Sinnott Will Deliver '49 McNair Lecture

Edmund Ware Sinnott, director of the Sheffield-Scientific School, Yale University, will deliver the 1949 John Calvin McNair Lecture series, beginning tonight at 8:30 in Hill Hall.

The subject of Dr. Sinnott's lectures will be "Life, Mind, and Spirit: A Speculation in Bio-Psychology." The first lecture, being given tonight, is "Organization as the Distinctive Character of all Life."

The second lecture, "The Fundamental Identity of Biological Organization and Psychological Activity," will be delivered tomorrow night, and the third and final lecture, "Some Implications for Philosophy," is scheduled for Thursday night. All three lectures will begin at 8:30 in Hill Hall.

Dr. Sinnott is the retiring president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, past-president of the American Society of Naturalists, and past-president of the Botany Society of America. Dr. G. W. Blackwell said that the Committee on Established Lectures is happy to have a man so well fitted to discuss those areas of thought in which science borders over on the deeper meanings of life and religion.

The McNair Lecture Series was founded through a bequest made by the Rev. John Calvin McNair of the class of 1849, which became available to the University in 1906.

The plan and purpose of the lectures is stated in the will which reads: "They shall employ some able Scientific Gentleman to deliver before all the students then in attendance at said University a course of lectures the object of which Lectures shall be to show the mutual bearing of Science and Theology upon each other and to prove the existence and attributes, as far as may be, of God from Nature."

Prominent men who have delivered the McNair Lectures in the past are, among others, Edwin Grant Conklin, R. H. Millikin, Arthur H. Compton, and William E. Hocking.

DR. EDMUND W. SINNOTT, Director of the Sheffield-Scientific School, Yale University, will deliver the McNair Lectures for this year, today, tomorrow, and Thursday at 8:30 in Hill Hall.

Phi To Speak On Finance 7:30 Tonight

Non-contributory pension and social insurance as recommended by the Presidential fact-finding board will be the subject for debate in the Philanthropic Assembly tonight at 7:30 in Phi Hall, New East.

Speaker Pro Tempore Hugh Griffin said yesterday that the question is of national importance since the United Steelworkers (CIO) and the steel companies are currently engaged in a dispute over whether pensions and social insurance should be contributory or non-contributory.

Rep. Robert Lee of the Phi, who authored the bill, added that the fact-finding board recommended that members of the United Steelworkers receive from the steel companies 10 cents per hour to finance a pension and insurance fund. This recommendation has been accepted by the union.

Preceding the debate will be an executive session in which six new members will be initiated. They are Al House, Fred Crawford, Bill Berleson, John Poin-dexter, Gene Russell and Bill Smith.

Speaker Graham Jones said the Yack pictures of the Phi would be taken tonight.

Rules Committee Releases Names

Three members of the Student Legislature face expulsion from the body because of absence from meetings, according to an absence report released yesterday by Rules Committee Chairman Jim Montague.

Will London, Bob Mebane and Clark Taylor are the legislators who, under the by-laws of the Legislature, have over-stepped their absence quota. London has missed two meetings, Taylor and Mebane have missed three, all with unexcused absences. (See RULES, page 4)

Pix Deadline For Yearbook Is Tomorrow

Schedule Falls Short About 250; 4,550 Are Taken

"Tuesday and Wednesday will definitely be the last two days for those delinquent in getting their annual pictures taken," Yackety Yack Editor Bill Claybrook said yesterday.

Claybrook said that representatives of Walker and Smith, the Raleigh studio contracted to do the individual sitting pictures, will be on the second floor of Graham Memorial from 10 o'clock until 6 o'clock tonight, and until 5 o'clock tomorrow night.

"All students, regardless of alphabetical order, are urged to come as early as possible."

Over 4,550 photographs have already been taken by Yack photographers, some 250 short of the estimate made by Claybrook earlier this fall.

Students whose proof ticket numbers between 1 and 2,500, can choose the proof they desire for publication by calling at the Smith-Walker table in the main lounge of Graham Memorial.

Organizations who have not yet signed their contracts for space in the 1950 Yack, have one more chance to do so. They may stop at the Yack office, located on the left mezzanine of Graham Memorial, anytime during working hours and make their contract arrangements.

Deadline Set For New York Trains, Busses

University Club president Jack Holcombe urged last night that all students who plan to make the New York trip for the big Notre Dame game go to the booth at the Y within the next few days if they wish to sign for a special bus or train.

Holcombe said that railroad and bus officials need to know as soon as possible how many students are planning to make the trip in order that the necessary arrangements can be made. The Y booth will remain open through Thursday, November 3, the deadline set by the railroads and bus lines.

