Favored Tar Heels Take On Duke Today

Duke Appoints Arthur Edens As President

New York Educator Succeeds Flowers

DURHAM, Nov. 19.—(UP)—Dr. Arthur Hollis Edens, 47-year-old New York educator, was named today as the next president of Duke university.

Duke's Board of Trustees met here to announce the selection of Edens to succeed 77-year-old Dr. Robert Flowers as head of the 5,000-student university. At present, Edens is an associate director of the General Education board, with offices in New York city.

A spokesman said Edens is expected to assume the presidency on a fulltime basis sometime after Feb. 1. At that time, Flowers will become chancellor of the university, the board said.

Flowers, who has been president of Duke since 1940, asked last January to be relieved of the post. The aging educator had been on the Duke faculty for more than 50 years.

The board also announced that Dr. William H. Wannamaker, formerly vice-president and dean of the university, would become vice-chancellor.

Edens is the son of a Methodist minister. Earlier this year he was chosen to the post with the General Education board, which is a part of the Rockefeller foundation. He had previously served as dean of administration at Emory university in Atlanta, Ga., and vice-chancellor of the University system of Georgia.

Dr. Graham Made Board Chairman Of Foundation

Dr. Frank P. Graham returned to his normal duties yesterday after having attended a meeting of the Carnegie foundation in New York this past week.

At the foundation meeting, Dr. Graham was elected chairman of the Board of Trustees of the group. He is also the retiring president of the national association of state universities and the incoming vice-president of the Association of American Universities.

Midwest Storm Roars to East; Eight Are Dead

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—(UP)—One of the worst early-winter blizzards in years roared across the plains states on its way to the East today, stranding trains and autos, cutting communications and isolating more than 100 towns.

At least eight deaths were attributed to the weather, including four on icy highways.

The storm piled up huge snowdrifts and sheathed highways in ice across wide areas of Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota and South Dakota.

Heavy snows fell in Kansas as the mercury dropped and winds howled up to 85 miles an hour. Oldtimers at Dodge City, Kansas, said the storm was the worst winter-opening blizzard in memory.

Up to nine inches of snow blanketed much of South Dakota. At Delmont, S. D., snow plows ground toward a country school where 20 children had been marooned for 24 hours.

Kyser, Snavelly Steal Show At Rained-Out Pep Rally

By Herb Natchman
Dark skies and rain did away with the open-air pre-game pep rally last night, but it didn't stop a packed Memorial hall from roaring through what Kay Kyser called "the most enthusiastic rally I've ever seen."

The torchlight parade and bonfire were called off and so was the scheduled broadcast from Duke. But it didn't stop Norm Spear and his staff of cheerleaders plus the cracks of Kyser, Coach Snavelly and Joe Romano to keep more than 1,800 students on the edge of their seats for nearly two hours.

A large confederate flag riding high on a fishing pole touched off the rally with the singing of "Dixie" followed by the usual yells and songs until the arrival of Kyser and his antics.

But Kyser's beautiful wife Georgia Carroll stole the show. After the third bow she finally quieted the crowd with "I'm from Texas. If anybody had to beat Texas, I'm glad it was Carolina."

The Old Professor wasn't to be outdone by his wife. "Carolina is the only one that can beat Georgia and get away with it, I can't."

Norm Spear tried to bring down the house when he put Snavelly and Kyser on the microphone together. Kayser introduced Snavelly by saying, "Now, I want you to meet an assistant of mine, the greatest correspondence coach in America. Come on out, Carl."

Snavelly retaliated, "It's been understood for quite a while that Kay is the chief coach at Carolina. I'm glad that he's here so he can take full responsibility tomorrow."

Kyser snapped right back with,

"We were down at the Monogram club tonight where the boys were eating supper. Georgia went on ahead of me, and I can say one thing, I don't know what kind of running attack you'll have tomorrow Coach, but the passing will be all right."

Not to be outdone, Snavelly replied, "It's a shame we haven't checked into Georgia's eligibility before. If we had her on the receiving end tomorrow, we'd really have something. Our receiver doesn't give the passer any inspiration."

