NBC To Carry Planetarium Story Monday

Morehead, Graham,
Dryselius to Speak

Tomorrow evening at 7:30 the National Broadcasting Company will carry a program originating in the auditorium of the newly-erected Morehead Planetarium.

Featured speakers on the coast-to-coast broadcast will be John Motley Morehead, donor of the Planetarium; Senator Frank P. Graham, former president of the University; and Gunnar Dryselius, Swedish Consul to the United States.

Morehead is in Chapel Hill for the formal dedication of the Morehead Building on Tuesday, May 10. He will speak on tomorrow's broadcast about the purpose of his gift and the establishment of the John Motley Morehead Foundation with its provisions for endowed scholarships.

A graduate of the class of 1891 at the University, Morehead originated the plan for the Morehead Building and Planetarium in February of 1946, because, "It is my ardent desire to perpetuate, as far as possible, the great service which the University has rendered to the State of North Carolina, the South, and the Nation."

The radio broadcast can be heard on any of the NBC stations.

The Gastonia-Carolina Club has scheduled its annual "empty the treasurer meeting" Tuesday night at 7 o'clock in the Grail Room, Graham Memorial. President Bruce Sanborn urged all members to attend the meeting, as it is important to get the Club's books straight before the end of the year.

Sanborn also said that plans for the summer activities in Gastonia to be sponsored by the club would be made. The group will discuss a number of amendments to the Gastonia-Carolina Club's constitution. "This business must be taken care of as soon as possible," the President said.

YDC Mass Rally Set For Amendment Vote

Also at the rally will be H. Clifton Blue, President of the State YDC, to speak on the relation of the campus YDC to the state organization.

The group will also be asked to vote on a proposed amendment to the chapter's constitution. If passed, the amendment will allow student wives and University staff members to have membership in the organization.

Free ice cream will be served and Stormy Weathers and his band will furnish music before and after the speakers.

Claudia Lee Chosen Miss Modern Venus

Alpha Delta Pi Takes First Place
At Annual Sigma Chi Derby in Kenan

It was ladies' day in Kenan Stadium yesterday afternoon for the 300 spectators who sat through three hours of feminine horseplay at the fifth Annual Sigma Chi Derby to see the feature event of the day, the naming of Miss Claudia Lee, Alpha Delta Pi senior from Marshallville, Ga., as "Miss Modern Venus" of 1949. Varsity footballer Bill Macekjo presented the gold loving cup to Miss Lee.

Miss Betty Smith, junior from Charleston, W. Va., and Miss Patty Ann Frizzell, junior from Bristol, Tenn., both sisters in Delta Delta Delta, took second and third places respectively.

Nineteen beauties were entered by the five sororities for the title. Judges Roy Armstrong, Norm Sper and Bert Lyle of Duke University, deliberated for nearly 10 minutes before eliminating all but 10 entrants. After further deliberation, the field was narrowed to the three finalists.

The Alpha Delta Pi sorority won first place for accumulating the most points in the seven featured events of the derby, thereby gaining the gold cup for permanent possession. ADPI had won the cup for two years previously. Delta Delta Delta and Chi Omega placed second and third.

ADPI won in the first of the afternoon's events, "Adams Apple or Coed's Orange." Tri-Delt and Alpha Gamma ran second and third. The Chi O's took first and tied with Tri-Delt in the "Egg and I" egg-throwing contest. "Cheek to Cheek," actually a back to back Siamese race, was won by Tri-Delt. ADPI and Chi O placed and showed respectively.

"April Showers," a surprise event which was kept secret until the moment of the event, was a hit-the-bull's-eye type affair, in which a balloon filled with water tumbled upon "Rubberhead" Joe Augustine when the bull's eye was hit. ADPI and Chi O took first and second places.

The "Coed's Decathlon" a hilarious combination of 10 "tests of skill," coke chug-a-lugging, pie eating, sack race and four legged race among them, again saw ADPI the winner. Chi O and Tri-Delt ran second and third.

Tri-Delt won the sixth event, the sorority skit, with the presentation of "Pleeping Cutie," a takeoff on the classic "Sleeping Beauty."

The Sigma Chi weekend continued last night with the Sigma Chi Sweetheart Ball and selection of Miss Mike Merker as the "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi."

Quarterly Will Begin New Subscription Drive

Moose Expresses Hope That Magazine
Can Be Self-Sufficient By Next Year

The Carolina Quarterly, campus literary magazine, completing its first successful year of operation, will begin taking subscriptions tomorrow for the coming year announced Editor Roy C. Moose.

A booth will be set up at the registration line for the convenience of all persons pre-registering for the summer quarter.

Subscriptions may also be mailed to the Quarterly at Box 1117, Chapel Hill.

"We are especially anxious to contact the graduating seniors for subscriptions at once in order that they may not miss the issues of the Quarterly for the coming year," Moose said.

Subscription rates for the coming year have been set at $1.50, an increase designed to make the Quarterly completely self-supporting in the future. Moose stated that increased costs of printing and mailing along with the failure of the budget to subsidize the Quarterly have necessitated the added cost. Most of the increase is to be used to expand the size of the publication.

"We are going to 80 pages in the spring and hope eventually to become in size and content a quarterly on par with the Yale Review and the Virginia Quarterly as funds become available," Moose added.

During the past year the Quarterly has published works by such outstanding writers and authorities as Paul Green, Dr. Archibald Henderson, Richard Walsler, Walter Pritchard Eaton, Dr. Hardin Craig, Charles Eaton, and Agatha Boyd Adams.

Contracted to appear in future issues are articles by Norman Cordon, Dr. I. G. Greer, Phillips Russell, Dr. J. B. Rhine, Hugh Holman, and Dr. Wallace Caldwell.

