-0, on Fetzer field yesterday.

The Tar Heels took the lead early in the initial stanza and, after adding the insurance goal in the second chapter, Coach Marvin Allen cleaned the bench; sending every man on the squad into the contest.

Dave Boak dented the Cavalier nets for the first Carolina tally after half the opening period had elapsed. Boak headed a corner kick by left wing Tommy Jordan, who leads the squad in assists for the season, into the goal to give the Tar Heels a lead they never came close to relinquishing.

Before Boak scored his goal, the Tar Heels had threatened many times. Joe Bach and Dave Ferebee, among others, were foiled in their attempts to count for the Blue and White, but Ferebee had the satisfaction of notching his first goal of the campaign early in the second quarter when he took a pass about 20 yards out, faked Dalton Coug, the Virginia goalie, out of position, and charged into the goalmouth for the score.

Carolina continued to force the play, but it wasn't until the third period, with mostly reserves on the field, that John Langley scored the final goal.

Langley was promoted to the starting lineup as a result of his fine play as a substitute in the previous Tar Heel encounters, and played a sterling game in the inside left position. Bill Lyon played his first game as a starter in the right halfback slot and also acquitted himself well. Buck Blankenship opened at fullback for the third lineup change.

Scrappy center half Gus Johnston injured his knee in the second period just before the Tar Heel tally. Johnston was forced to leave the game, but will probably be ready for the Tar Heels' next contest.

Expert to Appear

Harold "Jugg" McSpadden, noted golf professional will appear here Monday afternoon for a links demonstration, the Athletic department announced this week.

McSpadden will narrate a movie of "How to Improve Your Golf" featuring America's top golfers, after which he will answer questions and demonstrate.

The presentation will take place on the main floor of Woolen gym Monday afternoon beginning at 4 o'clock. It will be open to all.

Chapel Hill Scores Fifth Straight Win

Chapel Hill High school's undefeated Wildcats rolled to their fifth straight victory yesterday afternoon with a convincing 25 to 0 win over a game but outclassed Siler City eleven on Emerson field before a small, enthusiastic crowd.

The Wildcats were in complete control of the affair from the start, scoring their first six pointers in the opening minutes of the first quarter when Bill Butler blocked a visitor's punt on the Siler 17, and Collier Hill slashed off right tackle into paydirt from the nine two plays later.

Midway in the second quarter the Wildcats drew blood again when they marched from their own forty to the two yard line in three plays and Bill Butler plunged over from there on his second try, giving Chapel Hill a 12 to 0 advantage at half time.
