Phi Assembly Votes Against Parking Rules

Ray, Russell Talk at Meet

The Philanthropic assembly Tuesday night unanimously defeated a resolution to approve the recent action taken by the Safety committee to further restrict parking on campus in its Tuesday night meeting in Phi hall.

Steve Millikin, chairman of the safety committee, declared that the proposals were made to protect student automobile owners. He stated that a few people may have to walk farther because of the restrictions but they will at least be able to keep their cars in Chapel Hill.

Millikin informed the assembly that any student actually suffering from the new restrictions will receive special consideration. Lack of funds, he explained, has been the cause for certain potential parking areas being left undeveloped.

Phillips Russell, chairman of the Parent-Teachers association safety committee, called for punishment for the "social enemy" who by reckless driving endangers the lives of Chapel Hill children. Russell said it may be necessary to ban the "purely sporting car" from Chapel Hill.

Town Manager Gilbert Ray saw the problem as one of pouring a quart of water into a pint bottle. He asked for cooperation which he said makes up more than 90 per cent of a democratic government.

Joe Bock supported the committee's recommendations. "We have got to decide if automobiles are here to stay," he said.

Jay Herrick, representing Carr, wanted the students in her dormitory to be allowed to keep their cars since automobiles are necessary for their occupations and since "some of the girls are 40 or 50 years old."

A substitute resolution by David Sharpe to prohibit able-bodied students living within one-half mile radius of South building from bringing cars to Chapel Hill was shouted down.

NORTH STATE ROUNDUP

Factory Blaze

ASHEVILLE, Jan. 26—(UP)—Fire crews kept up a steady watch today over the still-blazing ruins of a sprawling cotton rag factory which went up like a torch in a $150,000 blaze last night.

School Robbed

THOMASVILLE, Jan. 26—(UP)—Thieves broke into the Pilot high school near here and made off with $115 in cash and valuables, Deputy Sheriff Keifer Morris reported today.

May Get Post

CHARLOTTE, Jan. 26—(UP)—North Carolina's top political leadership pointed straight—if anonymously—to Jonathan Daniels today as the Tar Heel state's next Democratic National committeeman.

Will Not Copy

CHARLOTTE, Jan. 26—(UP)—Sen. Clyde R. Hoey, said today his senate sleuthing committee has no intention of mirroring its counterpart in the house with a communist investigation.

To Hear Bids

RALEIGH, Jan. 26—(UP)—Bids for some $864,584 in highway projects were before the State Highway commission today as it prepared its last meeting under Chairman A. H. Graham.

Face Charges

ELIZABETH CITY, Jan. 26—(UP)—Two youths who ran afoul of the law when they forgot to put a nickel in a parking meter were handed to Craven county officers today to face three charges of breaking and entering.

EXTREME COLD and snow brought death to this steer on the desert range of Robert Blair of Essex, Calif. Unaccustomed to the snow which covered their forage, thousands of head of cattle froze or starved to death. The U.S. Air Force is operating a hay airlift in an effort to save more than 1,000,000 sheep and cattle threatened with death on the snowbound western ranges.

Starving Cattle In Five States Get Haylift Aid

CHICAGO, Jan. 26—(UP)—The Air Force spread its livestock-saving haylift to five western range states today while floods menaced central sections of the nation.

Ice storms halted traffic in scattered sections from the Great Lakes to Texas and a whirlwind blizzard in Southern California threatened livestock in the Mojave desert area.

The Air Force, racing against time to save an estimated 2,000,000 cattle and sheep faced with starvation, extended its haylift from Nevada to sections of Utah, Colorado, South Dakota and Nebraska.

Bitter cold still gripped these blizzard-swept range states and ranchers feared their losses might total 50 per cent of their herds despite all aid.

In Washington, President Truman allocated another $200,000 from his disaster fund to the relief of the snow-bound states, bringing the total to $300,000.

The emergency haylift, which started Monday with 17 C-82 flying boxcars dropping feed to stranded Nevada livestock, now mustered 23 planes, including 20 C-82's and eight C-47's.

The Nevada lift was expanded to 18 C-82's and ranchers and townspeople at the hard-hit area at Ely, Nev., pitched in to help load the big ships with hay.

It was 27 degrees below zero at Ely this morning and ranchers said their stranded stock could not withstand the cold much longer in their weakened condition.

The Air Force base at Lowry Field, Denver, dispatched two C-47's to Kearney, Neb., to pick up hay and rancher-guides for hay "bombing" on the ranges.

He's Sung 'em All

McPeek Has Long G.&S. History

By Sam Hirsch

Gwynn McPeek, instructor in the music department and musical director of this weekend's "Pinafore" has directed, sung, and acted in every one of the popular Gilbert and Sullivan operas.

