The Daily Tar Heel

Fair and mild.

AT WORK at his Chapel Hill studio, Louis Segovia, nationally famous neo-classical sculptor, is pictured above. Segovia is presently doing a bust of Thomas Wolfe famous author and University alumnus. Segovia is known for his busts of such people as G. B. Shaw, Pope Benedict XV and Archibald Henderson. The Wolfe bust will be the first visible memorial to the Asheville writer on the campus.

Shaw Cards To Help Make Bust Of Wolfe

By Russell T. Clay
George Bernard Shaw, noted Irish playwright, will help make possible a bust of Thomas Wolfe, late Asheville author and Carolina graduate.
The sculptor will be Louis Segovia, neo-classical artist here at the University, but Shaw will unknowingly and indirectly assist for the quality of the Wolfe bust will be dependent to a great extent on the sale of picture postal cards of a bust of Shaw sculptured by Segovia. The sale will begin in a day or two.
Eighty per cent of the proceeds from this and subsequent issues of cards will go into the making of the Wolfe bust, while the remaining 20 per cent will be donated to some department of the school.
The Shaw card is to Segovia's knowledge the first issued of the famous author and wit. Its beauty lies in the simple and naked relief of the head—one part of the body which is a study in itself.

Art postal cards are designed to further art appreciation and to provide the artist with necessary materials. The price is 10 cents, and Segovia will autograph any card from 12 o'clock to 7 o'clock daily in his studio, Quonset 26.
Segovia's decision to do a bust of Wolfe was prompted by a recent suggestion of Dr. Mary C. Engstrom of the English department.
Dr. Engstrom said that Wolfe is apparently forgetting Wolfe, one of its most famous alumni, and made specific recommendations for correcting the negligence. The recently formed Tom Wolfe club will aid in this program.
Except for an obscure picture or two, there is no indication on campus that Wolfe ever went to school here. An enormous collection of Wolfe manuscripts and other material, the gift of William B. Wisdom, wealthy Texan, now rests in the Houghton Rare Book Library at Harvard University.
It is somewhat ironical that in Wolfe's last novel is found the following passage: "This is man, . . . he lets his poets die." Wolfe admirers are determined to prove otherwise, and the Segovia portraithead should provide an incentive to a worthy project.
For an artist who has captured likenesses of such men as Pope Benedict XV (completed a few years after the Pope's death), George Bernard Shaw, and Archibald Henderson, Segovia is both grateful and unassuming.
The Shaw Portrait-head, the sculptor's second work, was ordered by Brentano's, New York City, in 1933, to sponsor the sale of a biography of Shaw written by Dr. Archibald Henderson, retired Kenan professor of mathematics. It is now owned by the University, and is the gift of Dr. Henderson.
Upon receipt of the Shaw bust, Dr. Henderson wrote Segovia, "One might well place it between Jacob Epstein and Jo Davidson and recognize at once many of the same traits, features, and characteristics."
Dr. Henderson himself was Segovia's third subject. "Archibald Henderson: The New Criticism," a biography now on sale in a limited first edition and edited by Samuel S. Hood, contains an illustration of the Henderson bust.
Senator Frank P. Graham, Dr. Henderson, Chancellor R. B. House, Dr. S. E. Leavitt, Wolfe, and Norman Cordon will be members of a series of Segovia busts which will eventually include as many as 10 or 12 figures.

Acquaint Meet Scheduled by Y Tomorrow Night

The third and final meeting in the series that the YMCA has been holding to acquaint members and future members with the Y will be held tomorrow night at 7 o'clock in the Y building.
In the previous two meetings only about 60 students have been present. Bob Barrus, associate secretary of the YMCA, said that he hoped that many more will be present at the Monday night meeting. The meeting aren't just for Y members, he said, they are also for persons who are interested and wish to know what the Y is and what it is doing. From the people who attend these meetings, whether they are present members or not, will be drawn the leaders in the Y for the coming year, Barrus said.
At the first meeting the group discussed background and functions of the YMCA, what it has done in the past, and what it is doing now on the campus.
The second meeting was taken up with an evaluation and a discussion of the function of this year's program.
At tomorrow's meeting an outline will be drawn up for the coming year's program in light of the past two discussions and in relation to interests of those who will be taking part in the program.

