WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(UP)—President Truman reviewed the troubled world situation with Secretary of State George C. Marshall today at a conference covering the whole range of U.S. foreign policy from Europe to China.

Marshall, who flew in this morning from the United Nations meeting in Paris conferred privately with Mr. Truman for about an hour. Later, he gave the entire cabinet a fill-in on the foreign situation at a luncheon, tendered by the president at the Blair-Lee house.

Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said Marshall gave the president "a comprehensive and useful account" of the international situation, including the crisis in China where Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalist government is fighting for its life against the Chinese Communists.

Ross said the meeting was "very informative," but he refused to give any details or to say whether any decisions had been reached.

Tickets On Sale For Latest Show By Playmakers

Tickets for the Carolina Playmaker production of "School for Scandal" will go on sale this morning at the Playmaker business office, Swain hall, and at Ledbetter-Pickard's on Franklin street, according to business manager John W. Parker.

"School for Scandal", an 18th century comedy of manners by Richard Sheridan, is the third major production of the Playmakers' current season and will be presented in the Playmaker theater on December 1, 2, 3, and 4.

It will be the tour show for the first Playmaker road company since 1941, when Paul Green's play, "The House of Connelly," was toured for two months. "School for Scandal" will be toured to seven other North Carolina towns and go on in South Carolina during January. Performances, in addition to the four night run here, will be given in High Point, Gastonia, Asheville, Statesville, Spartanburg, S. C., Buie's Creek, Wilmington, Rocky Mount, and Goldsboro.

"School for Scandal" was first produced in London, 1777, and was first given in America in 1784, and George Washington saw it in 1791. The play created a sensation in Boston, 1792, when it was put on in defiance of the anti-theater laws. The local sheriff raided the hall and arrested the manager. The uproar following the arrest culminated in the repeal of the law and permitted the first legal theater in Boston.

The Carolina Playmaker production of the play will be staged with colorful costumes designed by Irene Smart, and Lynn Gault designed the scenery. Harry Davis is directing the production, and the cast and crew of the Chapel Hill showing, which will constitute the Tour Company, are all students, except Gault and Davis. Each of the actors will juggle in some technical job, such as make-up, stage crew, lighting, or costumes.

The company will travel by bus, and two trucks will carry the lighting equipment and scenery.

Since the University theater group was formed 31 years ago, they have toured all the way from southern Georgia to Philadelphia, New York, Boston, and Chicago, and as far west as Texas. The present tour troupe will be the 40th company sent out by the Playmakers. The tour will last from Jan. 6 until Jan. 16.

Million Dollars in Airplane Valves Discovered by Illinois State Police

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—(UP)—State police reported today that they have found more than $1,000,000 worth of high quality Army aircraft engine valves discarded in a suburban dumping ground.

Former officials of the Dodge-Chicago aircraft plant said the valves, made of tungsten carbide steel, were dumped after the war. The plant made 18-cylinder engines for B-29 bombers.

The former plant officials said the valves were dumped on Army orders shortly before the Chrysler corp. turned the plant back to the government.

Officials said the Army gave as its reason for dumping the valves the fact that the cost of dis-

The folks who run the Sugar bowl at New Orleans let it be known they like those "Boomer" Sooners from Oklahoma and the comebacks, but adroitly avoided making any flat statements pending outcomes of Saturday's games involving both teams.

Georgia, on the early line of the Broadway and New Jersey odds-makers, was a seven-point favorite to defeat Georgia Tech in their traditional squabble, while Oklahoma, perhaps the mightiest team ever to represent the midlands, was a 19-point choice to bowl over Oklahoma A & M in their final games of the season on Saturday.

At Dallas, the football players of Southern Methodist balloted on which team to invite as their opponent in the Cotton bowl game.

The players voted at mid-afternoon, but Cotton bowl officials did not disclose the result. North Carolina was reported to be the favorite team of the S.M.U. players, but Oklahoma, Georgia, Tulane and Clemson also were said to have received some support.

The selection of California and Northwestern was announced in Los Angeles and Chicago after votes from faculty representatives had been tabulated. Northwestern, which finished second in the Big Nine race, was the unanimous choice of all representatives since Michigan, the champion, was excluded from a repeat appearance at the game.

There was just a touch of acrimony over the selection of California. Pacific conference balloters refused to announce the result of their poll, but it was certain the Oregon had some support.

EARL SLOCUM

Orchestra Gives Concert Tonight; Cordon Will Sing

The University symphony orchestra, conducted by Earl Slocum, will present its first concert of the year tonight at 8:30 in Hill hall. Norman Cordon will appear as soloist, and there will be no charge for the concert.

Mozart's "Symphony No. 40 in G Minor" is the second of three of his principal symphonic works which he composed in rapid succession in 1788.

Norman Cordon, Metropolitan opera star, will be heard as baritone soloist with the orchestra in the Recitative and Aria from the opera "Don Carlos," by Giuseppe Verdi. This will be Cordon's first appearance as soloist in Chapel Hill since his return to his alma mater.

Edwin Hoffman's "March Mock Heroic" is to be heard in concert for the first time tonight. The structure of this composition is a struggle between the opposing themes, a "mock heroic" based upon "Marching Through Georgia" and the truly heroic.

Grael Scheduled To Speak Tonight On 'Israel, U.N.'

Clergyman Was Aboard 'Exodus'; To Speak In Gerrard At 8 o'Clock

By Sam McKeel

Speaking on "Israel and the U.N.," John Stanley Grael, young Christian clergyman who served as volunteer crewman aboard the ill-fated Jewish refugee ship, "Exodus," will address the student body as guest lecturer tonight at 8 o'clock in Gerrard hall.

JOHN STANLEY GRAUEL

In an account of the attack presented to the United Nations Special Committee on Palestine, Grael told how the "Exodus" went from port to port in Europe until finally it jammed its docks with 4,500 Jewish refugees at Sete, France on July 10, 1947.

Although told bluntly by local authorities that they could not leave the port, the ship officers sailed under the curtain of night. Days later, outside the territory waters of the Holy Land, five British destroyers and a cruiser intercepted the "Exodus" and the battle began.

The decks were machinegunned and destroyers ramméd the helpless vessel 14 times. In the action the helmsman of the "Exodus" was shot down.

Grael first became concerned with the Palestine situation when he was appointed a member of the American Christian Palestine committee. Today he is convinced that the only solution lies in the preservation and growth of the Jewish state of Israel.

Grael will speak under the co-sponsorship of the Carolina Forum and the Carolina Intercollegiate Zionist Federation.
