LOOKING LIKE ONE of the three wise monkeys, "Hack," a chimpanzee at the Golden Gate Park Zoo in San Francisco, tries to still his chattering teeth in the unusual 36-degree temperature. This was the lowest for the date in San Francisco since 1888. Ice-coated puddles surrounded the monkey house, causing "Hack" to wear long underwear.

Enough Volunteers:

Halt Is Called To Draft For Two-Month Period

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(UP)—Because of the high rate of voluntary enlistments, the Army announced today it will draft no men in February and March.

Haring Talk To Be Heard On Thursday

Latin America To Be Subject

Dr. Clarence H. Haring, Harvard professor of economics and Latin American history, will speak in Gerrard hall Thursday night at 8:30. Dr. Haring, who is appearing under the auspices of the Institute of Latin American Studies and the political science department, will speak on "Foreign Investments in Latin America, A Historical Retrospect."

A graduate of Harvard and a Rhodes scholar, Dr. Haring has had a great deal of experience with inter-American groups. He was secretary of the Venezuela group at the Second Pan-American Financial conference in 1920. Dr. Haring was chairman of the United States delegation to the second general assembly of the Pan-American Institute of Geography and History in Washington in 1935.

Voluntary enlistments and re-enlistments have averaged 35,000 a month for the past few months, the army said. This has made selective service calls unnecessary for the next two months. Army secretary Kenneth Royall notified the munitions board, which controls draft calls for all services, that the army's previous 5,000 man draft call for February should be cancelled. In addition, the army told the munitions board it would make no calls in March.

In explanation, Mr. Royall referred to the Selective Service act of 1948, which requires the army to limit its draft calls to the difference between requirements and intake through voluntary enlistments.

About 50 per cent of the gains in the last three months have been re-enlistments and extensions of existing enlistments.

General Assembly Has Brief Session

RALEIGH, Jan. 8.—(UP)—The North Carolina House and Senate met for two minutes today and did absolutely nothing.

Nobody said a word except the chaplains, the presiding officers and those who moved to adjourn. The Saturday morning sessions are traditionally limited to local bills, and today nobody introduced any. There could be no reports on the few local bills already introduced in the House, because committees have not yet been formed to act on them.

University Club To Pick Officers

Election of a president will be the chief item of business at the first meeting of the University club for the New Year tomorrow night at 7:30 in Graham Memorial.

Plans will also be made for the entertainment of visiting sport teams during the coming season.

Shoe-String Opera . . .

Promising Singers Will Star In Opera Presentation Here

In 1947 when three of North Carolina's most promising young singers decided to found a touring opera company for their state, they discovered that the initial theater business was by no means a sing. However, local proof of their determination and ability will be their presentation of two comic one-act operas here on Tuesday evening in Memorial hall under the auspices of the Student Entertainment committee.

From the very beginning Ted Bodenheimer and Josephine Fisher of Winston-Salem agreed with Amelia Cardwell of Greensboro that their fellow North Carolinians would enthusiastically support a native interpretation of the lighter operas of such old masters as Debussy, Mozart, Verdi, and Humperdinck.

So these three talented music-world newcomers banded together with Dorothy Alcorn, soprano, and two piano accompanists, Margaret Leinbach Kolb and Sarah Ingram; engaged as stage director Clifford E. Blair, sympathetic Winston-Salem opera impresario who had himself founded the National Association for Opera; and called the entire results the Music Theatre Repertory group.

MTRG began receiving recognition from leading music journals and other magazines throughout the country.

Then this shoe-string opera company immediately began more often to chirp choruses of "Hallelujah." A repertoire of seven original one-act operas was worked out.

A second year of touring was aligned more easily this time with a 1949 opener in Chapel Hill. Now with Gian-Carlo Menotti's "The Old Maid and the Thief," the bell-ringer at State last year, as well as Menotti's "The Telephone," the Music Theatre Repertory group has come a long way to gauge a college audience's reaction to home-brewed musical culture again next Tuesday night.

Choral Group Will Present 'Elijah' In Hill

Oratorio Will Be Given This Evening

Mendelssohn's oratorio "Elijah", sponsored by the University music department, will be heard in Hill hall this evening at 8:30. The program will be presented jointly by the Chapel Hill choral club and the University symphony orchestra.

Soloists will be Edgar vom Lehn, who will sing the role of Elijah; John Brinegar; Harriet Keen; and Mary Helen zum Brunnen.

The Chapel Hill choral club is a civic and student organization which has presented two oratorios annually for over 25 years. The 125 voices of the chorus were heard last year in Mozart's "Requiem" and Haydn's "The Seasons."

The University symphony orchestra will be appearing for the second time this season under the direction of Earl Slocum, its first concert having been given in November.

Drew Pearson To Speak Here At Press Meet

The North Carolina Press association yesterday announced a program for the 24th annual North Carolina Newspaper institute with a list of speakers headed by Drew Pearson, Washington columnist and radio commentator.

The three-day institute will be held here and at Duke university beginning Jan. 27.