CPU to Discuss New Pact Tonight

The Carolina Political Union will discuss the Atlantic Pact tonight at its regular Sunday night meeting at 8 o'clock in the Grail Room of Graham Memorial. Donald Whitehead, professor of political science has been invited to participate in the discussion. Hans Freistadt has also been invited to present his views on the subject. All members and interested persons are urged to attend.
Herb Alexander, chairman of the CPU, announced that there are several vacancies for membership in the Union and that those interested can obtain applications at the meeting Sunday night or at the YMCA desk.

Chicago Professor Philologists' Guest

The Philological Club will meet with the Erasmus club of Duke, tomorrow at 8 o'clock in the University house, 403 West Chapel Hill street in Durham, George R. Coffman, president, announced yesterday.
At the meeting Prof. Tom P. Cross, professor of English and comparative literature at the University of Chicago, will read a paper on "Some Neglected Aspects of Welsh Romanticism."

Car Collision Injures Eight In Carrboro

Law Students Are Among Casualties

A two-car collision at the junction of the Hillsboro and Greensboro highways in west Carrboro injured eight persons last night. Two of those hurt were University law students.
The accident occurred at 8:05 when a car supposedly driven by law student Horton Rountree ran head-on into another driven by Grady Austin, a Negro. Rountree was coming out of the Hillsboro highway, while Austin was coming from Carrboro. Both cars were severely damaged.
In Rountree's auto were his wife, young child, and law student Ernest Parker and his fiancée. There were four in Austin's car.
Included among those injured were Rountree, who was admitted to the University infirmary for serious leg bruises; Mrs. Rountree, treated for head and foot injuries; Parker, who had lacerations, Hetter Edwards, Negro, treated for facial lacerations, Austin and another unidentified Negro for minor injuries.
Parker's fiancée, who was also unidentified, was taken to Watt's hospital in Durham to be treated for severe leg bruises. The Rountree infant was not injured.
Carrboro police officer J. H. Haithecock investigated the wreck. No charges were filed last night, although Haithecock and other witnesses said the car which Rountree was allegedly driving failed to stop for the sign at the junction.

Big Crowd Packs UVA House Party

The largest crowd this quarter jammed the University Veterans association clubhouse Friday night at the "On-the-House-Party" sponsored by the UVA.
Everything at the concession booth, including ice cream, cokes, and cigarettes was given to members and their guests without charge.
Entertainment was furnished by the KA Kadooleers band composed of Bob Lindsay, on the trombone; Vernon Suit, piano; Bob Kirby, drum; Art Jones, guitar; Harry Northrup, tub bass; John Cooper, saxophone; and Gil Beam, trumpet.
Short skits were presented by Pete Strader and John W. McReynolds. Grey Adams served as master of ceremonies.

Cosmopolitan Club To Hear Gibbian

Victor Gibbian, graduate student in the political science department, will address the Cosmopolitan club at its regular meeting this afternoon.
Gibbian will speak on the Virgin Islands. He is a native of the islands and well-versed in their culture.
The meeting will begin at 4 o'clock and the public is invited to attend. It will be held in Graham Memorial.

Naval Reserve Unit To Hear Henderson

Lt. R. E. Simpson, USNR, announced yesterday that the Naval Reserve Air Unit will hold its regular meeting tomorrow night at 7:30 in the NROTC annex.
Lt. H. K. Henderson will give an address on naval fleet operations and organizational planning and aviation will also be discussed.

Expense Accounts Are Due Monday

All candidates in the runoff election Tuesday must turn in their expense accounts by 6 o'clock Monday night, Al Winn, chairman of the Elections board said yesterday.
Coeds should turn in their accounts to Eleanor DeGrange at 110 Smith and men should submit theirs to Winn in 8 Steele, the chairman said.

TED YOUNG, candidate for at-large seat on the Student Council in Tuesday's run-off. Young, from Florence, S. C., led the field of nine candidates in last Tuesday's general election.

Miller Is Named To Presidency Of Wolfe Club

Blanton Miller, rising senior from Boone, was named temporary chairman of the Thomas Wolfe club at an organizational meeting Thursday night.
Dr. Mary Claire Engstrom, advisor to the club, discussed recent discoveries which she had made in Chapel Hill on Wolfe's life here. She pointed out that a "Thomas Wolfe Memorial Prize in Creative Writing" was available. The prize is awarded, however, to students who have shown unusual ability in the field.
Dr. Engstrom also discussed plans for a Wolfe exhibit which has been planned in the Library next month in connection with the twentieth anniversary of the publishing of "Look Homeward, Angel," Wolfe's first novel.

