Tar Heels Face Tennessee In Knoxville Today

Carolina To Try For Sixth Straight Win

By Billy Carmichael III

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. Oct. 30.—Coach Carl Snively and his undefeated, untied Tar Heels of North Carolina arrived here yesterday afternoon by plane from Chapel Hill and began preparations for what will probably be the toughest game on the Carolina schedule this year.

The Tar Heels, 42 strong this trip, have always had a rough time against General Bob Neyland and his potent Vols of Tennessee. Tennessee is currently leading the series, with nine wins to the Tar Heels' seven. Only one game ended in a tie, that one being a 0-0 affair back in 1919.

Last year at Chapel Hill Carolina came out on top with a 20-6 decision. The show was all Charlie Justice, who scored one touchdown and flipped passes to John Tandy and Bob Cox for the other two. The only Tennessee score came on a 42 yard pass from Hugh Becker to Ronnie Bergmeier.

Other than that touchdown pass, the Tar Heels seemed to hold the Vols in check, allowing them only 11 yards on the ground and 85 yards through the air. The Tennesseans collected only three first downs to the Tar Heels' 19.

However, it may be a different story today, for the Tar Heels have no less than four key men out of the lineup due to injuries. Tackle Ted Hazelwood, Center Al Bernot, and backs Fred Sherman and Don Hartig are all out for possibly the remainder of the season.

But Carolina is still very capable of putting a first class team against Neyland. The starting backfield of Justice, Hosea Rodgers, Paul Rizzo, and Johnny Clements is one of the best ever seen in these parts and the Vols will be hard pressed to put a stop to their customary shenanigans.

The Tar Heels will present a passing attack today that features Justice, Rodgers, and Billy Hayes in the pitching department and sensational Art Weiner, Bob Cox, Ken Powell, and Max Cooke on the receiving end. Weiner started last week against LSU when he made a spectacular one-handed catch of a Justice pass as he fell to the ground 10 yards short of the LSU goal line.

A potent running attack will be mixed in with the Tar Heel passing. With Justice taking over the role of "Mr. Outside" and Rodgers that of "Mr. Inside", Carolina will be putting a strain on Tennessee's defensive abilities. But the Vols, ranked ninth in the country on total defense, have strength to put against Snively's men. The Neyland line has given

Chickens to Get New Look in '51

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 29.—(UP)—You can expect a different looking chicken about 1951, a U. S. Department of Agriculture expert said today.

Just what the new bird will be like, H. L. Shrader would not guess. He said, however, he was sure it definitely will pack more and better meat.

Groundwork for the chicken of the future was laid at a meeting of poultry men on the University of Kentucky campus here. The poultry men decided to launch a "chicken-of-tomorrow" contest. It will be on a state and regional basis in 1949 and 1950, with a final National contest in 1951.

The breeder who comes up with the most robust rooster or the huskiest hen will get a sizeable cash prize, amount not yet determined. The poultry experts think this may improve the whole fowl situation.

Progressives Hit By New Dealers

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 29.—Dr. Frank P. Graham and 35 other close associates and advisers of the late President Roosevelt, today condemned the Progressive party in a signed statement released by the Americans for Democratic Action headquarters in Washington.

The statement describes actions of the party as "the most serious attempt in the history of our nation by a totalitarian group to capture and destroy American liberalism."

Three former Roosevelt cabinet officers, Harold L. Ickes, Interior; Francis Biddle, Attorney General; and Frank C. Walker, Postmaster General, joined the other key New Deal figures in charging that the Progressives constitute "a major effort to break up the liberal-labor coalition which brought about the great gains of the past 15 years."

Other former top officials in the Roosevelt administration who joined in urging rejection of Wallace included Aubrey Williams, director of the National Youth Administration; Ernest Gruening, governor of Alaska; Leon Henderson, administrator OPA; Elmer Davis, director of OWI; Dean Acheson, Under-Secretary of State; Nathan Straus, housing administrator and Grace Tully, personal secretary to President Roosevelt.

They cited opposition to the European Recovery program as "the major theme of the Wallace campaign," and assailed the Progressives for having "lined up unashamedly with the forces of Soviet totalitarianism."

The statement recalls that President Roosevelt had described the Soviet Union as "a dictatorship as absolute as any other dictatorship in the world."

Dismissing Wallace's domestic program as "an incidental concession to political necessity," the New Dealers said that "the chief motivation of the Progressive party is the promotion of its foreign policy."