The list of speakers included Jenkin Lloyd Jones, editor of the Tulsa, Okla., Tribune; George V. Allen, formerly of the Durham Herald and now assistant secretary of state; and Miss Beatrice Cobb, editor of the Morganton News-Herald and association secretary, who recently returned from a trip around the world by plane.

Sponsoring groups said advance registration indicated the number attending the institute would break all previous records.

Undernourished Oriental students are shown weighing in at food distribution centers set up by WSSF in China. Only those who are found to be as much as 25 pounds underweight are given additional rations of fat meat at the dole points where food is a cherished scarcity.

WSSF Campaign Begins Tomorrow

The 1949 World Student Service fund drive beginning on campus tomorrow will feature three novel highlights in an all-out effort to surpass the University's $5,000 donation last year to the international charity which offsets war-created needs of students all over the world.

The week-long WSSF drive here this year will be sponsored by the Council for Religion in Life. While Dr. Frank P. Graham, Greater University president, is a national WSSF sponsor, student Dorch Warriner has been appointed locally as general drive chairman for the world-wide organization that has spent more than $2,000,000 in the past two years for the relief of 870,000 needy university students and faculty members everywhere.

Tonight at 7:30 in Gerrard hall approximately 115 picked students will meet for final indoctrination about canvassing their respective campus areas from door-to-door. These personal contact solicitations will be made tomorrow, Tuesday, and Wednesday.

Staff of Quarterly Asks Notification

The Carolina Quarterly requested yesterday that all who have subscribed to the Quarterly and who have not received the first issue contact the Quarterly office in Graham Memorial or write to Box 1117.

Numerous students have changed their addresses and have failed to notify the Quarterly office. There are a great number of copies that have been returned to the subscription office from the quonset huts and Miller and Nash halls.

No Taxi Call . . .

Three-Way Radio Hookup Is New Crime-Fighting Device

By Herb Nachman
When an officer in local police headquarters throws a switch and says "Calling car two, signal 10, corner Franklin and Columbia" he won't be calling a taxicab.

He'll simply be reporting a wreck at that location and directing one of the town's two police cars to the spot. It is all made possible with the special Farnsworth receiving-transmitter three-way radio set-up which is now in operation.

Al Barnhill from Greenville assembled the outfit in both police cars and in police headquarters. Barnhill is a member of the Swain hall technician staff and a radio ham operator.

He said if the surplus equipment were new it would cost nearly $2,000 normally.

Austrian students are shown being examined for tuberculosis on the only X-ray machines that WSSF was able to furnish.

Also tomorrow ten-cent balloting will begin in the Y lobby to name a coed "Miss Pay-Off of 1949." Thursday, everyone eating in the Carolina inn, Lenior hall, and the N.C. cafeteria will be asked to contribute the price of their own meal to WSSF with the idea that they are giving to "Take a Foreign Student to Dinner."

Scott Upholds Housecleaning

RALEIGH, Jan. 8.—(UP)—Gov. Kerr Scott made it clear today that he wouldn't "houseclean" state officialdom before the end of the current legislative session.

Scott announced in his first press conference as governor late yesterday that he asked three top officials to stay at their posts until then. However, he expected them to resign by July, he said.

Scott talked freely and in detail about his "go-forward" 15-point program and a half-dozen other subjects with 13 newsmen at the conference.

Staff of Quarterly Asks Notification

Chief Sloan said police protection will now be greatly improved with the new equipment. Under the three way system the cars may transmit to each other as well as communicate with headquarters.

One of the officers said, "Before we had this, we might ride right by a place where a person was breaking in and never know it. Then when we get back to headquarters, we'd find a phone call waiting for us. By that time the thief was out of the state. Now, that will all be changed."

According to Barnhill, the range of the set is up to a radius of 50 miles. The transmitter operates on a narrow-band FM with special antennas installed in the cars and on the roof of headquarters. The system has a power of 50 watts.

Misses Payoff To Start Race In Y Tomorrow

Ten Contestants Already in Fight

A partial list of the coeds to compete for the title of "Miss Pay-Off of 1949" during the campus-wide World Student Service fund drive beginning tomorrow was released yesterday.

Girls whose pictures will appear on ballot boxes in the Y lobby tomorrow morning and the campus organizations sponsoring them are as follows, alphabetically: Gwen Finley, Alpha Gamma Delta sorority; Pat Frizzell, McIver dormitory; Ann Green, Alpha Delta Pi; Marty Hinkle, Carolina Independent Coed association; Louise Horner, Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity; Ferne Hughes, Pi Lambda Chi; Mike Merker, Pi Beta Phi; Mary Louise Powe, Beta Theta Pi; Betsy Ross, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and Betty Smith, Delta Delta Delta.

Any other campus groups desiring to nominate a "Miss Pay-Off" contender should turn their choice's name and photograph as well as a $5 entrance fee over to Edie Knight, WSSF beauty contest chairman, Alderman dormitory. The latest possible deadline for any further entries will be 11 o'clock tonight.