One could hear a pin drop in the auditorium when Kyser began talking on Carolina spirit. He compared present cheering and spirit with the old days when he was a student here. To Norm Spear he said, "I've been checking

GEORGIA CARROLL and KAY KYSER

'Old Professor' Here To Help Beat Duke

By Bill Buchan
Kay Kyser, Carolina's gift to the world of music, arrived at the Carolina Inn yesterday afternoon with his wife, the former Georgia Carroll, to witness today's football classic in Kenan stadium.

"I want the Tar Heels to beat Duke, period," Kyser said. "I'll settle for a one-point win." The only plans that the old professor of the musical kollege has for his visit here were to attend the pep rally last night and to see the game this afternoon.

"I don't think I will do any cheerleading this afternoon," he said, "because Norm Spear is doing such an excellent job. Besides that, I don't know any of the new cheers." He indicated, however, that he was looking forward to seeing the Carolina cheering section perform their famous card stunts today. There was a slight indication, though, that Kyser might be "persuaded" to appear before the cheering section and lead some cheers. He and his wife will be seated in the guest box at the stadium.

In the Inn yesterday afternoon, Kyser seemed concerned over the tarpaulin that was placed over the playing field to keep it as dry as possible. After Business manager Claude Teague stated that the tarp could not keep the field completely dry, Kyser offered suggestions as to how the tarpaulin should have been placed.

His last game here was several years ago when Duke defeated the Tar Heels 6-3. "That year," Kyser said, "We were ahead at the half 3-0, then I walked across the field to make a broadcast and when I came back, we'd lost the ball game."

"That's my main worry about being here today," he added. "I'm afraid that I may be a Jonah for the team."

Questioned about Charlie Spivak's presence on the campus, the genial musician stated that he did not know whether he would be able to attend the dances or not. "However," he said, "Charlie is an old friend of mine. He has a fine band."

He and Mrs. Kyser will leave Chapel Hill after the game tomorrow and he plans to be in New York Monday. They have been visiting Kyser's mother in Rocky Mount for several days.

Ava Gardner, the other North Carolina celebrity who was scheduled to appear here this weekend cancelled her reservation at the Inn yesterday, officials announced.

Undecided

CHARLOTTE, Nov. 19.—(UP)—Federal Judge D. E. Henderson pondered today whether he would be able to give his support to Justice this weekend.

Charlie Justice, that is, the North Carolina tailback.

The judge, a UNC graduate, has two sons attending Duke and a third attending North Carolina. A family conference was scheduled today to decide father's stand while attending the Duke-Carolina clash tomorrow.

New Card Stunts Will Be Finest Ever Presented

At halftime today, Tar Heel fans in the student card section, with the help of Head Cheerleader Norm Spear, plan to perform the finest card stunts ever seen.

Spear appealed to students who are going to be seated in the stunt section. "Let's put on a real show. Duke tried it and quit because they do not believe that the stunts can work. Be real careful."

The most spectacular card stunt ever to be tried will be a picture of a gigantic fire-cracker with a long fuse. The fuse will proceed to burn and when it reaches the firing end, a large "BOOM" will replace the fire-cracker. A blue splotch will then show up and cards will begin to flip until the white UNC takes its place.

Meanwhile, the band will give a preview of the approaching season by a dramatization of "The night before Christmas." The drum major will be dressed as Santa Claus and the children will be acted out by the majorettes. The tuba players in the band will be reindeer and spell out the words Merry X'mas.

During the game and the half, clouds of blue and white confetti will shower over the stands. The confetti will be sold before the game by members of the World Student Service Fund committee for ten cents a bag.

Floats Float Down Streets In First Gigantic Parade

By Lincoln Kan
Two tooting locomotives choo-chooed down Cameron avenue by staid South building yesterday in a gigantic float parade of 28 automobiles and floats to open the Duke weekend festivities.

Thousands of students and townspeople lined the village streets, laughing and cheering as the floats rolled by. Claudia Lee, campus beauty, rode atop the Kappa Sigma entry, defying the threatening cloudy, damp weather in nothing but a bathing suit and a short length fur coat.

