

Tar Heels Clash With Blue Devils Today

MRS. CARLETON S. HADLEY, smiles happily in St. Louis after a busy day of showing friends the trousseau for her wedding to Vice President Alben Barkley. At right, Barkley is all smiles as he gives his bow tie that last minute twist. He and Mrs. Hadley were married in St. Louis yesterday.

Vows Over, Veep, Wife Are Happy

ST LOUIS, Nov. 18 (AP) — A charming St. Louis widow who says she has led "a plain, prosaic life" became the second lady of the land today when she married Vice President Alben W. Barkley.

Jane Hadley Barkley, 38, smiled through tears of happiness when she was led from the altar by the 71-year-old Vice President.

She nodded to her mother, Mrs. Estle Rucker, and her two daughters, Anne, 17, and Jane, 14, who were standing at a front pew.

When the newlyweds reached the chapel vestibule, the Vice President did something he failed to do immediately after the wedding ceremony. He kissed the bride.

"Wasn't he gorgeous?" Mrs. Barkley exclaimed later.

With the bride at the wheel, the newlyweds left in an automobile at 3:30 o'clock (EST) for an unannounced honeymoon destination. They had a motorcycle police escort.

The courtly bridegroom told newsmen he didn't know where they were going, then added:

"Of course we are going to Shangri-La, and that's a difficult drive over the Himalaya Mountains."

A reporter asked wouldn't it be cold in Shangri-La this time of year.

"Well, we'll warm it up after we get there," the Veep replied.

"We are leaving by automobile. She's going to drive at the start, because she knows how to get out of St. Louis."

Solemn during the ceremony, the Vice President grinned proudly and showed his good humor to a cheering, rice-throwing crowd outside the church.

Card Stunts For Big Game Are On Tap

Sper Requests Colorful Show To Shame Duke

University spirit's calling card, halftime fun with colored placards, will be performed at today's game in Duke Stadium. Head Cheerleader Norm Sper said yesterday.

An unblocked-off aisle through the middle of the card section will necessitate great cooperation on the part of the students, Sper asserted. He asked for those sitting outside the section to fill in the aisle during the stunts.

Sper called on students, "to show Weed Village that we are better than they are in athletics, college spirit and ability to put on a better halftime show." He deplored the inability of Duke to "do card stunts because of the lack of spirit and proper knowledge."

Sper also reminded students that newsreel and newspaper men would be taking in the card stunt show at halftime.

Regular card stunt procedure will be followed at the game, with instruction cards under the seats. The cards will be passed out at halftime. Seats in the stadium are marked with tape so that students can sit behind each other.

"Duke is supposed to have card stunts today," Sper said, "but that doesn't mean they'll have them. At the Wake Forest game they were going to, but before the cards could be passed out, the halftime was over."

Reverend Manning, Divorcee, Dies

Navy Asked To Retract Rebuke Of Crommelin

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP) — Navy Capt. John G. Crommelin fired a new blast at the military high command today even as the Navy announced a sharp cutback in the naval air power that he has fought to preserve.

In and out of official hot water for months, Crommelin has charged that the Navy's attack strength was being wrecked by Pentagon military planners.

Today the Navy ordered a 20 percent reduction in Naval combat planes. In addition, the Navy said, six Naval air bases will be Cuts have been anticipated under the general military economy program. Today's order follows a recent lay-up order for 77 Naval vessels. The Army and Air Force are experiencing reductions also.

Snively Is Speaker At Beat Duke Rally

By Don Maynard

"Tomorrow we face a pretty rough job," Coach Carl Snively said to nearly 2,000 Tar Heel students gathered about a towering bonfire blazing at the Intramural field "Beat Duke" pep rally last night.

"Duke is rated the better team in tomorrow's game," the Coach told the shivering students, "but in my experience, I have found out that a rating never means much in the long run."

"A fighting heart and a fighting spirit means more than all your football polls."

"It's going to be a tough game, but we're ready for a tough game," Snively said.

Things got off to a slow start at the Y court, after the South Building bell rang out for fifteen minutes to summon students to the torch parade and rally, but Carolinians chanting "Beat Duke" joined the torch march as it moved along Chapel Hill streets.

Heading the procession was a muffled-bound and earmuffed fragment of the University band, led by director Earl Slocum, and the cheerleaders, headed by Norm Sper.

Former Warner Brothers screen starlet Joyce Reynolds concluded the evening's demonstration with the presentation of the Pi Kappa Alpha cup to the winning divisions in this afternoon's "Beat Duke" float parade.

After a few preliminary cheers and the lighting of the bonfire, termed by Sper as the largest he had ever seen, and "naturally better than Duke's," the crowd began chanting "we want Snively."

