Talley Will Seek Vice-Presidency On CP Ticket

THE GIANT NAVY FLYING BOAT, Carolina Mars, set a passenger-load record for airplanes and then broke it. Here, the four-engine craft is shown after it arrived at the Alameda, Calif., Air Base from San Diego with 222 persons aboard—218 transferred Navy men and four crewmen. This was less than three hours after it had landed in San Diego from Alameda with 207 aboard. The previous high was 169 persons, carried by a twelve-engine German Dornier plane in 1929 in a flight from Switzerland.

Students in Alaska Will Be 'Working on the Railroad'

By Tookie Hodgson

"I've Been Working on the Railroad" will be the song most likely to replace "Hark the Sound of Tar Heel Voices" on the lips of a large number of Carolina students who will entrain next month for railroad construction jobs in Alaska and the Canadian Northwest.

The students attracted by high wages will be "hired as unskilled laborers" by the Alaskan Railway co., a government-subsidized firm which is currently pushing railroad construction into "America's Last Frontier."

The Chapel Hill students, who will work as section hands and storekeepers, are due to receive about $300 a month and keep, if conditions this year remain the same as last.

Living accommodations, according to Dick Fleming of Greenville senior who made the Northern jaunt last year "are not exactly what you'd have in your own home."

"The food is plentiful," Fleming said, "but a little monotonous."

DTH Staff Favors Buchan For Editor

Choice Named Unanimously At Meeting

Candidate Served As Associate Ed

Bill Buchan, former Daily Tar Heel associate editor and summer managing editor, was nominated by acclamation yesterday by the Daily Tar Heel staff for the editorship of the newspaper during the coming year.

Buchan's nomination by the staff followed an announcement by Chuck Hauser, managing editor and triply-endorsed candidate for the post, that he would not be able to run because of his academic standing.

Hauser's withdrawal from the race will necessitate new nominations from the three campus political parties.

A native of Pinebluff, but now of North Wilkesboro, Buchan joined the newspaper staff in the summer of 1947 when he entered the University as a freshman. He served as an editorial assistant for a year under Editor Barron Mills and as an associate editor under Ed Joyner, current editor, last spring.

In the fall, he moved to the news staff where he covered student government, features and special news stories. He has served as acting editor and managing editor during the absences of Joyner and Hauser from the campus during the year. He has also written a semi-weekly column, "This and That," on the editorial page for the past 15 months.

Before coming to the University, Buchan served overseas in Europe with the Army for 18 months. He was discharged from the Army in Germany and remained in Bremerhaven as a War Department civilian for a year where he served as assistant public relations officer for the Bremen Enclave and as editor of the eight-page weekly, the 17th Reporter.

He attended high school in Aberdeen and at Mt. Berry, Ga., where he was editor of the school paper. While at the University he has been a member of the Di senate and the Town Men's association.

Chuck Hauser Leaves DTH Editorship Race

Chuck Hauser, triply-endorsed candidate for the editorship of the Daily Tar Heel, announced yesterday that he would be unable to take the post in spring elections.

Hauser, the second candidate for editor in as many years to be endorsed by the Student, University and Campus parties, said his academic status would not permit him to run for the position. As yet, no independent candidates have announced their intentions of running against him.

At a Daily Tar Heel staff meeting yesterday afternoon, Bill Buchan was nominated as the staff candidate for editor. He is the first person to officially enter the race since Hauser dropped out.

Political circles buzzed with other possibilities for the job, however. Among the names suggested were present sports editor Billy Carmichael, III, former staff member John Stump, present associate editor Al Lowenstein and numerous dark horses.

Hauser said yesterday he was "extremely sorry" he had to withdraw from the race "after so many people have demonstrated their faith in me. To them, I want to express my deepest appreciation."

The former candidate has served as Daily Tar Heel managing editor for the past year. Before that he was news editor, campus editor, and worked as a reporter for his first year on the staff. He has also been treasurer of the Publications board for the past year. His outside experience includes work as a staff writer for the United Press.

