Square Dance, Party Calls For Cleaning of 'Tin Can'

In 1938 Woollen gymnasium was completed and the Tin Can, which had been the scene of all Carolina dances, took second place to the new building both in the way of sports activities and campus parties.

The Tin Can, which is still being used for physical education classes, is receiving a special cleaning and decorating job this week however, in preparation for a square dance to be held Friday night at 8:30 under the sponsorship of the Montreat Social commission.

Since the dance is primarily a "get acquainted" party, students are urged to come without dates.

Dr. Graham Will Be Sworn In Today As North Carolina's New Senator

Leader Gets Big Sendoff Here Sunday

Audience Hears Heartfelt Talk

By Sam Whitehall

"In accepting this call to Washington," the little man with the white hair said, "I know that I have your understanding and that your prayers are going with me."

Dr. Frank Porter Graham fought hard to keep the tears back. "The most difficult decision of my life was the one to leave the place, the people and the institution which have been such a happy part of my life for over 40 years. For Mrs. Graham and myself, I thank you from the bottom of my heart for coming to our home to say goodbye to us today."

And Frank Graham looked unhappy as he said the last words he would ever utter in public as the president of the Greater University of North Carolina—the school which has become the liberal stronghold of education in the South under his leadership.

More than 1,500 students, faculty, administration members and just plain friends of the 62-year-old educator had filed into the big white house on East Franklin street to say bon voyage to Dr. Graham. At 5:45 Sunday afternoon they stood on his porch, on his lawn and overflowed onto the sidewalk to hear his last goodbye before he left for Washington to take the oath of office as a member of the United States Senate.

It had been less than a week before—last Tuesday night—when Gov. Kerr Scott had dropped the political bombshell which rocked not only the state but a great deal of the country as well, when Governor Scott had said calmly, "While I'm on my feet... I want to make the announcement that your next senator, if your executive committee is willing, is Dr. Graham."

On Sunday open houses, as the University band played "Hark the Sound" on his lawn, as student body President Jess Dedmond said, "1950—we're hoping..." and as hundreds of his students and friends stood close around Dr. Frank, a mixed feeling.

Weidman Group Will Give Show In Memorial Hall

By Charlie Gibson

A program of comic and satirical dance interpretations will be offered free to University students tonight at 8 o'clock when Charles Weidman brings his widely-celebrated theater dance company to Memorial hall under the auspices of the Student Entertainment committee.

The SEC is annually appropriated funds by the Student Legislature to bring high quality entertainment to the campus, all its presentations being admission-free to the student body. Consequently, I.D. cards will be the only entrance requirement for students tonight when the Memorial hall doors open at 7 o'clock. At that time faculty members, student wives, and townspeople will be allowed to buy tickets for 75 cents each, it has been announced by Scotty

All's Quiet (Reasonably) on the Political Front

MAYBE THE CAMPAIGN'S JUST STAYING underground, but it sure is quiet on the political front these days. In fact, the intense quiet has a lot of our local politicians slightly worried. They're beginning to wonder what's going to pop. From this corner, it looks like just about everyone is banking on getting into the run-offs, and they are just saving their energy for the final week of campaigning which will mean everything.

... but if anybody's worried about winning the first round of the fight, they'd better get on the ball. . . . Election day comes exactly one week from now.

The Student party threw a nice reception for its candidates Sunday evening in Graham Memorial. A number of people dropped in to say hello to the SP standard-bearers. . . . By the way, has anybody seen these SP questionnaires they've been passing around? Apparently just trying to get general student sentiment, the Student partys have asked a number of questions on publications, the appeal system, imports, the parking problem, and what have you. . . . Typical question: "Do you think that Tarnation is as good a humor magazine as a college student body should publish?" . . . Come on, boys, ask us a hard one. . . .

If You're A Candidate, Be There Tonight

THE ELECTION BOARD, UNDER THE CAPABLE direction of Al Winn, is throwing a little shindig for all candidates in the spring election race in Hill hall tonight. If you're a candidate for the past two years.

THE THREE SYLPHS shown above are enticing a barefoot, carefree clown in one of the satirical dance sequences to be presented tonight at 8 o'clock when Charles Weidman's theater dance group appears in Memorial hall under the auspices of the Student Entertainment committee.

Venable, SEC chairman. The program beginning promptly at 8 o'clock will consist of five sequences danced by Weidman and nine members of his company, including Peter Hamilton, Betty Osgood, Betts Lee, Felisa Conde, Carl Morris, Sherry Parker, Paula Caputo, Nick Vanoff, and Jack Ferris. All these are now-experienced students of Weidman's New York dance studio conducted between tours since 1928.

Will End Career As UNC President

By Chuck Hausar

March 29—At 10:00 a.m. Dr. Frank Porter Graham will be president of the Greater University of North Carolina.

Because at that time, on the floor of the United States Senate, he will be sworn in as new junior senator from the state of North Carolina.

Graham arrived here this morning to prepare to take the oath of office. This evening, hundreds of Tar Heels, many of them University students, arrived to view the ceremonies tomorrow.

It was only a few weeks ago that Sen. J. Melville Broughton died here of a heart attack and left the vacancy which Dr. Graham will fill. It was only one week ago that Gov. Kerr Scott, who is also in town for the ceremonies, announced Broughton's successor.

The new senator from North Carolina will be holding the first political post of his long and varied career as an educator. As he completes his oath of office, he will automatically terminate a 19-year term as president of the University of North Carolina.

In the past few years, Dr. Graham has helped draw up President Truman's civil rights program, has represented the United States in arranging a peace in Indonesia, and has helped settle an oil industry dispute, at the request of Mr. Truman.

Under the administration of the late Franklin D. Roosevelt, Graham was named vice-chairman of the NRA Consumers board, chairman of the National Advisory Council to the Cabinet Committee on Economic Security, member of the President's Committee on Education, vice-chairman of the National Defense Mediation board and member of the War Labor board, on which he served until 1945.

Dr. Graham has been serving as head of the Oak Ridge Institute for Nuclear Studies, a post which he automatically resigns along with his University presidency when he is sworn in tomorrow.

Los Angeles provost of the University of California later said that the cancellation was due to the university's rule that all lectures before its Institute of Industrial Relations must be delivered both at Los Angeles and at Berkeley. Dr. Laski has since been asked to appear on any dates between April 8 and 18 by University of California officials.
