

Parker Requests All Mask Earners To Check Points

John W. Parker, Business Manager of the Carolina Playmakers, asked yesterday that all Playmakers who expect to earn a mask this year to stop by his office in Swain Hall as soon as possible to check their point credits.

The pins will then be ordered for the Capers on Saturday, May 28, when Playmaker awards will be handed out.

DEMURELY GARBED in a long-sleeved black lace dress and veil, Princess Margaret Rose of Great Britain is escorted to a twenty minute private audience with Pope Pius XII in his personal library at Vatican City. It was the first meeting of Britain's royalty with the Pontiff in 26 years. The 18-year-old princess made the visit despite protests from Protestant organizations throughout England.

AROTC Unit Is Taken Into Military Society

The Scabbard and Blade fraternity, an organization of military students at Universities and colleges throughout the United States, has granted the Air ROTC unit at the University a charter to organize a chapter here.

John B. L'Engle, 5th Corps area inspector for Scabbard and Blade will arrive from Florida this morning to hold initiation ceremonies for the 10 charter members of the University chapter.

A delegation from the Scabbard and Blade chapter at North Carolina State College, led by Capt. Clyde W. Moore, will be in Chapel Hill this afternoon at 3 o'clock to help with the initiation and installation ceremonies. Formal installation ceremonies will take place tonight at 7 o'clock in Roland Parker lounge of Graham Memorial.

A petition for a chapter at the University was made to the national organization of Scabbard and Blade on June 5, 1948. The application had to be approved by 85 Universities and colleges where chapters are organized. The application was also approved by Chancellor House, for the University; Jesse Dedmond, student body president in 1948; Col. Bryon R. Switzer, commander of the unit; and Capt. Francis S. Holmes, public information officer for the unit.

The 10 charter members to be initiated into the organization at tonight's ceremony are: Paul J. English, Robert M. McAllister, Lester P. Martin, James W. Geigler, Robert A. Gray, John D. Brown, James H. Spears, John D. Greene, Harold MacP. Shaw, Jr., and Albert F. Howell.

Slightly baffled at what the worker told him about a boy being on the roof, he used the special Marshall technique on the elevator and raced upstairs where Louise was wishing she had never even heard of the Morehead Building.

The rescue was made in short order, and the two adventure-seekers were taken on a complete tour of the building to help them forget the episode.

The moral of this story is don't explore the Morehead Building unless you're immune to claustrophobia, for the spacious building isn't spacious on every floor.

Eminent Scholar To Lecture Here On Three Nights

Dr. Kemp Malone, eminent scholar and the head of the English Department at The Johns Hopkins University, will give three lectures on campus next week. Dr. Norman Eliason of the English Department said today.

The public lectures on Chaucer's Pilgrims will be held at Gerrard Hall on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings at 8 o'clock.

In the literary field Dr. Malone is best acquainted to graduate and undergraduate students in English with his "History of Old English Literature," published as the first part of the "Literary History of England" and in Germanic philology he has published "The Literary History of Hamlet."

Among his other accomplishments and distinctions is his helping edit the new "American College Dictionary" and as a poet he is the author of "The Dodo and the Camel" and a number of shorter poems.

In 1936 Dr. Malone was awarded a Litt. D. by Emory University, in 1946 he was decorated by the Danish government, and in March of this year he was knighted by the Republic of Iceland, making him the third American entitled to wear the insignia of the Order of the Iceland Falcon.

The scholar received his B.A. from Chicago University in 1919. In addition to these degrees he has studied at the University of Copenhagen, University of Iceland and Princeton. His teaching career includes one year in the German Department at Cornell, three years in the English Department at the University of Minnesota and the past 25 years at The Johns Hopkins University.

(Continued from page 3) game and Roddey then won his service, but it was too late and Carolina won the set, 6-3.

That was the score of the other two cantos with Keesler dishing out his twisting service for four of the six wins.

The other semifinal match featured two pairs of William and Mary netters, Kovaleski and Atwater versus Bill Ozenberger and Bob Galloway. The score turned in by the players was 6-4, 7-5, 6-4, favor of the former team.

Taylor Eliminated Taylor, the only Tar Heel to survive the first day's play was eliminated in the quarter-finals yesterday morning by Atwater, 6-3, 6-4.

With matches being played all day, Seixas must have set some sort of a record, for the Carolina captain played a total of 95 games, singles and doubles.

The summaries: Singles Third round: McMasters (Duke) defeated Cheennault (W&M), 6-4, 2-6, 6-2 (match started Thursday and completed yesterday).

Quarter-finals: Seixas (C) defeated Keesler (Dav.), 6-2, 6-3; Atwater (W&M) defeated Taylor (C), 6-3, 6-4; Kovaleski (W&M) defeated McMasters (Duke), 6-0, 6-0; Roddey (Dav.) defeated Galloway (W&M), 6-1, 6-1.

Semifinals: Seixas (C) defeated Atwater (W&M), 6-2, 6-4, 6-3; Kovaleski (W&M) defeated Roddey (Dav.), 6-1, 6-1.

Doubles Quarterfinals: Ozenberger-Galloway (W&M) defeated Hicks-McMasters (Duke), 6-3, 3-6, 6-2; Seixas-Taylor (C) defeated Cole-Cheennault (W&M), 6-1, 6-1; Keesler-Roddey (Dav.) defeated Riechler-Wilder (C), 6-3, 6-1; Kovaleski-Atwater (W&M) defeated Taylor-Warmath (Duke), 6-0, 6-4.

Semifinals: Kovaleski-Atwater (W&M) defeated Ozenberger-Galloway (W&M), 6-4, 7-5, 6-4; Seixas-Taylor (C) defeated Keesler-Roddey (Dav.), 6-3, 6-3, 6-3.

Colonial Stores Announce Plans For Training Men

The Colonial Stores recently announced a plan for recruiting and training young men who desire to go into the retail grocery business, Joe Galloway, director of Placement Service, said yesterday.

A representative from the Company will be here Monday, May 23, to interview students who are interested in the work. A group meeting of the entire group is scheduled for that day, followed by individual interviews.

The plan is to take college men for summer work between their sophomore and junior years, and give the impractical work experience and training directed toward store management and merchandising. Upon graduation, the trainee would again be placed in a retail store and, with six months of experience behind him, should be prepared for promotion to Assistant Store Department Manager within a few months.

Candidates selected will work in a retail store near their home. Careful consideration will be given to interest, scholastic record, extra-curricular activities, and personality.

Sophomores who are interested should contact Placement Office, 209 South Building, to receive further information and an appointment with a representative of the Company.

Air ROTC Meeting To Be Held Tonight