"I began when I was a young boy singing the tenor part of Nanki-Poo in 'The Mikado,' he said, "and as my voice changed I gradually changed parts each time I played in it, until I had sung every one of the male leads."

This is McPeek's first assignment as musical director of the annual opera, but he is well-known locally as assistant director of the Choral club and the director of the music department's madrigal singers. He teaches voice, brass instruments and music history, and has composed songs for choral groups, voice and orchestra, and has seven quartettes published.

"I have played Sir Joseph Porter and Captain Corcoran in 'Pinafore,' he went on, "so it feels like old times when I'm in the pit conducting. I think all my

Solons to Hear Bill on Tuition In Legislature

A resolution in opposition to any raise in tuition at the University will be introduced at the meeting of the Student Legislature tonight at 7:30 in Di hall of New West.

A proposal to increase tuition and fees in an effort to help meet increasing cost of operation has been made by the Advisory Budget commission.

Other bills expected to be introduced at tonight's session include a bill to provide the proper form for constitutional amendment on the Town Men's association; a bill to fix polling places; a bill to amend the by-laws of the legislature on constitutional amendments; amendment for by-laws of legislature on bills left in committee or tabled at the end of a quarter; election law to correct provisions of the redistricting bill.

Village Blaze Damages Heater

A small fire in Victory village yesterday afternoon caused slight damage to the water heater in the home of Thomas W. Aiken, 222 Jackson circle.

Aiken said he smelled smoke and rushed into the kitchen where he discovered flames in the flue of the gas heater.

When the fire department arrived, Aiken said, they went to the wrong side of the circle. "I ran across to direct them but by that time the fire was out," he said.

"I'm glad I wasn't here by myself and that fire wasn't serious," Mrs. Aiken remarked.

Registration Dips to 7,105 This Quarter Only 820 Coeds Are Enrolled Now

University enrollment this quarter dropped to 7,105 students, a report from Chancellor R. B. House's office disclosed yesterday.

During the fall quarter the enrollment exceeded this quarter's by 498 students. The enrollment for the winter quarter includes 6,285 male students and 820 coeds. Compared with last quarter, this figure shows a loss of 64 coeds.

Fifty-nine per cent of the enrollment is made up of veterans, including 4,307 men and 80 women. Of the total enrollment, 5,498 students are North Carolina residents, and 1,558 students come from 42 other states. Forty-nine students represent 27 foreign countries.

All figures released by House are based on enrollment as of Jan. 20. Of the 7,376 students who registered for this quarter, 271 did not return.

Enrollment by schools is as follows:

General college, 2,544; Arts and Sciences, 1,612; Commerce, 1,244; graduates in Arts and Sciences, 876, which does not include graduate students in Public Health and Social Work; Law, 281; Library Science, 28; Medicine, 109; Pharmacy, 212; Public Health, 101; Social Work, 39; and Education, 59.

There are 1,178 first year students, 1,450 second year students, 1,562 third year students, 1,396 fourth year students, and 87 special students.

Eaton Talks to Chi Delta Phi On Toil in Process of Writing

"Writing is a long and laborious process of toil and work, and this ultimately discourages lots of people," said Walter Pritchard Eaton Monday night before an open meeting of Chi Delta Phi, literary sorority, in the main lounge of Graham Memorial.

"Many people want to go into writing because The Tree Grew in Brooklyn to the tune of three million copies. Some people have more urge than aptitude, and these borderline cases never get very far. The itch to write is not always an incurable disease. It can sometimes be cured by a series of rejection slips.

"But if you have the real disease nobody can teach you how to write," the speaker continued.

Board to Fill Council Post At Meet Today Grad Candidates To Be Considered

Page Harris, chairman of the Men's Honor council, yesterday called a meeting today of the tri-partisan board to consider candidates to fill the graduate student vacancy on the council.

The meeting will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the Grail room of Graham Memorial. Harris said the board will interview all graduate students who are interested in being appointed to fill the vacancy. The tri-partisan selection board consists of three members from each of the campus political parties.

Official appointments to fill the seat must come from Jess Dedmond, president of the student body. The appointment must also be approved by the Student Legislature.

Two weeks ago, the legislature approved Dedmond's appointment of Roy W. Holsten, junior from Glen Rock, N. J., to fill the other vacancy on the council for this quarter.

Holsten was one of the candidates recommended to Dedmond by the tri-partisan board.

The tri-partisan method of nominating candidates for the Men's council was adopted last year in the interest of assuring a non-partisan judicial branch in student government at the University.

Senior Class Rings Are on Sale Today

Senior class rings will be on sale today in the YMCA building lobby from 1 to 4 o'clock this afternoon. There are the only official class rings being sold.

