STRIKING FROM THE NORTH, Chinese Communist troops are engaged in a battle, unprecedented in China's history as they fight Nationalist forces attempting to halt their advance, one which may determine the fate of China. More than 1,000,000 men are said to be taking part in the fighting. Latest reports indicate that the Red forces are within ten miles of Suchow (1) and about 100 miles northwest of Nanking (2), pictured above, where martial law and U. S. Army and Marine planes were flying American military dependents from Nanking to Shanghai and Tsingtao, where Army transports were waiting to take them home. Numbering about 1,000, the Americans were expected to be out of the Chinese capital within 24 hours.

Counter-Attack By Nationalists Routs Red Army

NANKING, China, Nov. 15.—(UP)—Counter-attacking Chinese government troops driving south-eastward from Suchow routed the main Communist armies on the east-central China front today in a major battle involving more than 400,000 men, the National Defense ministry claimed.

The government-controlled Central news agency said the victory turned the tide in the fight for Suchow, 200 miles northwest of Nanking. But reliable sources said the vital gateway to the Chinese capital still was menaced from the south, where the Reds cut the Suchow-Nanking railway, at Suchow, 45 miles away.

The main battle was raging, the Defense ministry said, along a 23-mile front between Tamaia, 10 miles east of Suchow, and Nienchuang, 33 miles southeast. The Nationalists claimed the recapture of more than 30 villages and strategic points in the area.

The ministry said the Reds were "showing signs of retreating northward" from the Tamaia-Nienchuang sector.

Fraternities Stronghold Of Humanism--Mosely

By Wink Locklair

"Fraternities are the stronghold of humanism on the campuses of the country today," Dr. John O. Mosely, president of the University of Nevada, told a banquet audience of fraternity leaders and faculty members at the Carolina Inn last night.

This morning at 11 o'clock, Dr. Mosely will tell University freshmen "twelve things I would do if I were a freshman again." Tonight at 7:30 he will discuss "The Fraternity System and its merits" at a campus-wide meeting in Hill hall.

Dr. Mosely, after discussing the precarious situation of the world in today, said that perhaps fraternities were brought into being for such times as these. "People are worried about our future. The characteristics of civilization is like a game. Rules are the characteristic of a game and if you don't have rules, you don't have a game. When men begin breaking rules, our way of life is doomed. The fraternity ideal could be the answer."

The speaker stressed that making ideals should be the principle aim of fraternities. "College fraternities of America are in the business of making gentlemen."

Dr. Mosely defined a gentleman as "a bundle of sub-conscious inhibition."

"It is the business of every gentleman to add to his pile of inhibition so that when he draws his last breath he should be as near to perfection as his God-given talents allow him."

Singing, Shouting Crowd Interferes With Sleep of Elizabeth, New Heir

LONDON, Nov. 15.—(UP)—Police dispersed a singing, shouting crowd outside Buckingham palace late tonight so that Princess Elizabeth and her seven-pound, six-ounce heir could sleep.

Police cleared the crowd from the fence in front of the palace courtyard, declaring: "We have instructions from inside to discourage any singing or shouting."

A morning bulletin on the princess's condition, noting that she had "some" sleep, indicated

Float Parade Is Scheduled For Weekend

PIKAs to Award Four Silver Cups

A parade of automobile floats is being planned for Friday by the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, and four cups will be awarded to the winners, Prexy Len Szafaryn announced yesterday.

The float parade will replace the usual banner display sponsored yearly by the PIKA's on Duke-Carolina weekends and is in keeping with the fraternity's 15-year policy of awarding prizes for the best pep rally displays.

"To keep pace with the quickening spirit and interest, the PIKA's this year have raised the reward ante to four cups in place of the usual one," Szafaryn said.

Entrance divisions for the contest will be men's dorms, women's dorms, fraternities and sororities. A cup will be given for the best motor-float from each of these four sections.

The PIKA's say the parade is designed to "stimulate spirited rivalry between the two schools and should add luster to a long-awaited weekend."

