Have you cast your ballot for your "Miss Fashion Plate of 1949"?

Time is running out! Have you cast your vote for your very own "Miss Fashion Plate of 1949"?

If not, you'd better clip your ballot now! This Revlon contest closes midnight, May 6th.

Here's a review of the prizes! First! The candidate you pick will have a chance at the Grand Prize (one week expense-free trip to New York plus a Revlon make-up course) ... or one of the 9 runner-up prizes ... an opportunity to represent Revlon on campus next fall, plus a year's supply of cosmetics.

Choose your candidate on 4 counts only ... grooming, dress, poise, and personality.

Clip your ballot today! Drop in ballot box in this newspaper office or other locations on campus. There's a panel of beauty authorities all ready and waiting to see if your candidate will be the national Grand Prize winner.

I nominate..... for "MISS FASHION PLATE of 1949," a contest sponsored by the Revlon Products Corporation.

Crowds Jam Town, See Woman Bleed

KONNERSREUTH, Germany, April 15.—(UP)—The streets of this tiny Bavarian farming village were jammed today with thousands of persons who came to file by the bedside of a 51-year-old peasant woman who suffers the physical agony of Christ on the cross every Good Friday.

Police lines kept order as inside her stucco cottage. Therese Neumann sat bolt upright in her bed from early morning until mid-afternoon, bleeding profusely from her eyes, wrists, feet and head. The phenomenon has occurred every Good Friday since 1926 and has baffled medical authorities.

Thousands of the devout and the curious, including nearly as many Americans as Germans, waited in line for hours to see this woman who is regarded by the townfolk as a saint.

Therese wore a white shroud which, like the bed linen, was blood-soaked. She waved her arms gently and chanted unintelligibly in a low monotone, oblivious to the throngs who filed by and the hubbub of those who waited outside in the streets.

Father Franz Nabor, Paris priest who has had Therese under his care for 20 years, was at her bedside. He refused to allow pictures to be taken inside the room.

Neighbors say Therese, a tailor's daughter, has suffered the agonies of the crucifixion every Good Friday for 23 years. It dates from 1926, they say, when she had her first vision of Christ kneeling on a mountainside. At that moment she felt blood pouring from her heart, and later from her hands and feet. The following year she also bled from her head and eyes.

Village folk say Therese has lived for the past 23 years on the wafers she receives at daily communion.

They say she falls into a coma each Good Friday and suffers until 3 P. M. the hour when Christ died. Then she slowly re-awakens and by Saturday night is completely recovered.

She goes to Holy Communion on Sunday and by Monday is again behind a plowhorse in the fields.

I would prefer that my own region be represented, but according to the terms of the invitation, I would next have to go to Texas or Colorado for other groups, if my participants from the Smoky Mountain region could not go.

"I hope some sponsoring concern or organization will see the advertising value in flying 25 mountaineers to Italy and return in order that our State and nation could be represented officially at the festival. I would almost be willing to learn to smoke cigarettes or use some unusual type of tooth paste or chewing gum to make the trip," he said.
Back from Washington where he recorded 300 ballads for the Library of Congress, Lunsford is now making preparations for the second annual Carolina Folk Festival in Kenan Stadium here June 9, 10, 11.
