Please Don't Disturb

have squirmed until they got cricks in the back. But they continued to smile sickly

General Roy St. Lewis summed up some of the opposition feeling next day at lunch with

John L. Lewis. The Mine

Workers boss asked Mr. St.

Lewis what he thought of the

"I think the President over-reached himself in punching at the vested interests," replied Mr. St. Lewis, "There are quite a few voters in this country who still have vests."

The day after the $100 dinner I was listening to a S. O.

B. (Sweet Old Ballad) when my social secretary, Mrs. Tabitha Talcott Pratt came waitz-ing in. She asked what I was looking so glum about and I said I was bemoaning the fact that I hadn't been able to afford a bottle of champagne to crack over Perle

"She made her maiden speech before the Jefferson-

Jacksons," I explained. "Naturally this called for a rare vintage to be dashed over her prow but I was a little short

"I heard about that maiden speech," cut in my senior navof champagne money."

The mine boss grunted.

THIS IS NO

PLACE FOR

POLITICS

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publication Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is issued daily during the regular sessions of the University by the Colonial Press, Inc., except Mondays, examination and vacation periods, and during the official summer terms when published semi-weekly. Entered as second-class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription price: $8.00 per year, $3.00 per quarter.

ED JOYNER, JR. T. E. HOLDEN
Chuck Hauser Billy Carmichael III
Adv. Mgr
James A. Mills

News Staff—Margaret Gaston, Sam McKeel, Gordon Huffines. Leonard Dudley Roy Parker, Don Maynard, Wink Locklair, J. L. Merritt, Virginia Forward Art Xanthos, Fred McGee, Charles Pritchard, Jimmy Leeson, Jimmie Foust, Graham Jones, Ann Sawyer, Emily Baker, Bunnie Davis, Troy Williams, Sam Whitehall.

Sports-Frank Allston, Jr., Lew Chapman, Joe Cherry, Larry Fox, Morton Glasser, Wuff Newell, Zane Robbins, Buddy Vaden.

Oliver Watkins, Erwin Goldman, Neul Cadieu, Bootsie Taylor, Jay Quina, Pat Denning, Ann Green, Allen Tate, Alan Susman, Babs Kerr, Marie Nussbaum, Jackie Sharpe, Gladys Cottrell. Rita Adams Society staff: Caroline Bruner, Lucile Conley, Lynn Hammock, Jane

Business Staff: Jane Griffin, Jacy Rush, Jackie Burke, Preston Wescoat,

Circulation Staff: Don Snow and Shasta Bryant, Assistant Circulation Managers; M. J. White, Joe Wratten Andy Symmes, Neill Clegg.

For Once They're Right

Gower, Helen Stephenson, Ann Gamble.

For once the Republicans are on the right side.

From our neighboring city of exciting stoplights yesterday came the news that the Durham County Republican club has sent letters to the county's legislators protesting the increase in tuition passed by the board of trustees for the Greater University.

"The state-supported schools have always been in the logical choices of students from low income families and of a large number of self-help students," the club declared. A dollar more or less is of the greatest importance to these students and their families. High costs of food, clothing, textbooks and other items could well make an increase in tuition the straw that breaks the camel's back."

When Republicans become concerned about the lower income brackets, the news is really significant. Perhaps this will be incentive for Democrats, too, to write their legislators.

It's Hard but Fair

Although the ruling made public yesterday concerning the eligibility of candidates for campus offices will cause a few headaches in present and future political circles, it is eminently fair. There is no reason why students participating in extra curricula functions such as student government and its related activities should not be required to maintain just as high scholastic standing as students participating in extra curricula athletics.

The ruling will undoubtedly result in the loss to student body organizations of some exceptionally well qualified leaders, but this hardship will be no greater than is already imposed upon the debate squad, glee club, band, and Playmakers.

In its favor the regulation has the advantage of preventing students already upon shaky scholastic ground from hurting themselves by devoting too much time to extra curricula offices instead of to their studies.

Reform--or Be Discreet

We always suspected it! Durham County ABC agents have announced that they had discovered a still on Duke campus, almost in the shadow of the Duke chapel! The steam-operated, fifty-gallon still had been used at least once when discovered by the agents, who waited without success for a couple of weeks for the operators.

It wouldn't be quite gentlemanly to hint that Duke is inhabited by embryo bootleggers, so we'd just rather suggest that a bus ride downtown is much quicker and a bit more legal than making your own.