The theme of the exhibition will be built around the author's years in Chapel Hill.
Louis Segovia, famous sculptor who is preparing to begin work on a bust of Wolfe, was present and discussed his plans for the work.
The group decided to meet twice a month on Wednesday nights. The programs will begin at 9 o'clock. Plans are being made at the present time to invite several Wolfe scholars throughout the state to speak here. Any interested students, faculty members or townspeople are invited to attend the club meetings.

Democrat Elections To Be Held Monday

The election of Young Democrats club officers which was scheduled for last week will be held in Graham Memorial Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Membership in the club is not required for attendance.

Political Front with Charles McCorkle

THINGS DON'T LOOK SO GOOD FOR the Student party in Tuesday's run-off election. Not only has the Campus party swung its support behind Dick Gordon and Ted Leonard for the presidency and vice-presidency, but the University party, through Leonard has promised to support CP candidates against SP candidates for legislature seats, where the UP has no one in the race.
So Bill Mackie and Al Lowenstein are now running on the SP ticket against Gordon and Leonard as doubly-endorsed candidates. And we all know what happened to John Sanders when he tried to buck a UP-CP combination in his race for secretary-treasurer.
Mackie, it is true, ran first in the first balloting, and Lowenstein didn't run too far behind Leonard. So what the SP boys have to figure out is how many votes they can pick up between now and day after tomorrow, and how many of the Campus party votes will actually go to the UP candidates. The vote in the CP meeting to support Gordon and Leonard was 15 to 9—hardly a true representation of the whole Campus party. And as we mentioned yesterday, at least one member of the party resigned after the meeting and a number more refused to back the UP candidates.
The weather on Tuesday may be the deciding factor in the election. If we have another rainy day like we did last week, the UP stands a good chance of sweeping the election. If it is a clear, warm day, you can depend on a fight at the polls, because there will probably be a large turn-out, even though the vote for run-offs around here has a reputation for being exceedingly small.
You'll know, at any rate, by the time the Daily Tar Heel goes to press Tuesday night or Wednesday morning, just who will be the next president and vice-president of the student body.

Musi cProgram Slated Tonight Under Stars

Group Plans Sings On Alternate Weeks

Hoping for fair weather, the University club will present "Music Under the Stars," an informal program of recorded popular and classical music, from 9 to 11 o'clock tonight in the Forest theater.
Originally scheduled to begin last Sunday night, the program had to be cancelled because of rain. If it rains tonight there will be no program.
The program is a revival of the same type of entertainment which attained popularity here before the war. At that time the programs were presented in Kenan stadium, and were one of the most popular events of the spring and summer season.
Phil Couch, who last year managed recorded concerts in Graham Memorial, will play the records which are drawn from his own collection and that of Graham Memorial, co-sponsor of the program.
Tonight's program will include recordings of works by such classical composers as Wagner, Tchaikovsky, Ravel, Debussy, Ibert, and Mozart. Along the popular vein, there will be Kostelanetz arrangements of works by George Gershwin and Richard Rodgers.
Next week, and every alternate Sunday, The University club will present the "Campus Sing," a program of community sings, and skits presented by various campus organizations.

Mumford Slated To Address UWF

Lewis Mumford, who was recently appointed a member of the National Advisory board of the United World Federalists, will be a guest at a luncheon meeting of the UWF tomorrow at 1 o'clock in the Carolina Inn, Fred Weaver, president, said yesterday.
Mumford has been engaged for lectures at the University on May 3 by the Chapel Hill chapter of the United World Federalists. At that time he will discuss "The Foundations of World Order."

Tarnation Editor Desires Staffers

Newly-elected Tarnation editor Tom Kerr put out a call for new staff members yesterday.
Kerr asked that all those who are interested in working on the humor magazine report to the publication's office downstairs in Graham Memorial tomorrow between 3 and 5 o'clock.

Training Program Planned By Coeds

NEW YORK STATE supreme court justice Meier Steinbrink presents President Truman with America's Legacy medalion at a White House ceremony. The chief executive received the award for his program "to secure full civil right for all his countrymen." Justice Steinbrink is chairman of B'nai B'rith's Anti-Defamation league.