The five dollar entrance fee will be tabulated as the first 50 10-cent votes towards selecting the charity queen. The three nominees who have accumulated the most daily votes will be announced daily in the DTH through next Friday. Votes will still be cast until Sunday evening.

Bunn to Appeal To High Court

DURHAM, Jan. 8.—(UP)—Colonel Heartman Bunn, the slight, wiry leader of a snake-handling religious cult, was ready to appeal to the United States Supreme court today to be allowed to practice his strange worship.

Bunn and Benjamin R. Massey, an elder in his Durham Zion tabernacle, lost their appeal to the state Supreme court yesterday in an attempt to have a city ordinance against snake-handling declared unconstitutional.

CPU Business Meet Scheduled Tonight

There will be an important business meeting tonight for members of the Carolina Political Union, in the Grail room of Graham Memorial, Herb Alexander, chairman, announced yesterday.

Plans will be formulated for activities in the winter quarter. Next Sunday night, the union will hold a regular discussion and visitors will be welcome. There are several vacancies in the membership of the organization, and applications can be obtained at the YMCA office or at the regular meetings.

PL16 Veterans Must Report to Honeycutt

All Public Law 16 students, excepting law and medical students, who have not contacted veterans adviser Wilson Honeycutt this quarter are requested to see him in his office in Peabody hall next Monday, Wednesday or Thursday.

Buckshot

It might have been a false alarm yesterday afternoon, or it might not. At any rate, Albert Pendergrass, local police officer, didn't stop to ask.

The dog was foaming at the mouth and staggering. But he doesn't stagger anymore. A black and grey German Police, still unclaimed, lies dead at 309 McDade street. Full of Officer Pendergrass' buckshot.

Duke Schedules Lecture Series By Top Law Men

The Duke university bar association invites all University law students to attend lectures by two prominent law authorities in February and March, Michael Carr, president of the University Law association, announced yesterday.

The lectures are sponsored by the Duke Bar association, and law students from Duke, Wake Forest, and the University will hear the lectures together.

First of the speakers will be Frank E. Holman of Seattle, Wash., president of the American Bar association. Holman will address the student lawyers Friday evening, Feb. 11, in the amphitheater of Duke hospital, on the west campus of Duke.

Harrison Tweed, president of the American Law institute, will address the same group of students Friday evening March 4, at the same location.

Protest

Professor Frank W. Klingberg, knee-deep in protesting letters, had just about decided yesterday to curb his sense of humor when giving examinations.

Klingberg was the professor who topped off a fall quarter final exam with the question: "True or false: Charlie Justice is a better runner, passer and punter than Doak Walker." Naturally, the unanimous class answer was "True." The incident received widespread national publicity.

Klingberg said he has received an average of ten letters per day since that time from persons throughout the country who try to convince him the answer should have been "False."

Playmakers Plan Tryouts Tuesday

Tryouts for "Inherit the Wind," a new play by Gene A. McLain, university student whose show "Call Back Yesterday" was premiered by the Carolina Playmakers last season, will be held in the Playmakers theater, Tuesday from 5 to 7, and again on Wednesday from 3 to 5. Samuel Selden, dramatic art department head announced today.

McLain tightly written psychological study of a domineering mother and her three daughters, to be directed by graduate student Sam Hirsch will be the second original done by the Playmakers this season as part of a new series of full-length student-written plays on the experimental program, and will be shown on Feb. 2 and 3.

Domestic Troubles Now:

Hustle Them Lightbulbs, R. Gregg

GASTONIA, Jan. 8.—(UP)—R. Gregg Cherry, attorney at law, wondered today why he ever went to Raleigh in the first place to become governor of North Carolina.

The four years in office weren't so bad, Cherry admitted, but the homecoming has been most trying.

The Cherrys left Raleigh immediately after the new governor, Kerr Scott, was sworn in.

Returning to Gastonia, they found their home in Gastonia without a single light bulb and flooded with six inches of water.

Bull's Head Tea Will Hear Hardre

Jacques Hardre, professor in the French department, will speak on the "Existentialism in the Theatre of Jean-Paul Sartre" at a tea to be given in the Bull's Head book shop at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Admission is free and all students are invited to attend.

Dr. I. G. Greer Patient at Watts

Dr. I. G. Greer, executive vice president of the business foundation, is a patient at Watts hospital in Durham.

They spent the night with a friend, banker Kay Dixon.

"Well," drawled the never-excited Cherry, "it looks like the picnic's over."

It's not exactly home to which they returned. Cherry sold his house when he moved into the governor's mansion in Raleigh four years ago. The present dwelling is rented.

Mrs. Cherry dispatched her husband to purchase a broom and light bulbs and yesterday was spent in housecleaning.

Most disturbing to Mrs. Cherry was lack of a telephone in the new home. She got little sympathy from her husband, who joked:

"That's an easy problem. If the company doesn't put one in right away, I'll go elsewhere and put in a call for Kerr Scott. Maybe he'll get some action."

Governor Scott has been outspoken in criticizing telephone companies for slow expansion to meet the state's needs.

The ex-governor had a new car to do his homecoming errands. It was presented him by a group of friends in the capitol before his term ended.