As the entries from dormitories, fraternities and sororities wended their way through the town and university streets, Chief of Police W. T. Sloan cleared the way personally in his car with siren blowing. The winners of the entries will be announced at the half of today's game.

At one stage of the parade a grocery truck carrying a load of ice took over the lead and a wag in the crowd said, "Looks like we got the game on ice." Smith dormitory trotted out its beauties with Daisy Belle Anderson and Betty Proctor all dressed up as football heroes. Aycock men's dormitory gave a preview of "Operations Duke" with internees and doctors clustered around a sick Duke patient.

Bird Club Meeting Scheduled Monday

The Chapel Hill Bird club will meet at the home of Mrs. R. B. Sharpe, 505 Pittsboro street, Sunday afternoon at 3:30. A talk on "Bird Life in Chapel Hill" will be given by Phillips Russell of the Journalism department.

Traditional Game To Draw 44,000 For 33rd Renewal

By Dick Jenrette

Carolina and Duke, rivals through 33 years of football warfare, renew their battling today in the classic game of the year's Southern conference grid program. The kickoff will be at 2 o'clock before a sellout crowd of 44,000 which will jam Kenan stadium for the colorful affair.

The Tar Heels of Coach Carl Snavelly, undefeated in their last 15 games and ranked fifth in the nation, have been established as favorites by a margin of no less than two touchdowns. But there are no signs of overconfidence in the Carolina camp. The team has worked harder this week than at any other time this season.

Over in Durham, reports leaking out of the Blue Devil practices indicate that wily Wallace Wade has his charges psychologically on edge for the game. Duke, after a slow start in which it tied State and Tennessee, has improved rapidly. The club's overall record now is four wins, two losses, and two ties.

However, in their last two engagements the Blue Devils have racked up 82 points while beating George Washington, 62-0, and losing to Wake Forest 27-20. With a strong offense to go with its admittedly potent line, the Dukes can be counted on to give Carolina a real battle today.

Both student bodies are fired up for the game and another epic battle like the 1940 affair, when Carolina scored a surprising 6-3 upset over Duke, or 1935, when Duke smashed Carolina's Rose Bowl-bound team, 25-0, may be in prospect.

Last night, both schools staged massive pep rallies. At Carolina the students participated in a float display, torchlight parade, and one final pep rally in addition to attending the Charlie Spivak dance.

Duke's cheerleaders were somewhat foiled in their plans Wednesday night. A 50-foot high pile of wood for a giant bonfire was "accidentally" burned ahead of the scheduled rally.

Both teams appeared in good shape physically for the game. The Tar Heels, roaring down the stretch to a possible bowl bid, probably will be minus the services of Guard Bill Wardle, who has a leg injury. Wardle worked out lightly this week. Regular blocking back Don Hartig also remains on the injured list.

For the Blue Devils, only Tommy Hughes, first string quarterback, will miss the game. Fred Folger and Bill Cox, Duke's two top tailbacks, apparently have recovered from injuries which have hampered them this year. So another individual duel between Fast Freight Folger and Choo Choo Charlie Justice appears likely.

Most of the praises recently at Duke, however, have gone to one Jack Friedland, and not to Folger. Friedland is a hefty 190-pounder who has been going great guns at wingback for the Devils. He got off an 82-yard touchdown gallop against Wake Forest and generally has been impressive with his work thus far.

Coach Wade is expected to call on his newly-introduced Duke version of the T-formation. Always a staunch advocate of the single wing style of offense, Wade amazed the sports public of this State by trying out the T against Wake Forest two weeks ago. The plan worked well against the surprised Deacons. Wade, however, had no occasion to use it in the 62-0 rout. (See CAROLINA, page 4)

Sokolovsky Hits British Refusal

BERLIN, Nov. 19.—(UP)—Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky, Soviet commander in Germany, said tonight that the Berlin problem could be solved easily, but that Britain has refused to accept basic principles agreed on by the Big Four powers in Moscow.

Sokolovsky told correspondents of the Soviet-controlled German press that Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, British commander in Germany, wrecked the Berlin negotiations in September by refusing to adhere to the Moscow directives.

