Tar Heels To Play Notre Dame In Fall

Budget Will Be Discussed In Council Session Today

State College Selected Scene Of Latest Meet

The Greater University of North Carolina Student council will meet at State college in Raleigh this afternoon at 4 o'clock. The University budget, now under consideration by the General assembly, is expected to be the main item on the agenda at the meeting called by Fred Kendall, president of the State college campus government.

The meeting, which will be attended by delegates from the three schools composing the Greater University, will be held at the YMCA on the State college campus. The Carolina delegation will consist of Jess Dedmond, president of the student body; Jim Godwin, Dortch Warriner, Bill Mackie, Page Harris, Bill Miller, Ed Tenney, Jim Vogler, and Miles Smith.

The first meeting of the Greater University council was held last October with delegates from State and Carolina attending to discuss means of cooperating to prevent vandalism between the student bodies of the two schools.

In December a constitutional committee was established, which is scheduled to present its final proposals to the council today. According to a statement of principles drawn up at the December meeting, the purpose of the council is "to attempt to lead the student bodies to an understanding of the realities of the University consolidation act and the benefits to be received from implementing the Greater University idea."

Baity Will Deliver Report at Meeting

Professor Herman G. Baity of the University sanitary engineering department, will deliver a report before the 96th annual meeting of the American Society of Civil Engineers in Hotel Commodore, New York, Jan. 19-21.

RETIRING AFTER 30 YEARS of service in the upper chamber, Senator Arthur Capper (standing bareheaded in the train's vestibule) waves to a delegation which gave him a send-off at Washington's Union station. The Kansas senator, who did not run for re-election this term, started his senatorial career on March 4, 1919.

Margaret Might Have Accepted If TD Had Only Been Mentioned

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Jan. 15.—(UP)—Margaret Truman, who rejected the bid of a Rutgers university freshman to accompany him to the junior prom, might have gone if she'd known Tommy Dorsey was going to play, the disappointed student said today.

William Shuit, 27, got a personal letter of thanks and regrets on White House stationery from the president's daughter. "I forgot to tell her Tommy Dorsey was going to play. Maybe she would have come if she'd known that," Shuit said.

Exams Are Open For Student Aid

The federal government has announced an examination for student aid in the branches of engineering, chemistry, mathematics, metallurgy, physics, meteorology, and geology. Applications are available in the office of Placement service in 209 South building.

The program is designed to give sophomores and juniors an opportunity to become acquainted with scientific research in federal government agencies so they may be in a better position to make a decision as to their careers, Joe Galloway, director of Placement service said.

Mystery Thrillers Bill's 'Who-Dun-Its' Are Tops

By Sam Hirsch
"Shakespeare wrote a fine mystery thriller, and the best of all detective 'who-dun-its,' which he named 'Macbeth' and 'Hamlet,' respectively," yesterday declared Dr. George Coffin Taylor, teacher of Shakespeare at the university, when he learned of the forthcoming Playmaker-sponsored productions of these two plays. The Margaret Webster Shakespeare company will do them in Memorial Hall tomorrow afternoon and evening.

Blaze Reveals No Equipment Phone Trouble

Quonset Oil Fire Causes Damage

A torn telephone directory, a slow-to-answer Chapel Hill telephone operator and the lack of fire extinguishers in the quonset hut area narrowly blazed resulting in a serious blaze yesterday afternoon in hut 19.

As it was, a quick-thinking student phoned the police department and received aid to stop a growing oil fire before it made strong headway. The student was Ed Coley from Elizabeth City, a resident of the endangered building.

Coley said the hut's oil heater began leaking, formed a pool of fire on the floor and leaped into flame. He said occupants of the hut, worried for fear an explosion would occur in the oil drum outside the building, turned off the fuel line.

The student dashed to the phone only to discover that the fire department number was not in the torn book. A frantic waiting period for the operator to answer a dialed "0" was rewarded by silence. He then called the police department to send firemen who quickly brought the blaze under control. No fire extinguishers were available in the area for the students to use.

The only serious damage, Coley reported, besides the heater, was a pile of dirty clothes.

It's Molasses Day In Boston, Mass.

BOSTON, Jan. 15.—(UP)—It was noon of an unseasonably warm January day when lunchtime strollers in Boston's north end heard a rumble and looked up to see a black wave, 35 feet high, bearing down upon them.

A woman screamed. A horse reared, whinnied and bolted. Then all the strollers ran for their lives.

Some escaped, but others were caught, engulfed and smothered in the 2,300,000 gallons of crude molasses that thundered through the ruptured walls of a waterfront storage vat.

It was 30 years ago today that the great molasses flood of 1919 broke upon Boston. It killed 21 persons and dozens of horses. It crumpled eight wooden buildings. For weeks, it held the north end in its sticky grip.

Much of the molasses poured into the harbor, but it left the low-lying area covered by a knee-deep bog of sticky syrup which held its victims. Thrashing lumps were dying horses. Smaller mounds were the bodies of men and women.

ALL SIGNS in Washington seem to indicate that the Inaugural day ceremonies in the nation's capitol will draw one of the largest crowds in its history. A workman is pictured putting up a "sold out" sign on grandstand seats located directly across from the White House. The big show is on Jan. 20.

Shakespearean Plays Slated For Tomorrow

The Margaret Webster Shakespeare company will appear in productions of "Macbeth" and "Hamlet" in Memorial hall tomorrow afternoon and evening.

This is part of a special series of professional theater attractions being sponsored by the Carolina Playmakers this season.