Woodhull Named Managing Editor

Ed Joyner, Daily Tar Heel editor, yesterday appointed Sally Woodhull, present DTH news editor, as managing editor, subject to approval by Publications board.

A senior journalism major from Bethlehem, Pa., Sally has served as news editor this year, and worked as reporter for the DTH and as advertising layout manager for the Carolina Magazine last year. She is president of Chi Delta Phi and of Valkyries, secretary of the YWCA, and a member of Pi Beta Phi.

Proposal for Socialized Medicine Will Be Topic of Di at Meeting Tonight

The Dialectic senate will debate socialized medicine at a 9 o'clock meeting tonight, according to an announcement yesterday by Banks Talley, chairman of the Di ways and means committee.

The bill to be argued pro and con this evening was introduced by John Brockman at an earlier meeting. It would have the senate go on record as favoring voluntary health insurance, as exemplified by the Hospital Savings association in this state, in preference to socialized medicine.

DR. R. M. MACIVER

Democratic Ideas Backed By MacIver

Declaring that there is no economic or political democracy, but only one kind—a way of governing and being governed—Dr. Robert M. MacIver, Lieber professor of political philosophy and sociology in Columbia university, told a Hill hall audience last night that "democracy, in a word, liberates human nature. All other forms of government inevitably distort humanity."

Dr. MacIver, who delivered the first of the annual series of three Weil lectures on American Citizenship here, said "when democracy fails, it is not because its principle is faulty, but only because men are too short-sighted or interest-blinded to understand what it means."

When democracy fails it is not the common man alone who suffers most, he said, "but the true elite among men—the thinkers, the artists, men of deep faith and generous hearts and a free spirit—in short, the creators of all that has enriched and ennobled mankind."

Dr. MacIver was introduced by Dr. Frank Graham, president of the University. Chancellor Robert House presided.

Giving three lectures on successive nights, Dr. MacIver's general topic is "Perils to American Heritage of Democracy." Last night he spoke on "perils due to our misunderstanding and lack of appreciation of what democracy means." Delivering his second speech tonight he will speak on "The Violence of Change" and tomorrow he will speak on "The Danger from Without."

Candidate Is Charlie Long's Running Mate

Is Now Serving As CP Chairman

Banks Talley, rising senior and chairman of the Campus party, will seek the office of vice-president of the student body in the spring elections, CP officials announced yesterday.

Talley will be the running mate of Charlie Long whose nomination for the presidency of the student body on the CP ticket was announced two weeks ago.

Elected chairman of the CP at the beginning of the winter quarter, Talley is currently CP floor leader in the Student legislature. He is a member of the legislature Ways and Means committee and a member of President Jess Dedmond's Coalition cabinet.

Hailing from Bennettsville, S. C., Talley was the first secretary of the Carolina forum and has been a member of the tri-partisan board which selects candidates for the Men's Honor council. He is also president pro tempore of the Dialectic senate and chairman of the Di Ways and Means committee.

Upon accepting the CP nomination, Talley said:

"If elected I will consider it my duty to make the Student legislature operate smoothly and to assure the passage of the Campus party's campaign platform."

"The legislature is infamous for the careless and indifferent attitude of its members. I shall demand that committee chairmen perform their duties and I will strive to secure the active participation of all 50 legislators. A few members of the legislature have done all the work in the past while the majority sit back idly and refuse to give their voters the representation they are entitled to expect."

The CP's nomination of Talley completes nominations of the three campus political parties for the two top student body offices.

Ballots in the April general election will carry the names of Long and Talley on the CP ticket, Dick Gordon and Ten Leonard on the University party ticket and Bill Mackie and Harry Horton on the Student party ticket.

Don Shropshire, former chairman of the Student council, yesterday released a statement endorsing Talley. Shropshire said, "Talley knows student government, its merits, and most important of all, its shortcomings. If he were serving as vice-president of the student body, the campus could rest on the assurance that it had a man in office who would refuse to be blindly led, and a man who could firmly 'tan the seat' of disgusting incompetence."