NCPA Institute Will Open With Pearson Talk Tonight

Three featured speakers and the annual press award banquet will highlight the 24th annual North Carolina Press association midwinter newspaper institute opening here tonight. The three-day institute is sponsored jointly by NCPA, the University, and

Duke university. Drew Pearson, Washington columnist and radio commentator, will speak at the opening session tonight at 8 o'clock in Memorial hall. He will be introduced by President Frank Graham. Students are invited to the address but 500 seats are on reserve for those attending the institute.

Jenkin Lloyd Jones, editor of the Tulsa, Okla., Tribune, and H. Galt Braxton, editor of the Kinston Free Press will address tomorrow morning's general session in Gerrard hall. Miss Beatrice Cobb editor of the Morganton News-Herald and secretary of the association will address a luncheon meeting at the Carolina Inn. Both sessions will be presided over by NCPA President Frank Daniels, general manager of the Raleigh News and Observer.

George V. Allen, Assistant Secretary of State, will address tomorrow night's banquet session at Duke University. Allen is a former staff member of the Durham Herald. Governor Kerr Scott will make the annual press awards after Allen's talk.

A Saturday morning breakfast at the Carolina Inn will honor past presidents of the association. Henry Belk, Goldsboro News-Argus, will preside, and Roland F. Beasley, editor of the Monroe Journal, will be the principal speaker. A business meeting will follow.

Two daily groups will hold sessions today. Hal Boyle, former war correspondent and now a roving columnist for the Associated Press will address the state Associated Press club at 1 o'clock in the Carolina Inn. Club President Jonathan Daniels, executive editor of the News and Observer, will preside at the meeting. The state association of afternoon dailies will meet at 4 o'clock.

DREW PEARSON AND FRANK DANIELS (left and right) are two participants in the 24th annual North Carolina Press association newspaper institute being held here and at Duke today, tomorrow and Saturday. Pearson, syndicated Washington columnist, will speak at 8 o'clock tonight in Memorial hall. Daniels, general manager of the Raleigh News and Observer, is the president of the NCPA.

UVA To Sponsor Dance For Campus Dime Drive

The current Daily Tar Heel-sponsored March of Dimes fund drive is due for another boost Saturday night when the University Veterans association holds its admission-free polio benefit dance, UVA president Gene Newton announced yesterday.

On hand to provide entertainment, instead of the usual juke box, will be a four-piece combo. Three attractive coeds will meet couples at the door and solicit contributions. Even though there is no admission charge, it is expected all students will contribute generously, Newton said.

Dougald MacMillan, co-chairman of the campus drive, said yesterday he hoped those who hadn't given their dollar donation through other means would do so at the dance.

"Although it is not compulsory for students to give, we feel that they should donate at least $1. If some have already given to the drive, perhaps they could contribute once more. But to those who have not yet donated, we say, 'Give your share, you may save a child.'"

"This year, more than ever before, whole-hearted cooperation on everyone's part is necessary to safeguard our children, our friends and ourselves against the ravages of polio," MacMillan said.

At present, officials announced after a survey, there are 2,509 hospital cases in the state, costing $7,000 a month to support. Funds are needed immediately to swell the empty national and state treasuries, depleted during the polio epidemic last summer.

City Manager Protests

Proposed New Highway Hits Disaccord Among Durhamites

R. W. Flack, city manager of Durham, indicated yesterday that the city is not in accord with the route of the proposed new Chapel Hill-Durham highway or its routes of access into Durham.

Flack's report was in the form of an open letter to persons who have addressed communications to the city manager and the City council concerning the subject.

Flack pointed out that the government of the city of Durham was not represented on the committee which appeared before the State Highway commission in Raleigh several months ago and

Marie Nussbaum Is New Secretary Of Coed Senate

Marie Nussbaum, junior from Louisville, Ky., was elected secretary of the coed senate Tuesday night, filling the vacancy left by Tandy Lacy.

A transfer from St. Mary's, Marie is a member of the YWCA, the Glee club, the Daily Tar Heel staff, and a pledge of Pi Beta Phi sorority.

It was announced that entries are now being received for the position of editor of the Woman's handbook. The position is open to all coed undergraduates, and applicants should send a list of qualifications including previous journalistic experience to Emily Baker, Alpha Gamma Delta house, before Tuesday.

Five amendments to the coed elections bill were passed. The amendments, introduced by Miss Baker, provided that nominating petitions be in the hands of the chairman of coed elections three days before the first mass election meeting.

Petitions must be accompanied by a typed list of qualifications of candidates which should be ready for distributed as the candidates are introduced.

New Students Must Sign Honor Pledges

All new students who have not yet signed Honor code pledge cards must do so as soon as possible in the Men's Honor council offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial, Chairman Page Harris said yesterday.
