

The Daily Tar Heel

LARRY PEARCE, son of Metropolitan Opera star Jan Pearce, is shown as he appears in the Playmakers production of "The Merchant of Venice." The play will be given in the Forest Theater this Friday, Saturday and Sunday at 8:30.

University Is Featured In Holiday Mag Article

The University of North Carolina is featured in the June issue of Holiday as the institution which has earned Chapel Hill the label "Capital of the Southern Mind." The issue will go on sale here tomorrow.

A 4800-word article, written by Jonathan Daniels, describes the University as "a place with an ardor for romance and for reform." Even during Civil War days, says Holiday, the University's combination of "high ideas and hilarity" brought it the next-to-largest student enrollment in the country.

The article points out that the University's purpose is people and not merely students:

"Chapel Hill, with a new four-year medical school, will be the teaching center of a state health and hospital program adopted in a ballyhoo campaign in which alumnus Kay Kyser helped sell the state's health like his sponsor's flour. Its Institute of Government today provides study courses in working democracy for politicians and small officeholders from court clerks to cops. Institutes are held for and by bankers, newspaper publishers and labor organizers. A new, well-heeled Business Foundation is providing funds for training young Southern business executives."

Eighteen illustrations accompany the Chapel Hill article, among them photographs of "Wyn Court, the Old Well, South Building, Manning Hall, and Lovers Lane; The Carolina Playmakers, the student legislature, a creative writing class outdoors, and a Sadie Hawkins Day celebration.

Employees to Be Morehead Guests

Today and tomorrow University employees will be guests of the University at a Planetarium show, "Let There Be Light," Controller W. D. Carmichael said yesterday. White employees are invited to today's special show at 5 o'clock, and Negro employees will attend tomorrow's performance, also scheduled for 5.

Warriner Elected Council President

Helen Eppes Elected to Secretarial Post Of Greater University Student Council

The Greater University Student Council, meeting Sunday on the State College Campus in Raleigh, elected officers for the coming year and reviewed the work that it has done its first year of functioning.

Holding the first regular election under the constitution, the Council elected Dortch Warriner of Carolina as Chairman; Preston Andrews of State as Vice-Chairman; Helen Eppes of Carolina as secretary; and Glenna DeWitt of Woman's College as treasurer. The constitution states that each school shall have at least one of the elected officers and that the chairman and secretary shall be from the same school.

In viewing the work that it has done in the year of its birth, the Council looked back on such projects as the formulation of a list of qualifications that the Council thought the new president of the Greater University should have; vigorously protesting the tuition increase as proposed by Governor Scott, and passed by the Board of Trustees and the State Legislature; the laying of plans for a Greater University Day; and many other matters.

The tentative plans as made by the Council on Greater University Day, call for activities in which students from all three schools can participate, the State-Carolina football game, and a dance the night after the game. Arrangements are being made to hold the first of these days at the game next fall.

The Council also passed on a motion that next fall three students, one from each school of the Greater University, be allowed to sit with the Committee that is to select the new president. These students would have no vote on the committee but would engage in the discussion of possible candidates.

Malone to Talk On Chaucer Work In Gerrard Hall

Dr. Kemp Malone, head of the English Department at The Johns Hopkins University, will give the second in a series of three public lectures on Chaucer's Pilgrims to-night at 8 o'clock in Gerrard Hall, Dr. Norman Eliason of the English Department announced today.

The eminent scholar is probably best known to the English students with his "History of Old English Literature" published as the first part of the "Literary History of England," and in Germanic philology he has published "The Literary History of Hamlet." Also he is helping edit the new "American College Dictionary."

The last in the series of lectures will be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in Gerrard Hall.

Spanish Reading Test Set for Saturday

The reading examination in Spanish for all students entering the School of Commerce will be held on Saturday, May 21, at 10 a. m. in 215 Murphey, it has been announced by the Spanish department.

Student Solons Kill Anti-Red Bill

Buried in the heavy load of legislation passed and defeated by the 13th annual North Carolina Student Legislature in Raleigh over the weekend was a bill which was crushed by an overwhelming vote of the "nays" in both houses of the mock General Assembly.