As the affectionately-called "Great White Father" pushed his way through, the crowd gathered about the hastily constructed grandstand, the students broke into a roar which took Cheerleader Sper several minutes to quiet.

In the glow of the bonfire, Snively complimented the Tar Heels and said the season's cheering and spirit like that which prompted the students to meet the team after the LSU defeat has inspired the team greatly.

"I know we all feel pretty good the way we played Notre Dame for two quarters." The Coach broke off as the students shouted in a voice "... for four quarters, Coach!"

"Well," he smiled, "that's the spirit I mean. I'm glad you feel like that. Have it your way."

Sadie Hawkins Activity Is Scheduled For Dec. 2

Letters have been sent to sororities, fraternities, and other campus organizations inviting them to participate in the annual Sadie Hawkins Day festivities, which will be sponsored Dec. 2 this year by the Carolina Independent Coed Association.

The organizations have been asked to enter a float in the Dogpatch Parade, which will begin the day's activities. Following the parade, for which prizes will be awarded for the best floats by the CICA, special entertainments, games, and the traditional hoo-man race will be held at Emerson Field.

Crowd Of 57,500 To Witness Game In Duke Stadium

By Larry Fox

It's an old story, but like most of the old masters it gets better with each telling and the wonderful thing about it is that the ending changes almost every time you sit down to read it.

This literary simile coming in the closing weeks of November when the football fever is approaching the crisis stage could only mean the Carolina-Duke encounter, which is scheduled for Duke Stadium this afternoon at 2 o'clock before a record crowd of 57,000.

Float Parade Is Studded With Talent

A broken-down wagon carrying a KA hunter, a hound dog and a real live 'possum caught the fancy of the five judges yesterday afternoon and won first place in the fraternity division of the Beat Duke float parade.

Goose pimples were prevalent on most floats, but it was a bunch of blue devils, a 22 football player and some haloed angels that won out over the girls in shorts and gave first place in the sorority division to Pi Beta Phi sorority.

When the Mungum Dorm entry passed, the boys looked as if they had lost their best friend. But actually, the dead in the coffin was Duke. Never once during the long procession did any of the mourners crack a smile. And their solemnity won for them first place in the men's dorm division.

"Eat Smith Sausages" was the theme of the Smith Dorm float. As Smith was the only girls' dorm to enter, the float placed first in this division.

Queen of the float parade was Betty Smith, Tri Delta from Charleston, West Va. Her float was made by Pi Kappa Alpha, and was not entered in competition.

"We're not competing, thank you. We just joined the parade," a carload of bedraggled frontier gals advertising Sound and Fury told the judges.

Vet Wounds 2 Cops In VA Office Battle

ERIE, Pa., Nov. 18 (AP) — Two police sergeants were seriously wounded today attempting to capture a war veteran who barricaded himself in the Erie offices of the Veterans Administration.

Shot were Sgts. Leo Waldinger and Elmer May. The extent of their injuries was not immediately learned.

Police said the war veteran, whose identity was not established, was captured. They said the man had barricaded himself in the office of Lieut. Col. Arthur Criswell, the manager of the Erie Veterans Administration Office.

For the 36th time in the history of modern man (including the Middle Ages when the Durham institution was known as Trinity College) the two neighboring schools engage in a little friendly tussle.

Neither team has an unbeaten season on the fire this afternoon but the Southern Conference championship will be decided today. Duke doesn't have a chance for the crown, but can act as a spoiler by defeating the Tar Heels, who are tied with Maryland with four victories apiece. The Terps have played all their league games and so a win by Carolina would mean a 5-0 record and the title.

If the three-year Tar Heel scoring progression holds up today, Carolina should count a total of 19 points. Three years ago, the Tar Heels started their victory string with a 22-7 triumph and the next year Bob Cox kicked a field goal after missing all three extra points to make it 21-0. Then last season Carolina came out ahead by 20-0.

Three in a Row
Many of the record number of fans without a doubt will be present to catch a glimpse of Charlie Justice, Carolina captain and ace of the Tar Heel offense, who has led his team to those three consecutive victories over the Blue Devils during his college career. The Tar Heels and Justice hope to make it a clean sweep, but the Carolina Choo-Choo is a doubtful starter this afternoon — his injured ankle still not completely healed.

Then of course, many folks will be out to see the fabled remains of an outfit that has just run up against Notre Dame, but unfortunately the sadists in the stands will have to be content with any blood spilled during the game, for the Tar Heels are in about the best shape they've been in all season. Wingback Fred Sherman is still out, but Justice is the only other doubtful man in the lineup. Joe Nekirk, the only serious injury in the Notre Dame contest last week, was back out yesterday and took his turn in the pivot post as the Tar Heels ran through their plays.