"The proposals of the British commander in Berlin strongly deviated from the principles of the Four Power directive of August 30," Sokolovsky said. "Which again goes to show that the British commander is not even striving to achieve an agreement on the basis of the directive."

Claudia Lee Crowned Yack Queen At Dance

Claudia Lee, beautiful blonde senior from Marshallville, Ga., was crowned Yackety Yack beauty queen last night at the first of the Grail dances featuring Charlie Spivak and his orchestra in Woolfen gym.

Sponsored by Kappa Sigma fraternity, the queen was chosen from a field of 84 coeds by John Robert Powers, head of the famous modeling agency, who said she was "the most naturally beautiful girl he had ever seen."

Bandleader Charlie Spivak served as master of ceremonies for the crowning of the queen at the dance last night. The crown was placed on Claudia's head by Betty Brown of Asheville, last year's winner.

Members of the court wore orchid corsages and the Queen carried a bouquet.

The members of the Queen's court and their sponsors were: Anna Black, Norfolk, Va., Phi Pi sorority; Barbara Bess, Sylva, Alderman; Gene Caraher, Clearwater, Fla., Chi O; Mary Craig, Asheville, Spencer; Mary Louise Powe, Durham, Beta Theta Pi;

Sarah Jane Farlow, Augusta, Ga., Sigma Nu; Anne Green, New Castle, Pa., Alderman; Fern Hughes, Ranelle, W. Va., Sound and Fury; Elizabeth Hellen, Chapel Hill, Town Girls club; Joan

Lucas, St. Petersburg, Fla., ATO; Betty Lokey, Raleigh, Kappa Sig; Elizabeth Myatt, Goldsboro, Phi Phi; Weddy Thorp, Rocky Mount, DKE; Marjorie Norris, Jacksonville, Fla., Order of the Golden Bear; and Audrey Donnan, Rutherford, N. J., Phi Kappa Sigma.

Reserve Squadron To Be Activated Here Immediately

Maj. Clyde C. Carter, USAFR, announced yesterday that an Air Reserve composite squadron is to be activated in Chapel Hill in the immediate future.

According to Major Carter, the "composite squadron" is the first step in the organization of a full-fledged reserve unit. Although there will be no compensation paid for drills with the composite squadron, a concerted effort will be made to get this unit up to the full strength of 134 officers that is required for a "table of organization and equipment" (TO-E) unit. If and when such a TO-E unit is organized, the members will be paid for 12 drill sessions per year.

Major Carter also stated that a complete roster of officers and enlisted men for the new composite squadron will be sent to the 14th Air Force headquarters on or about Dec. 1.

All members of the air force reserve—both officers and enlisted men—who are interested in being assigned to the Chapel Hill squadron should contact Major Carter at his office, 310 Bingham hall, immediately.

Catholic Supper Will Be Dec. 2

Catholics in the community will hold their third annual Parish turkey dinner, sponsored by the Rosary guild, Thursday, Dec. 2, at 6:30 at the Chapel Hill country club.

All Catholic members and their friends are invited, and should secure tickets in advance. Price of the dinner is $1.25, and tickets will be on sale after each mass on Sundays.

Ralph Edward Kent, Foundation Head In Athens, Greece, to Talk Tuesday

Ralph Edward Kent, who recently returned from his post as deputy area director for the Near East foundation in Athens, Greece, will speak Tuesday at 3 o'clock in the Horace Williams lounge in Graham Memorial.

Townspeople, faculty and students are invited to attend. Kent has spent almost three decades working in various capacities in the Near East, and will bring his varied professional experiences in peace and war to Chapel Hill.

Working with Laird Archer, foreign director of the Near East foundation, Kent was active in the service of the various projects which the Foundation set up in Greece, not only for immediate relief of Greek children, but also for long-range demonstration programs of child welfare, agricultural rehabilitation, livestock improvement, rural sanitation and home economics.

Following the talk by Kent, who is being brought to Chapel Hill by the International Relations department of the Community club and the North Carolina World Peace forum, a tea will be held.