They invite all-out participation by the campus to make the "Beat Dook" motor-float parade a highlight of the weekend. Cups to be awarded are on display at the Y.

Weekend Labeled 'Unusual' By Capital Hotel Employees

By Chuck Hauser

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Hotel officials and desk clerks in the nation's capital today said the city's invasion by some 5,000 Tar Heels over the weekend was "certainly unusual" and "rough," but that the Carolinians were welcomed back any time.

One bewildered room clerk at the Ambassador hotel commented, "I was here when they came in, and I was here when they went out... It was really rough!"

He said he thought the weekend was "unusually rowdy but we were glad to have 'em anyway." He added that several Ambassador mattresses were dropped out of windows of the hotel and that several fire extinguishers disappeared and then turned up "in the most peculiar places."

Asked about the Duke weekend in Washington when the Blue Devils played Maryland a few weeks ago, he sighed, "North Carolina had it all over the Duke boys. They raised hell, but there was just no comparison."

Assistant Manager W. P. Duff of the Hamilton hotel said, "We enjoyed seeing all of the Carolina girls and boys. They left the hotel intact; they left no unpaid bills. If I had my way, I'd have them all back."

Duff added, "We had a number of complaints from our other guests about the noise, but we just told them there was nothing we could do about it."

At the Statler hotel, the assistant manager, who refused to be named, was reluctant to make comment at all on the weekend's doings. He finally remarked that "Everyone seemed to be having a lot of fun, but I wouldn't say they were rowdy. It was an unusual weekend, but as far as I'm concerned, they behaved themselves."

It was learned, however, that the Statler, like all other hotels in the city, had a heavy force of house detectives on duty and a large number of D. C. policemen in and around the building.

A taxicab driver in downtown Washington summed up the Tar Heel invasion in one explosive phase: "I never see anything like it since V-J day. They're goin' crazy down there at 14th and K."

And an aged elevator operator in one of the uptown hotels had a similar remark to make: "It was the greatest thing that's hit town since Taft came in in '02."

Thomas Says Not Guilty To Kickback Charges

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—(UP)

Chairman J. Parnell Thomas of the House Un American activities committee today pleaded not guilty to federal fraud and salary-kickback charges.

In a surprise arraignment one day ahead of schedule, Federal Judge Richmond B. Keach placed the red-faced, nervous congressman under $1,000 bond, and set his trial for Monday, Jan. 10.

Afterward, the New Jersey Republican went to the U.S. Marshal's office to be fingerprinted and photographed.

He was whisked through that process in five minutes and a short time later a bonding company posted his bail.

Thomas, for two years head of the congressional anti-Communist drive, was indicted last Monday on four counts of trying to defraud the government through "padding" his congressional office payroll and pocketing salaries of "employees" who never actually worked for him.

If convicted on all counts, he faces a possible penalty of 32 years in prison and $40,000 in fines.

His former secretary, Miss Helen Campbell who was indicated on one of the four charges, will be arraigned tomorrow as scheduled.

Car Agency Owner Admits to Solons He Cheats Customers When Possible

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—(UP)

Raymond J. Kearney, co-owner of a Washington automobile agency, told a congressional committee without hesitation today that he tries to sell all the new car accessories he can and pays as little as possible for old car trade-ins.

He cheerfully outlined for a subcommittee investigating questionable trade policies his two-point philosophy for handling new car customers:

"On accessories—'Sell all I can.' On trade-ins—'Take it in for as little as you can and sell it for as much as you can.'"

Kearney was called to the stand after seven witnesses had testified that they each paid an extra $500 to Kearney representatives to get delivery on their new cars. They also told of transactions involving "phantom" trade-ins and a seeming disregard of regulations for reporting used car sales.

Kearney testified as Harry F. Banks, assistant general sales manager of General Motors Oldsmobile division stood by. Banks said Kearney's testimony would be examined carefully. He pointed out that Oldsmobile dealers have lost franchises in the past for gouging customers.

A Kearney salesman, William Manuel, said frankly that he expects a tip, maybe as much as $500, for getting new cars for his customers and thinks, "Salesmen all over the country do it."