The company will be on tour from September through April with these two popular tragedies. In all, it will visit more than 80 cities to give more than 175 performances. Miss Webster has just announced that due to the eager response to this tour, she will stage "Othello" and "Twelfth Night" for another "Shakespeare-On-Wheels" next year.

Town Girls Meet Tomorrow Night

The Town Girl's association will meet Monday night at 6 o'clock in the Episcopal parish house for their monthly social supper. Contests will be held and prizes awarded.

Important Things

YMCA Quarterly Released; Now Available for Students

Charlie Fox, chairman of the YMCA Finance committee, announced the publication yesterday of the YMCA Quarterly, a publication designed to bring to students a "general idea of the more important things the Y is undertaking this quarter."

Edited by Doug Smith, Montvale, Va., and published by the Finance committee of the Y, the Quarterly is being distributed free to all members of the Y and faculty.

An introduction by Pete Burks, president of the Y, defines the Y "as a fellowship of men on our campus who are seeking a deeper understanding of themselves and the world in which they live. Its purpose is to provide a means through which men may conduct

FPG Relation To Atom Study Is Cleared Up

Is 'Titular' Head Of Research Group

OAK RIDGE, Tenn., Jan. 15.—(UP)—The Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies today issued a formal statement clarifying the relation of Dr. Frank P. Graham, its president, to atomic research here.

The statement followed radio commentator Fulton Lewis, Jr.'s charge that the Atomic Energy commission gave security clearance to Graham against the advice of its security board.

Dr. Graham, who is also president of the University of North Carolina, was elected head of the institute in October, 1946.

The institute's statement said that Graham is not the active director of the research work but rather "the titular head of the institute." Graham was in Oak Ridge on June 28, 1946, the statement added. The council which he heads meets only once a year at the atomic city.

The Institute of Nuclear Studies is a cooperative venture by 19 Southern universities. It was formed before the Atomic Energy commission took over management at Oak Ridge.

The institute now has a contract with the commission to use research facilities at Oak Ridge to advance the study of science. But the statement explained that the institute members rather than the AEC elect the council chairman, who also is president of the board of directors. Graham holds this post.

Dixiecrats Ousted From Committee

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(UP)—Administration leaders in an unusual action today removed two States' Rights Democrats from the House Un-American Activities committee.

Republicans called it a "purge." Democrats denied it.

The ax was swung by Democratic members of the House Ways and Means committee. It was felt by Reps. John E. Rankin, Miss., and F. Edward Hebert, La., Southern Democrats who have fought the Truman administration.

Use of Law Library Limited to Groups

Use of the law library has been limited to the law school faculty, staff, and students, law librarian Lucile Elliott said yesterday.

Other members of the University faculty and graduate students, with special permission, will be allowed use of the library.

Very crowded conditions and a great shortage of books has forced this restriction. Miss Elliott also said that no books may be checked out of the library without special permission during rush periods and examination week.

Yankee Stadium Selected As Site

By Buddy Vaden

The University of North Carolina Tar Heels will meet the University of Notre Dame on Nov. 12, 1949, in New York city's Yankee stadium in the first game of a two-game football series, University Athletic Director Robert A. Fetzer announced late last night.

Coed Senate Plans Forum Next Month

17 Schools Asked To Attend Session

Seventeen schools have been invited to the University Feb. 25 and 26 to discuss problems pertinent to student government in coed and girls schools, Edie Knight, chairman of the committee organizing the forum, announced yesterday.

Sponsored by the Coed senate, the forum is an outgrowth of a recommendation made by Jess Dedmond in his State of the Campus address last fall.

Of the 17 schools invited, Hollins and Woman's college have accepted. An invitation has been issued to Dr. James Wood to appear as the keynote speaker. As yet, Dr. Wood has not accepted.

The purpose of the coed committee in scheduling the forum is to study student government both from coed and girls' schools. Another aspect of the forum is to study the problems that arise in order to better the student government organizations, the chairman explained.

Commissions will be set up to discuss the honor system, point system, extra-curricular activities, and various branches of student government.

Other members of the committee include Gussie Young, recording secretary, Mary Ann Daniel, corresponding secretary, Patsy McNutt, Fran Angus, Barbara Lowe, Joan Lucas, Sue Stokes, Emily Ogburn, Helen Bouldin, and Emily Baker.

'An Act of Spite' Sergeant Asserts

COLUMBUS, Ga., Jan. 15.—(UP)—Sgt. B. J. Odum, of Ft. Benning, believed today that someone is trying to break up his recent marriage, it seemed he had grounds for his reasoning.

In the last few days, said Sgt. Odum, these things have happened:

- $500 worth of his wife's clothing was stolen.
- Sugar was poured into the gas tank of his car.
- He began receiving telephone threats from anonymous men and women.
- An attempt was made to burn down his home.

Sgt. Odum told Police Chief John G. Newberry that he believed the final incident, at least, was "an act of spite."

W.S.S.F. ROUNDUP

Saturday tabulations were unavailable last night for the latest count towards the 1949 University contributions to the World Student Service fund. With the exception of a daily auction slated as a climax for Tuesday at 7:30 in Hill hall, the main WSSSF stunts conducted during the past week are all in their final stages.

Door-to-door solicitations and dime balloting for "Miss Pay-Off" in the Y lobby will continue until 5 o'clock Tuesday. However, all votes will be secret hereafter and no further announcement of various contestant standings will be made until the auction Tuesday night.

Any organization desiring to sell still more 50-cent auction tickets to count as five votes each for their "Miss Pay-Off" nominee can draw another allotment of duets from the YWCA office tomorrow morning.