Special trains are scheduled to leave Thursday and Friday nights of that week and to return late Saturday night. Busses will also leave on both Thursday and Friday, but will not leave from New York until Sunday morning.

Fares for the round-trip will be $14.15 for the busses and $21.79 for the train.

There will also be a special parking service provided in Durham for those people who will drive to that city to board the trains. The cost will be $1.00 for the entire week end and a registration book is being opened at the Y for people wishing to take advantage of this service.

Holcombe also urged that all students who are going to New York, by train, bus, plane or auto, to register in the lobby stating where they plan to stay while in the city. This will insure delivery of the Daily Tar Heel.

Tar Heels Welcomed; Writer Says Coach Protested Turf Before Game

O'Brien Says Team Played In Mud Cleats

Field Described As 'Glistening' With Mud, Water

RALEIGH, Oct. 24—(AP)—News and Observer Sports Writer Frank O'Brien said today that North Carolina Coach Carl Snavely protested to the condition of Louisiana State's gridiron before the Tigers upset his Tar Heels, 13-7, last night.

It was so soggy, said O'Brien, that during the first quarter Snavely ordered his men to put on mud cleats.

The soggy conditions occurred under clear skies. The night before the game the Tar Heels had practiced on the field, which was

No Comment

Coach Carl Snavely declined to comment yesterday on reports that the Tar Heels lost Saturday night's game to Louisiana State on a muddy field when it had not rained in Baton Rouge in two days.

fast and dry. No rain occurred between then and game time. Local Baton Rouge papers had quoted Louisiana State Coach Gaynell Tinsley as hoping for rain.

Snavely after the game paid tribute to the Tigers. He said, "They outcharged us, outran us, and outblocked us. They were just ready for us and keyed up for the game. We couldn't stop them."

However, O'Brien said the conditions of the field "probably strained relations between the two teams."

He quoted from a byline story by Sports Editor Bud Montet in the Sunday morning edition of the Baton Rouge Morning Advocate the following: "The Bengals, who have proved good mudders in two previous home games, were aided by a mechanical 'local shower,' for when the fans appeared in the stands they were bewildered with the glistening and slick appearance of the sodden turf. As it hasn't rained in the past two days in Baton Rouge the fans were mystified."

"Also mystified was North Carolina Coach Carl Snavely who sent his eleven through a drill last night (Friday) on some ideal turf. Snavely protested bitterly and loudly but to no avail, and the superior mudders, the Tiger grid-ders, went grimly to work and when the final whistle blew they knew they had turned in one of the finest performances ever turned by an LSU eleven in recent years."

O'Brien said Tinsley had been quoted in Baton Rouge as saying there had been a mixup in instructions and there had been no plan to water the field on Saturday.

Little Wetter Than Slated' Says Tinsley

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 24—(AP)—Louisiana State Coach Gaynell Tinsley said tonight that the football field here was "a little wetter than we wanted it" Saturday night, but had nothing to do with his team's 13-7 upset of North Carolina.

Tinsley was commenting on a

Even Concrete! (?)

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 24 (AP)—T. P. Heard, red-haired athletic director of Louisiana State University, got into the watered football field controversy with North Carolina today by snorting at "Alibis" and asserting that:

"L. S. U. would have beaten North Carolina Saturday Night on a muddy field, a snowed-in field or concrete."

"Some coaches, especially those who aren't used to losing, always have an alibi handy in case the should lose," Heard said. "(North Carolina Coach Carl) Snavely complained about the officials and we took care of that by changing officials for him before the game. Then he started complaining about the field, but I told him, 'You're a bigger man than that.'"

"If he had won, everything would have been fine."

He pointed out also that those members of the units who do not join during the regular drives may join at the door to the clubhouse any night.

The club is open every evening, Foley said, at 8:30 Entertainment is featured every Friday evening.

Stressing the point that no stags are allowed on Friday and Saturday nights, Foley said that new members are asked to familiarize themselves with the rules of the clubhouse.

Tarnation Is At Printshop

The second pocket edition of Tarnation, campus humor magazine, "is at the print shop and will appear sometime soon," Editor Tom Kerr said that this edition would place special emphasis on the coming Notre Dame weekend and include a supplement in the form of a student's guide to New York City.

Radin to Speak In Gerrard Today

The Law School Association of the University is sponsoring an open lecture by Prof. Max Radin at 4:30 o'clock today in Gerrard Hall. The speaker is well-known as a legal historian and philosopher who has written widely on related subjects. His topic is, "The Enduring Problem of the Law."

Bull's Head Shop Sets Tea Tomorrow

The Bull's Head Bookshop will hold a tea tomorrow at 4 o'clock in the staff room of the library. Mrs. Jessica Valentine, manager of the bookshop, said yesterday.