If the Duke student body has a bus-phobia, or some such ailment, Carolina students would be glad to give them a lift to the business end of the Durham-Chapel Hill refreshment run. We realize that our Duke cousins (we use the word very loosely) might not be quite bright and we'd hate to see them behind the wrong kind of bars.

So let the Duke students repent and reform-or be a bit more discreet when choosing the site for extra-curricular chemistry activities.

Of Minor Importance

At the meeting of the board of trustees on Monday Mr. Jack LaGrand of Wilmington introduced a resolution to prohibit any person who is a member of or affiliated with the Communist party from being enrolled in or employed by the University.

Mr. LaGrand evidently has given credence to the rumors that Chapel Hill is a "hotbed of Communism." In order that he may read a first hand day-to-day account of how the Communists are taking over the University we are rending him a complimentary subscription to the Daily 'Tar Heel. After a few weeks of reading about the activities of the Campus party, the Student party and the University party, he should be convinced that the Communist party is of relatively minor importance—at least at this

A. A.'s Advice

Try Alderman, For Example

By Adelaide Addle Dear Miss Addle:

I am a senior commerce major, but that's not the problem. This is the problem.

I am engaged to two girls at once. This is a problem because one of them lives in Tampa, Florida, and the other lives in Womelsdorf, Pennsylvania, which is near Knauertown; and they both have invited me to visit them over vacation. I love them both, but there is a law against bigamy.

The one in Womelsdorf owns a steel mill, and is worth roughly seven million, is beautiful, and well-brought-up. Money doesn't concern me, though I have no immediate job prospects. The Tampa girl is beautiful, has brains, and is a divine dancer, and Florida has a wonderful climate. But climate means nothing to me, though I do get sinus.

Needless to say, I am perplexed. Should I take a cabana, or a steel mill?

Signed: Commercial

Dear Commercial:

I'm glad that neither money nor climate influence you, for you must be objective. Both girls sound delightful. Since the Tampa girl has no money, and you have no job, think twice, for you can't dance through life. Steel mills around Womelsdorf, near Knauertown, have their disadvantages too.

In either case someone will get hurt. Therefore, I suggest you look nearer home. Young ladies in North Carolina are very nice, and I hear that there are several in Alderman dorm who are looking for men.

Dear Miss Adelaide:

Last week I asked you how I could overcome my shyness and propose to my girl. You told me to sweep her into my arms and be master of the situation and then say, "My love," but something went

We were in the Arboretum, when I tried. I am 5ft. 7in. and weigh 130lbs, and she is 5ft. 9in. and weighs 140 lbs. The sweep was a slow drag. I stammered and she thought I said, "Don't shove you gorilla." I now have a black eye. How can I win her?

Signed: Bashful Bean

Dear Bashful Bean:

Chivalry is not dead. Get a guitar and propose in song; of course if you can't sing or play a guitar this has certain disadvantages. In that case, fall on bended knee, recite Shelley's "Ode to the West Wind," and when the wind blows strong,

Alumni Series

Distinguished Son of a Beloved Tar Heel

Distributed by King Features Syndicate by arrangement with The Washington Star

Washington Scene

By George Dixon

tures syndicate Inc.)

ard was with him.

the nose?

someone else have you?

game, mates.

(Copyright, 1949, King fea-

Ran into former Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard

at the $100-a-blue-plate Jefferson-Jackson dinner. Out of politeness I asked if Mrs. Wick-

Wickard doesn't have $100."

"No," he replied, sadly. "Mrs.

Each year I become increasingly baffled by that Jefferson-

Jackson thing. Why would anyone pay $100 to get a punch in

The President kept taking pokes at the "special interests" just as he did a year ago. And, once again, the representatives of special interest applauded as if he were talking about

If you don't think the vested interests were heavily represented, where do you think they dug up the $100-a-dish customers? You ain't paid $100 for a $2 snack yourself lately,

I don't see how the President could have failed to detect the irony in it. But he played it straight-and so did the patrons. It's a strange

It made me wonder, sort of, whether the President realizes the campaign is over.

The stuff he gave out smacked of straight vote-getting ma-

The Midases present must

By "Wink" Locklair

Last week in Washington. members of the North Carolina delegation in the House of Representatives, dusted off the welcome mat for Jonathan Daniels, former DTH editor. now editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, who had come to the capital for his first visit as their new Democratic national committeeman.

However politics, like journalism, is not a new field for Mr. Daniels. The son of a famed and beloved civic leaderthe late Josephus Danielshis paper was one of the few which supported Harry Truman last year with more than luke-warm enthusiasm.