Even though proponents of the bill waved pictures of the University's Han Freistadt over their heads and ranted long and loud about cleaning all Communists out of state educational institutions, few of the legislators in either the upper or the lower chamber would give an affirmative vote to the motion to force all students and teachers in state-supported schools to take non-Communist oaths.

Violin Concert Is Scheduled This Evening

Classical Works To Be Featured

Music by Bach, Brahms, Mendelssohn, and Mozart will be heard this evening at 8:30 when David McAdams and William Tritt, violinists, will present a recital in Hill Hall. McAdams, senior music major from Burlington, and Tritt, junior music major from Fayetteville, are both pupils of Willis Gates.

McAdams is a member of Lambda Chi Alpha and Phi Mu Alpha, having served in the latter as National Councilman for this past year. He attended Mars Hill College and was awarded a scholarship to Oberlin Conservatory prior to war service. He has worked on his A.B. in music here at the University for the past three years. Charles Stevens, McAdams' accompanist, is a special B.M. student studying with Dr. Schinhan of the Music Department.

Tritt is a member of Phi Mu Alpha. Prior to the war he did a summer's work at Eastman School of Music. Barbara Tritt, who will accompany Mr. Tritt, is a graduate of Eastman and has been accompanist on numerous recitals given here. Both violinists have been prominent in orchestra and chamber music groups here in Chapel Hill and in nearby communities.

Capital Alumni To Hold Dinner

Washington alumni of the University of North Carolina have announced a dinner meeting on May 20 honoring Senator Frank P. Graham. Gordon Gray, Acting Secretary of the Army, is president of the Washington alumni of the University at Chapel Hill.

The Washington meeting will be held at the Mayflower Hotel and tickets for the occasion may be secured from Noah Goodridge, secretary of the Washington alumni. Jack Spain, administrative assistant to Senator Hoey, is vice president.

Mr. Gray announced that reservations for the dinner have been made by many members of the North Carolina family in Washington, including Senator Hoey and several Congressmen. Included in the program of entertainment will be a quintet from the University Glee Club at Chapel Hill.

Both Houses Pass Wage, Labor Bills

on capital hill included many bills which the representatives of 18 North Carolina schools debated at great length in fiery sessions of the assembly.

One such was the proposal to set the North Carolina minimum wage at 75 cents per hour. The original bill set the minimum at 65 cents per hour, and was defeated in the House after a stormy debate. The Senate not only did defeat the bill, but amended it to read 75 cents.

Forces for the passage of the bill were marshalled when the measure, as amended, was sent back to the House, and it was passed in the same form as in the Senate.

Other legislation passed by both houses included a bill to authorize the union shop in North Carolina. The measure prohibited the closed shop and yellow dog contract, however.

Capital punishment in the state was abolished, and the governor was given a limited veto power. A bill to provide for stopping the pollution of the state's rivers and streams was passed.

Two resolutions passed the body after much discussion. The first favored federal aid to education and the second favored federal world government.

Both houses approved a bill to set up yearly state automobile inspection, and defeated a measure to lower the state voting age to 18.

Seniors Seek Oratory Medal In Annual Test

Eight To Speak In Di Tonight

Eight students will compete for the Willie P. Mangum medal in oratory tonight at 7:30 in the Dialectic Senate Hall, Earl Fitzgerald said yesterday. The second since the war, the contest will feature seniors delivering original orations.

Seniors entering include Bill Miller, Sam Manning, Charles Dixon, Bob Ormand, Emily Baker, Don Shropshire, Bill Duncan, and Marion Woodbury.

Fitzgerald pointed out that the participants in this year's competition are typical of the past winners of this medal, in that they are well known in campus affairs, and most have frequently been heard in positions requiring speaking ability.

Last year's winner was Robert Coulter, a member of Phi Beta Kappa and the Order of the Golden Fleece. Faculty members who have won the award in the past include Fred Weaver, dean of men, and Dr. Albert Coates, director of Institute of Government.