She invited all students to come to the tea, first of the year, and hear N. B. Adams, of the Spanish department, discuss the new modern translation of Don Quixote by Samuel Putnam.

UVA Votes To Allow ROTC's Full Membership Privileges

A spokesman for University Veteran's Association said yesterday that the Association has amended its constitution to admit Air and Naval ROTC students.

Faced with a dwindling supply of veterans each consecutive quarter the Association took this action to keep the UVA up to a minimum of members.

Student Group Of Over 1,000 Waits At Gym

Crowd at Airport Totals Some 500; Players Are Tired

By Chuck Hauser

Forty-four tired, bruised and downhearted Tar Heels stepped off a plane at Raleigh-Durham Airport late Sunday afternoon to be welcomed by a student body which showed it was still solidly behind them.

More than 1,000 students were waiting at Woollen Gymnasium when the two big buses rolled in from the airport, and the welcome was continued there. The fact that the team had been dropped from the nation's undefeated ranks by a 13-7 loss to Louisiana State seemed to have been forgotten.

Some 500 persons were on hand when the chartered DC-6 skimmed down the runway and taxied up to the crowd. Applause greeted the footballers as they stepped down the ramp, and an impressive vote of confidence was awarded Coach Carl Snavely as he alighted.

Many of the cars followed the buses back through Durham, while some drivers took short cuts to Chapel Hill and joined the crowd waiting at the gym. The bell in South Building tolled for some 30 minutes to indicate that the team's plane was landing and the Tar Heels would be home before long.

Coach Snavely and the players had nothing to say when they got to town. Charlie Justice, however, drove back from the airport with Sarah Justice and one-year-old Ronnie, and started to make a comment on the game. Standing on the steps of Woollen, Justice choked up, and could only remark that the team would be in in a few minutes.

The question in everyone's mind was about the condition of the playing field. Reports from Baton Rouge indicated the field was so wet that mud cleats had to be used during the game, while no rain had fallen in Baton Rouge for at least two days.

LSU officials admitted the field had been wet down to a point where it was "too wet," but said it was all through a mistake. Coach Snavely would not comment.

Sports Writer Frank O'Brien of the Raleigh News and Observer said, however, that Snavely had protested the condition of the field before the game was played (See

LSU Coach Gaynell Tinsley, who had been praying for rain for a week to stop Justice and aid his Tiger mudders, said the field was "a little wetter than we wanted it" but denied the condition of the turf hurt the Tar Heels' playing.

Dr. H. W. Stoke, president of Louisiana State, made the remark that, to him, the field "looked damp with dew."

To the Tar Heels, football-playing and just the radio-listening kind, things looked damp enough to seem fishy.

Rushing Bids

Freshmen and other new students may pick up fraternity rushing invitations on Thursday and Friday of this week in Gerrard Hall, Interfraternity Council Rushing Chairman Bill Benjamin said yesterday.

The desk at Gerrard will be manned from 9 to 5 o'clock on Thursday and from 9 o'clock in the morning until noon Friday. Rushing begins next Sunday evening.

Umstead To Discuss State Politics In IDA-Sponsored Meeting Tonight

Rep. John Umstead, Orange County representative to the State Legislature, will speak on "Scott, Graham and Daniels" tonight at 9 o'clock in Roland Parker Lounges 1 and 2 in Graham Memorial.

He will be sponsored by the Students for Democratic Action, largest student political organization in the United States.

Umstead will discuss the political significance of Kerr Scott's 1948 election to the governorship of North Carolina, his appointment of Frank Graham to the United States Senate and the role of Jonathan Daniels in the state Democratic Party. He will also discuss briefly the school bond issue which will take North Carolina voters to the polls this month.

Umstead, who belongs to the Scott branch of the Democratic Party, led the fight against the tuition raise at the University last spring. He is one of the trustees of the Greater University and a member of the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees.

Following Umstead's speech, Dean of Students Bill Friday will join Umstead for a panel discussion. The two will answer questions and clarify any points that may arise.

The SDA, student division of the Americans for Democratic Action founded by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, is the center of non-Communist liberal political thought and action among students. Its purpose is to create a live political awareness among students.

"We desire to make students at the University conscious of their responsibility to make decisions into action," Murphy said. "Our goal is to help students become informed, responsible and effective citizens."

Slighted

Howard Perry, Zack Harris, Dave Howard and Jerry Schwartz felt slighted yesterday.

It seems the boys drove down to Baton Rouge to see the game Saturday night, and then returned home yesterday afternoon to read in The Daily Tar Heel that there was a scarcity of Carolina supporters at LSU.

They reported that the LSU students weren't unfriendly, but that old "Southern hospitality" wasn't as much in evidence as it is in Chapel Hill.