Mr. Daniels edited the Tar Heel during 1921-22, one year after Thomas Wolfe was graduated from Carolina. Paul Green, play-wright, and Legette Blythe, novelist, newspaperman and semi-play-wright, were also testing the literary waters with an experimental toe here in the carly 20s. In 1938, Mr. Daniels wrote "A Southerner Discovers the South," a book which won the famous Mayflower cup award as the North Carolina "book of the year." This marked the Europe,

JONATHAN DANIELS

first time a newspaperman had ever received the prime At V. etc. 1 " Ther. Daniele has Wasangt n corfr in the rot view of Literature. He also wrote a novel, "Clash of Angels," obtaining for him a Guggenheim fellowship on which he did a year's study in

Mr. Daniels took over the ed tership of the News and Observer in 1935 when his father went to Mexico City as United States ambassador for Franklin Roosevelt. (Jonathan was FDR's press secretary for a time in 1945.)

The most recent journalistic award to come to Mr. Daniels was for an editorial, "The Task of the South," which won first prize for the best editorial of 19.8 at the North Carolina press institute here in Chapel Hill recently. The sentiments expressed in that long and probing essay had been said earlier by him, however, in an andress he made at the Woman's college of Furman university in March, 1939. Those who read his Raleigh paper are familiar with them. also. He said, "The only defense against the South is the salvation of the South and that is a task for both this reg. n and this Nation. Its solution will not wait while its dim ers grow. We should be wise everywhere in America if we fear it and face it. The Southern problem is not merely Southern-a unique American problem grows in the

Jefferson-Jackson Sidelights

al aide. Machinists Mate Michaelangelo Rembrandt Kelly. Where did Perle hire the even next day when the Republican criticism got going. I informed him this was The G. O. P. had a lot of merely a figure of speech and stuff to play with. The Presithat it was quite a la mode for dent, it contended, had hit out a matron to make a maiden too wildly without any specifspeech. Mr. Kelly muttered ic direction to his blows. that they didn't do things that Former Assistant Attorney way when he was a kid. Mrs. Pratt asked if her dear friend, Perle, had delivered a good address.

"It must have been," I said "People paid $100 a Democrat to hear it. That's more than it costs to hear a seal play "My Country 'Tis of Thee' on the

Mr. Clarence W. (Slats) Rafferty, the retired safecracker, said he understood Mrs. Mesta had to speak in competition with President Truman and asked how that came about. "There were two Jefferson-Jackson dinners," I said, "So many suckers were dying to kick in a hundred slugs, now that the Prez looks more permanent, that they couldn't all be gotten in one room. So they had one dinner at the Statler where Mr. Truman made his major speech and another at the Mayflower where Perle orated.'

Miss Reid wanted to know which I thought was better. "I figure it for a draw," I said. "The President spoke with more authority, but Perle presented the more impressive figure. Machinists Mate Kelly said there certainly had been a lot of excitement around the capital lately. "There's been all sorts of things to make life interesting," he added. "Like the President colling a name which I used to get my mouth washed out with soop and water when I said if-and the big fight over Taft-Hartley - and - but I gotta go now.

I asked him where he had to go in such a hurry, and he

"I gotta beat it over to the White House and give another medal to General Vaughan.'

Referring to a member of our craft who has just fallen off the wagon, Homer Joseph Dodge commented: "He's tapering on." Furious and forensic Sena-

Langer, of North the striding up and i on te chamber the and the learing a tirade S foreign policy. he passed a colhe o nged on gan, the great and dignified globalist. He gave Van's desk an extra hard whack-causing a 10-inch split in the wood. Langer frenquently goes

Write Away

T.V.A. Trip Planned

Editor:

May I use your "Write Away" column for an unusual purpose? The Cosmopolitan club are making arrangements for a group of their members to visit the TVA installations at Knoxville at the beginning of the spring quarter. It is hoped to leave Chapel Hill on Thursday, March 31, and return on Sunday, April 3. In inserting this letter in your column I hope that those members of the club who were not present at the meeting when the trip was arranged, and who wish to go, may be able to get in touch with me before it is too late.

Secondly, we have a problem in finding transportation. It occurred to me that some of your readers who own automobiles might like to join in the trip and thus do a service to the foreign students on the campus, none of whom possess any form of mechanical propulsion. By going in cars and pooling expenses, we hope we shall be able to keep down the cost of the trip to a reasonable minimum.