Regarding President Truman, the statement pointed out that Truman is a candidate "on the (See WALLACE, page 4)

Chi Delta Phi Hears Address On Literature

"You don't write literature because you're interested in plumbing," said Dr. Archibald Henderson, speaking Thursday night at the initiation banquet of Chi Delta Phi literary sorority in Durham's Ivy room.

"Will, enthusiasm, confidence and determination are things you must have," the nationally known mathematician, historian and biographer declared, entitling his talk, "How to Become a Great Writer."

Guests at the banquet included the 10 members of the University chapter, who were initiated at ceremonies Thursday afternoon; members of the Duke chapter, and Miss Katherine Carmichael, a Chi Delta Phi alumna.

Describing some of his experiences with George Bernard Shaw, for whom he is official biographer, Dr. Henderson gave the young writers advice from the lower end of Manhattan to the Bronx.

Dewey effectively tied up home-bound commuters at Grand Central station by showing up there at 5:42 p.m. and packing the big lobby around the information booth with an overflow crowd of 7,500.

Sirens wailed, fireboats sprayed, bands played and taxi drivers cursed from dawn to dusk as the candidates' paths intertwined and tied up traffic.

Mr. Truman and Gov. Dewey were staying in hotels only two blocks apart and, had he chosen, the President could have looked out the window of his 10th floor suite in the Biltmore and watched the Republican candidate's arrival at Grand Central.

But the closest they came was when Mr. Truman rode past the National Women's Republican club where Mr. and Mrs. Dewey were honor guests at a reception.

The UVA clubhouse will be open this afternoon in order that members may listen to the broadcast of the Carolina-Tennessee game. The club will open at 3:15, fifteen minutes before game time. Game time will be at 3:30 here because of an hours difference in Tennessee and North Carolina time.

Poor Management Of Program Blamed on SEC

By Sam Whitehall

Poor management of Memorial hall by the Student Entertainment committee for Hazel Scott's recital Thursday night caused confusion and hard feeling among a number of students who, after waiting in registration-size lines, were finally admitted to the auditorium.

Scotty Venable, student chairman of the committee, had previously urged that students should arrive as early as possible because of the expected capacity crowd. He stressed that seats would be on a "first-come, first-serve" basis. The concert was scheduled to begin at 8:30.

However, people who arrived at 7 o'clock were greeted by locked doors, although 100 or so students could be seen inside the hall, down in the front-row seats.

N. Y. City Overrun With Candidates

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(UP)—You could hardly walk down a New York street today without bumping into a candidate for president.

For the Messrs. Truman, Wallace and Dewey all were in the big city and a harassed police department had to assign half the force to shepherding them through the crowds.

Mr. Truman startled early bird pedestrians with one of his habitual 7 a.m. strolls. Wallace popped around like a pogo stick performer with 11 speeches from the lower end of Manhattan to the Bronx.

Dewey effectively tied up home-bound commuters at Grand Central station by showing up there at 5:42 p.m. and packing the big lobby around the information booth with an overflow crowd of 7,500.

Sirens wailed, fireboats sprayed, bands played and taxi drivers cursed from dawn to dusk as the candidates' paths intertwined and tied up traffic.

Mr. Truman and Gov. Dewey were staying in hotels only two blocks apart and, had he chosen, the President could have looked out the window of his 10th floor suite in the Biltmore and watched the Republican candidate's arrival at Grand Central.

But the closest they came was when Mr. Truman rode past the National Women's Republican club where Mr. and Mrs. Dewey were honor guests at a reception.

Wallace spoke during the day in the Bronx, Harlem and Queens. So did Mr. Truman. Dewey, who had followed the President through Chicago, Cleveland, Boston and now New York, was set to make Madison Square Garden appearances unanimous with his final major speech of the campaign.

Norman Thomas Carries Voting In UWF Debate

Debaters sharpened their claws Thursday afternoon and argued the topic, "How best to vote for world government in this election," for the United World Federalists' debate.

Sides in the debate were Al Lowenstein for Norman Thomas, Gran Childress speaking for President Truman, Charlie Long for Thomas E. Dewey, and Aubrey Williams, Jr., on the side of Henry Wallace.

Thomas came out on top, as he did in the Di senate debate earlier this week, with a total of 13 votes. Dewey placed second with eight votes; Wallace third, with seven votes and Truman last, garnering three votes.

If these debates are any indication of the feelings of the rest of the country, Mr. Thomas should be the next president.

He has 36 percent of the vote in both debates; followed by Truman with 24 percent; Dewey with 15 percent; Wallace with 15 percent and Thurmond with six percent.