"Two Bad Boys"
Duke, however, is not quite so fortunate with Fullback Jack Mounie and Wingback Jack Friedlund both on the doubtful list. The Blue Devils have been further hampered by the suspension of John Montgomery and Tommy Harris earlier this week. Montgomery was the number one quarterback for Coach Wallace Wade while Harris was a regular defensive halfback.

Top tailback for the Blue Devils Billy Cox is now expected to be in good shape after an early- (See JUSTICE MAY, page 5)

Early Hours

Fifteen fraternities have been granted permission by the House Privileges Board to entertain coeds one hour earlier than usual this morning.

Dean of Women Katherine Carmichael yesterday listed the fraternities from whom coeds may accept 11 o'clock invitations. They are:

Pi Kappa Alpha, Kappa Sigma, Phi Gamma Delta, Chi Psi, Beta Theta Pi, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Alpha Tau Omega, Zeta Psi, Delta Psi, Tau Epsilon Phi, Sigma Chi, Phi Delta Theta, Delta Kappa Epsilon, Kappa Alpha and Sigma Nu.

Commerce School To Get More Money

Hope Rises For 20 Men Lost On B-29

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Nov. 18 (AP) — A search plane reported late today it had spotted a yellow object, believed to be a life raft, in the area of the Atlantic where a U. S. Air Force B-29 is supposed to have crash-landed Wednesday.

The crew, however, soon lost sight of the object in lowering

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP) — The Air Force today grounded all B-29's which have not undergone engine "modernization" or been given stress tests.

The order follows a series of disastrous crashes.

There was no estimate of the number of planes involved. The temporary grounding order will be effective until all planes involved have been inspected.

sighting of two red flames were reported last night in the area northeast of Bermuda.

Four planes cruised the zone for hours today. Surface craft converged to help in the quest for survivors.

Searchers described the critical area as an expanse of the sea about 100 miles square, centered 350 miles northeast of Bermuda and about 950 miles East of Norfolk, Va.

Among the surface craft ordered to that region were the Canadian Aircraft Carrier Magnificent and two U. S. Coast Guard Cutters.

Go Early

Students attending the Carolina-Duke game at Durham today will have to go early in order to get their tickets and get seated before the kickoff.

The bottleneck is expected to come from the shortage of ticket windows. There are 10 student windows at Kenan Stadium and only three at the Blue Devil stadium.

The students holding student coupons will be admitted through the visiting students' gate on the north side of Duke stadium. The gates open at 11 o'clock.

Dancing In Aisles

Play-Happy 'Bury' Cast Performs During Breaks

By Ed Moss

When director Mike Casey gives the cast of "Oh, Bury Me Not," a ten-minute rest period you would think they would sit down and take it easy after all the dancing and singing they do in the show. Instead they do just the contrary. They practice songs and dance steps and otherwise expend their energy in a way that makes you wonder if their dancing and singing is rejuvenating rather than tiring.

A typical intermission during rehearsal would probably find Florabel Wolf and Bob Thomas going over a scene with choreographer Marty Jacobs. Several of the girls in the chorus practice their steps in the aisles. Casey and Sound and Fury president, Mark Barker, confer on production problems. Forrest Covington stands by the stage strumming his guitar and softly singing one of the ballads he sings in the show. One or two industrious people may try to get in a few quick licks at Latin or French during time-out. Larry Pearce, Panch and Jane Milligan, The Old Maid School Teacher, go over a scene together away from the noise of the rest of the cast.

The students taking part in "Oh, Bury Me Not" just naturally love to sing and dance. If they're not working on the show during intermission they're liable as not to an impromptu jitterbugging contest or even an informal pep rally. Someone starts a Carolina fight song and before they're through they've sung all the popular football songs heard at Carolina football games.

SHP To Inspect Buses

RALEIGH, Nov. 18 (AP) — Highway Patrol and school officials today worked out a uniform statewide plan for inspection of school buses.

They agreed on a list of seven major safety factors to be checked. A bus which fails to meet all of them will be grounded immediately.

Buses which don't come up to other factors must be repaired within 24 hours. The operators will get equipment check cards which must be returned within that time and show that repairs have been made.

The inspection plan was agreed on at a conference between Patrol Commander C. R. Tolar and C. C. Brown, head of the State Board of Education's Transportation Division. Commissioned officers of the patrol also sat in. Factors which can mean grounding of a bus if they are not up to par, Tolar said, are: Steering assembly, brakes, stop signals, exhaust system, door controls, proper identification by lettering (required by law), and windshield wipers.

Tolar said that patrolmen also will take buses out for a run to determine if motor governors are set to hold buses' speed to the maximum of 35 miles an hour.
