WSSF Drive Nets Campus $2,306

By Charlie Gibson

The eight-day World Student Service fund drive here on campus netted $2,306.71 for the international student charity, according to final tabulations released yesterday by Dick Cordon, local WSSF finance chairman.

Gordon broke down the overall tally to show that relief aid for students in war-devastated countries was raised during the past week in the following ways: Door-to-door solicitations and personal contributions, $901.73; "Miss Pay-Off" beauty contest, $71.62; "Take a Foreign Student to Dinner," $329.23; daffy auction, $298.03; and basketball predictions, $5.10.

Dortch Warriner, chairman of the fund-raising campaign sponsored on campus by the Council for Religion in Life, stated yesterday that "Although the amount of this year's WSSF contribution is less than last year's we credit part of the shortcoming to the fact that cash collections were pressed in preference to pledged funds which students last year paid on year-round installments.

To facilitate bookkeeping since the drive had to be cancelled from the fall as originally scheduled to this winter quarter, arrangements now have been that the smaller number of pledges this time will at least be paid up properly and promptly around Feb. 1.

"We WSSF workers do appreciate the co-operation that the student body, the faculty, and the Chapel Hill merchants gave for what we consider a very worthy cause," Warriner concluded.

The official drive ended Tuesday night with the daffy auction in Hill hall at which attractive coed dates and faculty slaves were sold to the highest bidder. The record price bid as a charity contribution came when a football autographed by Tar Heel players brought $38.

Warriner added that although the drive proper is finished for another year, WSSF contributions will still be accepted in the YMCA office at any time.

Comptroller Hits Hoover Committee

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(UP)—Comptroller Lindsay C. Warren tonight blasted the Hoover commission on government reorganization for a plan calling for sharp cuts in the staff and functions of his General Accounting Office.

A source close to the commission retorted promptly that the GAO's accounting system is "arbitrary and senseless" and the logical answer is to chop down its employ force.

The GAO is an arm of Congress which audits all government spending accounts and is known as Congress' "Watchdog of the Treasury."

Music for the Millions

By Don Maynard

"A course designed to take the stuff-shirt out of classical music" is the way former Metropolitan Opera star Norman Cordon describes "Listening to Music," non-credit music appreciation course to be offered for the first time here tomorrow evening.

Invariably, when the average person is asked why he dislikes opera or the classics, his answer is, "It's too high-hat," or, "I can't understand opera." It is with these two stumbling blocks in mind that several members of the music world have formed a class for adults, to "initiate the average music-lover into the mysteries of opera and symphony."

Beginning tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, the course will consist of 10 weekly meetings to be held in the choral room of Hill hall. David Serrins, graduate student in music, will serve as instructor. Cordon, director of the North Carolina music program, and William Newman of the music department will be present at the first meeting.

Opening the 10-week series tomorrow, an informal discussion of "Verdi," to be presented by the Metropolitan opera Saturday,

Robert Frost Will Lecture In Hill Hall Poet Sponsored By English Dept.

Robert Lee Frost, internationally known distinguished American poet, will give a free public lecture tonight at 8 o'clock in Hill hall. This is a return visit for Mr. Frost, as he spoke here last year and several years ago.

Frost arrived in Raleigh yesterday morning, and will be in Chapel Hill until Sunday. The lecture is being sponsored by the English department, and its head, Dr. Clifford P. Lyons, is host to Frost during his stay here. He will meet with the creative writing classes of Charles Eaton tomorrow and discuss writing problems and techniques.

Poet Frost has received almost every honor that can be bestowed upon a poet, and has been awarded the Pulitzer prize four times—more often than any other poet. He has received many honorary degrees and has been associated with many colleges in his long career as a teacher and poet.

Recently published works of Frost's are "Steeplebush," and two book-length poems entitled "Masque of Reason," and "Masque of Mercy," dealing with the import and interrelations of justice and mercy. Designed to complement one another, the two poems are longer and more extended than other work of Frost.

Phi Meet Splits Over Bill to Ban Coed Drink Rule

The audience at the Philanthropic assembly meeting Tuesday night was in favor of lifting the ban on coed drinking in fraternity houses, although Phi members defeated a resolution to that effect.

Phi members defeated the resolution by a margin of two votes. When the audience was polled for its opinion, the motion received a majority of one vote.

Bill Duncan, leading proponent of the resolution, called for the end of a system that permits coeds to make spectacles of themselves on U. S. highway 15 but prohibits moderate social drinking in fraternity houses. He pointed out that drinking is an age-old social which even Puritan John Alden recognized. Duncan stated that heavy whisky traffic has necessitated the construction of a non-curved highway from Chapel Hill to Durham.

Helen Bouldin, Herbert Yates, Peter Burks, and Douglas Carter argued against the bill. Miss Bouldin declared, "It just wouldn't look right," for girls to drink. Yates warned about the possibility of an "unfortunate incident" if the ban were lifted and reported that in a poll he found 66 per cent of the coeds and 85 per cent of the men opposed to removal of the restriction.

In an executive session the Phi instructed the Ways and Means committee to invite Dr. Frank Graham to speak to the assembly.

C. A. E. Winslow Talks to Audience On Public Health

The present day trend in public health is toward concentration on social and economic environment, said Dr. C. A. E. Winslow, international authority on public health and editor of the Journal of Public Health, in a public lecture in Memorial hall, last night.

He spoke under the auspices of the University School of Public Health and the Carolina forum.

In tracing the development of public health, Dr. Winslow explained that the physical environment was the first interest in connection with public health and sanitation. This interest led to education in personal hygiene for the individual human being. For the last 20 years, therefore, great emphasis has been placed on such phases as child welfare and the prevention and treatment of tuberculosis, venereal diseases and similar maladies, he said.

Dr. Winslow, former professor of public health in Yale university, discussed the challenges of public health in the future. He cited poverty, medical care and social security problems as examples of the major challenges of today and the future.

Worst Cold Wave Batters Midwest

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—(UP)—Frigid winds up to 100 miles an hour forced 20,000 school children home at Detroit today as the winter's worst cold wave spread over the nation.

The wind tore down power lines at Detroit, crippling schools, and elsewhere across southeastern Michigan. Gusts up to 75 miles an hour uprooted trees and knocked down power and telephone lines in Ohio.

President Jess Dedmond will make the appointments before the meeting tonight from a list to be approved by a tri-partisan selection board meeting this afternoon.

Ed Joyner and Dougald McMillan, co-chairmen for the March of Dimes drive on campus, said yesterday that a bill would be presented to the legislature to request an appropriation from student funds for the drive. The campus goal is one dollar from each student in the University.

Both forum bills deal with reorganization of the speaking group.

The board will present its slate of eligible candidates to Jess Dedmond, president of the student body, late this afternoon, and Dedmond will choose two men to fill the junior and graduate school vacancies on the Men's council. Dedmond's appointments must be confirmed by the Student legislature tonight.