Also appearing in the Quarterly have been such outstanding student writers as Frank Groseclose, John Forest West, Charles Brockman, Nancy Murphy, Ruth Wolfe, Betty Peirson, Nancy Norman, Lois Latham, John Lawler, and Pinckney Williams.

Critics throughout the state and nation have hailed the Quarterly's progress in its first year of publication. Salutes have been received from the Saturday Review of Literature, Don Shoemaker, editor of the Asheville Citizen, Sam Ragan, and Kemp D. Battle.

Former Professor Here Is Awed By The University's Great Growth

By R. W. Madry

Back in Chapel Hill this week for his first visit of any length since he resigned as head of the University Journalism Department 23 years ago to join the editorial staff of the Baltimore Evening Sun, Gerald Johnson, noted author and newspaperman, expressed amazement at the growth of University and town since his faculty days.

"Chapel Hill is bigger, handsomer, and commoner, but I hate to see many of the beautiful views blocked off by the new buildings, many of them of a temporary nature, constructed in recent years," said Author Johnson.

"When I first came here 23 years ago the University was as poor as Job's turkey but very proud. There was so much land available that you could throw away 10 acres of building sites and still have plenty left. Things are so crowded now that about the only unobstructed view is

New Musical Slated For Return Showing

'Merrily We Love' Hit Scene Stars
Levinson, Gates, Faust, and Hillman

Plans have been completed for a return showing tomorrow night of the Sound and Fury musical "Merrily We Love," according to an announcement made yesterday by Mark Barker, president of the organization.

The enthusiasm shown by those attending the show Thursday and Friday nights plus the fact that many persons who have expressed a desire to see the performance but who had made plans to be absent from town due to Mother's Day, were the reasons given by Barker for the repeat performance.

Particular interest has been shown in the musical score written for the show by Frank Matthews. Matthews, a song writer with ten years composing experience behind him, chose 27 of what he considered his best numbers for the score.

The vocal talents of Lee Noll, Jimmy Faust, Betty Lokey and particularly Jean Hillman have also attracted wide spread attention on campus since the show opened Thursday night. The most popular scene in the entire show is the scene taken in the dressing room of the chorus girls. In this scene Gladys Levinson, Anita Gates, Jimmy Faust and Jean Hillman have an opportunity to give the audience the full benefit of their interpretation of what they think a chorus girl goes through in her struggle for stardom on the great whiteway. "I Wanted to Sing in the Opera" sung by Jean Hillman and backed by the entire chorus line drew certain calls at each of the two performances.

Tickets for the return engagement will remain on sale in the "V" lobby, Carolina Sport Shop and with members of the cast through Monday afternoon before the show reopens.

Featured on the program will be their unusual interpretation of Negro spirituals and their renditions especially popular with many audiences.

Tonight's program is part of Graham Memorial's entertainment series, which has included in the past string quartets from the University and surrounding colleges, the Latin American Trio, and the Deep River Singers.

The programs are free to all students and townspeople. Bob Watson, director of the student union, explained that they are held in the Main Lounge in order to provide a comfortable, informal atmosphere for enjoyment.

Next Sunday evening Graham Memorial will sponsor a concert by Johnny Satterfield and his orchestra featuring both popular and original numbers. Friday night there will be a dance in the Main Lounge with music by Stormy Weathers and his orchestra. The affair will include a floor show and radio broadcast.

Red Proposals To Be Blocked At Paris Meet

WASHINGTON, May 7—(UP)—The United States will reject flatly any Soviet proposals for quick withdrawal of occupation troops from Germany, a high American diplomat said today.

He disclosed that the State Department is drafting counter-proposals to be ready in event the Soviets make such a demand at the Paris meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers. He said the United States is still committed to a long-term occupation policy.

"This view was regarded as authoritative since this official is one of Secretary of State Dean Acheson's top advisers. He is certain to be a member of the United Nations delegation at the Paris Big Four meeting and is currently engaged in drafting American strategy for that meeting.

There has been evidence from behind the iron curtain that Soviet strategy at Paris will be directed toward winning support of German Nationalists, with a view to wrecking western plans for a west-German state, and that this strategy will hinge on a proposal to withdraw all occupation forces.

"This official said the United States is confident that any such Soviet plan will fail. He said that, in the first place, it would align western European nations, notably France, even closer with the U. S. viewpoint because of their fears or renewed German aggression.

Secondly, he said, "a lot of Germans don't want it (U. S. troop withdrawal). They know Russia, they don't trust her, and they value the protection of our forces."

"This official warned that "we do not expect an overall solution of the German problem to emerge from the Paris meeting."

"The German problem, like the poor, will be with us for a long time," he added.

Top State Department brains are working up "position" papers on a multitude of German issues. These "positions" will be "harmonized" with British and French views at preliminary three-power talks in Paris before the ministers start meeting.

The State Department announced today that ambassador-at-large Philip C. Jessup and department counselor Charles Bohlen will leave Washington for this preliminary meeting before the end of next week. It is anticipated that the three power conversations will last at least a week.

The diplomatic informant made it clear that the United States is approaching the four-power talks with extreme caution. He said that in the lifting of the Berlin blockade, "We won a battle."

Now, he said, "The main idea is to avoid losing a campaign."

He said that while Acheson has set no "deadline" for conclusion of the Paris meeting, "still we feel that by June 15 we should know where we stand" and whether it will be worthwhile to continue the talks.

"Mr. Acheson cannot afford to remain away from Washington too long," he said.

This official denied reports that the United States will propose a new separate currency for Berlin when the involved Berlin currency problem is taken up by the foreign ministers.