The contest is sponsored by Dean E. L. Mackie of student awards and scholarship, who will preside over the program. Judges for the event are Gerald Barrett, of the Economics Department, Earl Wynn, director of the Communications Center, and E. J. Woodhouse of the Political Science Department.

Moore Elected To Presidency Of UNC Band

At a business meeting conducted Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in Hill Hall, the University Band elected the following officers for the coming year: President, James Moore, Reidsville; Vice-President, Clay Crisp, Raleigh; and Secretary-Treasurer, Clifford Doll, East Orange. N. J. Bynum Weathers, past President, presided over the meeting, and on behalf of the Band, presented Director Earl Slocum with a name-inscribed leather brief case.

Gold band keys were awarded by Slocum to those members having completed nine quarters' work with the Band. Those receiving the awards were as follows: Harold Andrews, Charles Ballance, Nelson Benton, Chris Busby, Norman Clark, Clifford Doll, Melvin Finch, Harry Hall, Roger McDuffie, Dwight Price, Lon Taylor, and Clyde Wade.

Those eligible for the awards, but who did not receive them yesterday are as follows: Perry Frankel, Clarence Hayes, Robert Hawkins, Frank Huffman, Glen Hubbard, Edward Litaker, William Leinbach, Walter Merritt, John Satterfield, Gilbert Snyder, Floyd Stout, Kenneth Stroup, and Howard Whitehead.

Brecht Will Talk At Frat Initiation

Dr. E. A. Brecht of the School of Pharmacy will speak to the 19 new initiates of Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, at the Methodist church tonight. The regular meeting of the group will be held at 7 o'clock and the initiation ceremony at 8.

Students being initiated include: Dick Bordon, Charles Fox, James Groseclose, Bruce Melton, Bob Ormand, Dick Underwood, James Wadsworth, Wilson Yarborough, James Brockman, J. T. Nance, Charles Langston, and William Foil.

In addition, five new members will be installed on the advisory board. They are Harold Makepiece, Scout Council president, Dean Bill Friday, Welty Comp-ton, Clarence Weldon, and William Hewitt.

Hans Freistadt Invited To Testify In Capitol

Admitted Communist Receives Wire From Chairman of Joint Committee

Hans Freistadt, Austrian-born graduate physics student and admitted Communist who received a $1,600 fellowship from the Atomic Energy Commission, yesterday received an invitation to testify before the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy in Washington.

Freistadt said last night he had received a telegram from Sen. Brien McMahon, chairman of the committee, asking him whether or not he would like to appear before the group.

Freistadt wired McMahon that he would like to testify, and asked the committee chairman to notify him of the date.

The full text of McMahon's telegram read:

"Since your name was mentioned at an open meeting of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy this afternoon I consider it only fair that you be given an opportunity to testify before the committee at your earliest possible convenience.

"Should you so desire, please notify me if you wish to testify and a date will be arranged."

Freistadt said last night he was very happy to get the opportunity to go to Washington and tell his side of the story to Congress.

State Symphony Is Written Up In Time Section

An article entitled "On the Move," in the music section of "Time" Magazine, tells the story of the fourth annual tour of the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra.

The story includes the highlights of the concerts played by the Orchestra in Laurinburg, and has a two-column picture of Director Benjamin Swalin conducting the Orchestra in a ball park.

A paragraph under the sub-head "Beethoven in the Ball-parks" says: "Last week with his orchestra mid-way through its fourth annual tour, Conductor Swalin was proud to boast that 'in North Carolina, the word symphony is no longer something to be afraid of . . ."

"Ben Swalin had had his big idea for a traveling symphony while teaching music appreciation at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. There was hardly a city in the state that was large enough to support a regular symphony. Swalin decided that if people couldn't come to the music, then the music should be brought to them."

Hillel to Hold Supper Tonight

The annual awards and installation supper of the Hillel Foundation will be held this afternoon at 5:30 in Roland Parker lounge of Graham Memorial. Maurice Weinstein, president of the N. C. B'nai B'rith Association will deliver the principal address.