Draft Dodger

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(UP)

—Most draft dodgers don't get an opportunity to reconsider their refusal to register for selective service, but Stuart Zane Perkhoff, 18, got his third chance to change his mind today, and he took it.

Perkhoff, 18, St. Louis, Mo., New York's first post-war draft evader, announced after a three-week sample of life in jail that he would rather register than go to prison. With none of his earlier cockiness he said he would like to report to his draft board right away.

Citizens Flock To Blood Bank

SHELBY, N. C., Oct. 29.—(UP)

—If citizens of Shelby flock to the Red Cross blood collection unit which opened up for business today, chances are fate has a hand in it.

On the eve of its arrival a young mother and her newborn child lay dying in a hospital here. An emergency call for blood went out and State Highway Patrolmen raced a supply from the regional blood center at Charlotte.

Officials said the blood which saved the pair's life may have been collected elsewhere by the unit which made its first visit today.

Pinwheel Leads Cop to Invent

GREENWOOD, S. C., Oct. 29.—(UP)

—Police Sgt. W. L. Skidmore watched a child skipping along with a home-made pinwheel spinning in the breeze two years ago, and he got to thinking "why not an engine."

So he invented one, on the pinwheel theory. Now this engine of Skidmore's requires no starter, no rods, no pistons, no rings, no carburetor. It does use one spark plug.

It will operate on gasoline, fuel oil, kerosene and powdered or flowered coal, the sergeant explains.

What's more, says Skidmore, his turbine-type internal combustion engine will operate on one-sixth the fuel used by present engines.

This unparticular engine works on the principle of a pinwheel set in a casing, driven by combustion pressure fed through pots, Skidmore explains.

It weighs 190 pounds and will turn up 151 horsepower. Just to make sure nobody else gets ideas watching a kid with a pinwheel, Skidmore had patented his contraption.

Poly Sci Course Pays Dividend

Political science 41 paid a $50 dividend to Charlie Rights recently when he answered the University Veterans association jackpot question correctly.

The question was "How many amendments to the constitution of the United States are still in effect?" Rights nosed out the other three jackpot finalists, Dave Burney, Dot Smith, and Duke Smith by a split second, and master of ceremonies Bob Allison declared him the winner.

Next week, the UVA quiz shows will begin again and $10 will be the featured jackpot prize.

H.S.T. Assails Tom Dewey's Policy Views

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(UP)

—President Truman said tonight that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey had attacked the conduct of foreign affairs in a manner that had "torn off the mask of bipartisanship."

Asserting that Dewey had seen fit to drag foreign affairs into the political arena, the President devoted an entire major speech to that subject, attacking the Republican party as a force of isolation and reaction that could "end the hope for which this generation of mankind has sacrificed so much."

He charged that the Republicans were preparing to kill the reciprocal trade program, that they had tried to "mutilate" the Marshall Plan and that American Communists were working for a Republican victory as the surest method of insuring a depression that would weaken U.S. influence abroad and spread misery at home.

His prepared speech was delivered at a Brooklyn rally after another busy day of campaigning in the nation's busiest city which included motorcades and speeches in Westchester county, the Bronx and Harlem.

The Presidential party leaves for St. Louis tonight for an election eve address there before Mr. Truman goes on to Independence to vote and await the election outcome.

"I had hoped we would get through this political campaign without the Republican candidate dragging American foreign policy into party politics," the President said in his Brooklyn speech.

"But he has seen fit to attack the Democratic party's record on foreign policy. He has attacked my conduct of foreign affairs in unmeasured terms. He has torn off his mask of bipartisanship and revealed the ugly partisan passion underneath."

Then he discussed the record of the two major parties on foreign affairs. In so doing, the President indirectly answered Russian Premier Josef Stalin who said in a Pravda interview yesterday that Anglo-American leaders were trying to foment a new war.

"The leaders of the Soviet Union are the victims of their own iron curtain," Mr. Truman said.

Some Veterans To Miss Checks

Over 90 veterans will not receive subsistence checks this month because they have not turned in certificates of eligibility to the veterans office, veterans advisor F. C. Shepherd announced today.

Certificates of eligibility are marked in the lower left-hand corner as VA Form 7-1950 or VA Form 7-1953, Shepherd said. The certificates must be turned in to the veterans advisor's office, 315 South building, before a veteran can be placed in training and draw subsistence allowance.

If any veteran has not turned in his certificate of eligibility, or is in doubt as to whether he has the right form, he should contact the veterans office immediately, Shepherd declared.