I would be glad if any interested car-owners would contact me at 105 B dormitory (phone F-403), or at any of our 4 o'clock Sunday meetings in the Horace Williams lounge in Graham memorial.

S. K. Lawry

Same Disorganized Polemics

Having profited greatly by the chastisement which Mr. Freistadt administered to me earlier this week, I approached Mr. Bill Robertson's latest opus with fear and trembling. I was all set to find in it the sincerity, the logic, the high intellectual tone which Mr. Freistadt had led me to expect in the public utterances of his cotagonists. I added no gratuitous "noes", and I gave it more than a cursory glance: I was more than ready to argue with what he said, not with what I would like him to have said.

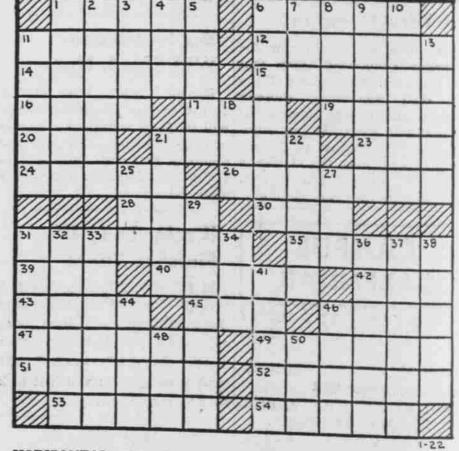

Frankly, I didn't find much that I would like him to have said. I found the same frenzied and disorganized polemics that I had found before. Except for his statement that Cardinal Mindzsenty seemed to be himself physically (and who can say exactly what that might have meant?), Mr. Robertson did not give one really relevant fact about the Mindzsenty case. What he did give us was a long string of rhetorical questions (not out-and-out statements, be it noted) about the Cardinal's behavior, all designed to give the impression that they referred to crimes which were common knowledge

This is the very attitude which always arouses a feeling of rebellion in me whenever I read Bill Robertson's columns or his more recent efforts-the bland assumption that every pronouncement made by Moscow or one of its satellites is the divinely-given truth. I myself have read things in defense of the Cardinal-that he opposed the Nazis and their anti-Semitism, that he sheltered the Jews during the Nazi occupation, that the Nazis emprisoned him for these activities. Of these claims Mr. Robertson had not a word to say, even though they were widely disseminated. He did not even deign to observe that the commercial press seemed to approve of the Cardinal's alledged opposition to the Nazis and his help to the Jews. I fail to see how anything like this could lead to "serious debates between students equally searching for the truth." And as for all that business about having "full respect for one another's sincerity." I get the impression that Mr. Robertson must consider his opponents (not to mention his readers) more simple-minded than

So in the end, all of Mr. Freistadt's excellent advice came to naught. Well, not entirely, I must admit, for I have taken a vow-I will never again misquote Bill Robertson, even knowingly. In return for this, I hope Mr. Freistadt will not accuse me any more of quoting Engels, even unknowingly. If he will look around a bit, he will find that there were philosophers before Engels as well as brave men before Agamemnon.

> Sincerely, James S. Patty

P. S. I have stocked up on salt in order to have a few grains around in case Mr. Freistadt should persist in being so generous HORIZONTAL 47 landed 1. search property uncertainly 6. embarrass 51. gazes 11. suppressed 12. straightened 52. declaimed 14. lassoing 53. germs 54. sent 16. baking telegram chamber (collog.)

17. take ishment 19. location 20 lair 21. compound ether 23. thing. in law

24. German town 26. pressers 28. anecdotes 30. petition 31 expel 35. cozy retreats 39. to the right 40. did nothing

42. cooking 43. endure

DELE SATUATED ODDEST TENS SEC UNIENT ELAPSE RAILED DEEPER OUEATE PUEASE RED HAUL PATRON Insecure SILO ETE ATON SNAP

45. went swiftly Average time of solution: 22 minutes. Dist, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. 50. silkworm

8. holds session 9. undivided 10. see-saw 11. eat away 13. apparel 18. mountain aborigine 21. boredom 22. superficial

7. high priest 25. auditory Answer to yesterday's puzzle. organ 27, born 29. accost 31. eyes 32. animals integuments 34. note in

Guido's goblin 37. journeyed

VERTICAL

1. coverings

2. matures

4. writing

5. rims

6. beats for hands

3. god of war implement

38. spirited 41. confer upon MEND AGES

46. Russian