Life Features Picture Story On Dr. Graham

Highlighting the spread is an attractive picture of former President Frank P. Graham of the University, and Mrs. Graham, seated on the steps of their home bidding students goodbye just before departing for Washington.
Appearing in The Week's Events section of the magazine, the photos include a view of the large number of students and townspeople who attended the farewell Sunday afternoon open house at the Grahams, and a photograph of the late Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Graham with their son the day he became president of the University in 1939. The last picture in the feature includes Senator Clyde R. Hoey, who is shown greeting his new colleague in the Senate.
The Life article notes that North Carolina has often been called the South's most liberal state. "Much of its liberalism has come about directly through the impact of Frank Graham, or indirectly through his students," the story continues.
Also listed are a number of Senator Graham's achievements, including his work during the early 20's to get North Carolina's workmen's compensation law, and his accomplishments as a member of Roosevelt's War Labor board and Truman's Civil Rights commission.

GUSC Will Discuss Graham Successor

The Greater University Student Council, meeting here Sunday afternoon, will discuss possibilities for a successor to Dr. Frank Graham as president of the Greater University.

Staff Meeting

An important meeting of all members of the Daily Tar Heel news staff will be held Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the DTH news office, incoming editor Dick Jenrette said yesterday.
Jenrette stated that any persons interested in working on the daily newspaper who are not present members of the staff are also urged to attend the meeting. New assignments for the remainder of the spring quarter and other arrangements will be discussed.

Inauguration Of New Officers To Be Included

The three-day coed leadership training program, which includes some joint meetings with a newly instituted men's program, will begin Monday, April 18, Patsy McNutt, chairman on the woman's program, said yesterday.
The unique feature of this year's program will be the banquet for all campus officers scheduled for April 20, at 6:30 o'clock in the Carolina Inn. Fred Weaver, dean of men, will be guest speaker. This event will end the leadership training program of both the men and women divisions.
The campus-wide installation of student government officers will be held Tuesday night, April 19, at 9 o'clock in Gerrard hall.
The opening meeting of the coed program will include an address on "Leadership-Fellowship" by Dorothy McCuskey, of the education department. After Miss McCuskey's talk, Al Lowenstein will discuss the general aspects of student government. Monday's program also includes short talks by Jess Dedmond and Emily Baker.

Three commission groups on "Presidents and Vice-Presidents," "Secretaries," and "Treasurers" will close the activities for Monday. Most of the training program will be held in the Main lounge of Graham Memorial.
Beginning at 7 o'clock on Tuesday April 19, the program will get under way with a talk by Randy Hamilton, instructor in the Political Science department, on parliamentary procedure. His talk will be in the Main lounge of Graham Memorial.
Six commission groups have scheduled discussions for 7:30 Tuesday night. These include study groups on social chairmen, publicity chairmen, coed senate, legislature, women's council and house council.

The annual leadership training program is sponsored by the Coed senate. Jess Dedmond is chairman of the men's program. Approximately 80 coeds are expected to attend the meetings.

Well Searchers Find Dress Part

SAN MARINO, Calif., April 9 (UP)—A rescuer seeking three-year-old Kathy Fiscus, trapped all night and half a day in a 120-foot abandoned well, today reported sighting what he believed was the pink "party" dress she wore when she tumbled in during play late Friday.
O. A. Kelly, working in a tunnel at the 85-foot level of the shaft, reported sighting the frock 10 feet below the spot where he and an assistant had torn a hole into the corroded iron casing of the 14-inch-wide well.
He said he could not be positive it was the dress.
At the same time the supervisor of the rescue crew, Engineer Raymond Hill, announced the 72-foot deep open pit from which Kelly tunneled into the pipe had to be abandoned.
Rescuers, with the aid of hard-rock equipment, turned back to a 65-foot hole, 30-inches wide, that had been drilled on another side of the well shaft and abandoned when the going got tough early today in hard shale rock.
The rescue crew, with thousands looking on, immediately began to drill through the hard rock. Hill said the men probably would not get to the 95-foot level until 5 or 6 p.m. (pst), at which time little Kathy would have been 24 hours in the shaft that may be her tomb.
The pink dress was Kathy's best, embroidered in white across the front. She wore it when she went with her mother yesterday to meet her aunt, Mrs. Hamilton Lyon, of Chula Vista, Calif., and her cousins, Staley, 10 and Gus, 5, when they arrived by train for a visit.