Sidney Schockel, Asheville, former president of the State Hillel Foundation, will conduct the installation of new officers. Rabbi Samuel Perlman will present awards.

New officers to be installed include Jay Joseph, Vineland, N. J., as president; Robert Evans, Durham, vice-president; Elaine Naiman, Asheville, secretary; and Ronald Liss, Charlotte, as treasurer.

Shades of 1818

Seniors Plan June 4 Dance, Picnic to Be Held Thursday

By Sally Woodhull

When Seniors register today in the Y lobby for the 49-er picnic Thursday at Hogan's Lake, they will also be asked whether or not they plan to attend the 49-er dance in Woollen Gymnasium Saturday night, June 4.

The affair is a Commencement Ball in modern dress, and will be an informal dance featuring the music of Johnny Satterfield and his orchestra. Free refreshments will be furnished by the Senior Class, and decorations will be on the 49-er theme.

Today is the final day for signing up for both the picnic and the dance. Thursday's picnic is free to all seniors and their dates, and will include swimming, games, and entertainment by the Bull City Night Hawks. Food will be furnished by the class, and only those who have made reservations may attend.

The commencement weekend dance is a University tradition for graduation though this year's will probably be somewhat different from those of by-gone days. In a biography of a Chapel Hill woman, Mrs. Cornelia Phillips Spencer, creative writing instructor Phillips Russell gives a description of a commencement ball in 1818. The quotation comes from General Edward Mallett, member of the graduating class of 1818.

"My coat was broadcloth of sea green color, high velvet collar to match, swallow tail, pockets outside, with lapels and large silver plated buttons; white satin damask vest, showing the edge of a blue undervest; a wide opening for bosom ruffles, and no shirt collar."

The Carolina gentleman of 131 years ago continues, "The neck was dressed with a layer of four or five three cornered cravats, arranged as follows: (See JUNE DANCE, page 4)

Lilienthal Says He Is Against Loyalty Check 'It Would Hamper Science Progress'

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(UP)—Chairman David E. Lilienthal said today the Atomic Energy Commission might hamper scientific progress if it required security checks on students receiving fellowships in non-secret atomic research.

"There is no question of national security at issue here," he told a hastily-summoned meeting of the Joint Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee. "The sole issue is how best to operate a fellowship program."

He was backed by Dr. A. N. Richards, president of the National Academy of Science. Richards said such a security requirement would be "akin to Russian bureaucracy" and would discourage young scientists who are on the sensitive side from seeking fellowships.

The Committee was called into emergency session to review the loyalty issue in the midst of a Congressional furor over the discovery that two known Communists had been granted fellowships by the Atomic Energy Commission.

Rep. Carl T. Durham (D.—N.C.) introduced a bill today to block use of atomic energy funds "for the education of subversive science students." Fellowship applicants would be required to fill out a "personnel security questionnaire" and testify to their loyalty.

Rep. Lawrence H. Smith (R.—Wis.) demanded the resignation of "every member" of the Atomic Energy Commission.

"The Congress is on notice," he said. "It should act at once by demanding the resignations of those responsible for this attack on our national security."

The two Communist students are Hans Freistadt, a $1,600-a-year fellow at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. And a second, as-yet unnamed student who holds a $3,600-a-year fellowship at an Eastern university. Sen Bourke B. Hickenlooper, (R.—Ia.) revealed the second case.

Lilienthal said his commission gave "long and careful consideration" to the question of requiring security clearance for such students but finally decided against it.

Interviews Set For She-Marines

Coeds who may be interested in a career as an officer in the regular Marines or the Marine Reserve should contact the Placement Office immediately for interviews tomorrow morning, May 18, Joe Galloway, director of the Placement Office, said yesterday.

Colonel Katherine A. Towle, the first Director of Women Marines, will be here at that time to explain the program in detail to interested faculty members and students.

The Secretary of the Navy has approved the organization of the Women Officers Training Class as the sole source of women officers for the regular Marine Corps and the Marine Corps Reserve.
