Georgia's Governor Talmadge To Speak In Memorial Tonight

Speech Begins At 8:30; CPU, CF Sponsoring

Reception In GM Will Follow Talmadge Talk

Governor Herman E. Talmadge of Georgia will speak at 8:30 tonight in memorial hall under the sponsorship of the Carolina Political Union and the Carolina Forum. Chancellor Robert B. House will introduce the speaker. In the absence of Governor Scott who is in New York, Governor Talmadge will be met by Dr. Everett Jordan, chairman of the State Democratic Party, and John Marshall, Scott's private secretary. Scott has provided a motorcycle escort for the Talmadge party from the Raleigh-Durham Airport to Chapel Hill. The CPU and the Forum will entertain Governor Talmadge at a dinner in the Carolina Inn at 6:30 and at a reception in the main lounge of Graham Memorial following his speech. The Forum is a bureau established in 1948 by the Student Legislature to coordinate the activities of the various groups procuring and presenting speakers of campus-wide interest. The CPU is a non-partisan political discussion group established by University students in 1936. The CPU has previously presented such speakers as President Roosevelt, Norman Thomas and Senators Taft, Morse and Truman. CPU Chairman Murray Golden said it is the policy of his organization to bring before the students speakers representing all political beliefs. Governor Talmadge is the son of the famous governor, Eugene Talmadge. He was elected by the Georgia legislature in 1946 when his father died before taking office for his fourth term. A legal fight for the governorship began when Lt. Gov-elect M. E. Thompson assumed the office of acting governor. The two rival governors held office for 67 days until the Georgia Supreme Court ruled in favor of Thompson. Governor Talmadge entered the gubernatorial race in 1948 and defeated Acting Governor Thompson in popular vote and under the Georgia county-unit electoral system. An experienced campaigner, Governor Talmadge had managed two of his father's successful gubernatorial campaigns. Under Talmadge, Georgia has expanded state services, increased teacher pay, increased hospitals and roads, and extended the merit system to the State patrol and the highway department. The state has made strides in reforestation and in conservation of resources and wildlife.

UP Needs 6 Seats To Gain Majority

By Roy Parker, Jr.
The University Party need take only half of the 12 Student Legislature seats to be contested in next Tuesday's election to have majority in the body, according to final returns on Tuesday's primary.

The party took 15 of 20 seats filled in the primary and five UP posts did not face election. Party candidates are still in races for 10 of the 12 jobs to be decided Tuesday.

A vote-recording error added another legislator to the UP's total yesterday and took one away from the Student Party. In men's dormitory district 3 it was Bob Wallace (UP) who won a six-month term, rather than Bill Lee (SP).

A total of 24 of the 50 Legislature seats were bound to have UP representatives. In three districts where runoff are to be conducted, the party had enough candidates in the fray to assure election of four of their nominees.

The second-running Student Party has a total of seven men definitely in the Legislature, and three SP candidates get cracks at (See ELECTION, page 4)

Coed Voting Results In Runoff Fights

Runoffs were the result of most of the coed voting in Tuesday's primary election, according to complete unofficial returns tabulated yesterday.

Most important of the runoff fights will be a seven-way struggle for three junior-at-large seats on the Women's Honor Council. Jean Bloom (65), Kash Davis (63), Francis Drane (86), Winifred Harris (78), Mary Key Palmer (72), Princess Stellings (72) and Lila Ponder will be the contestants. Seven others were eliminated.

There will be runoff ballot tussles for five or ten Coed Senate seats voted on Tuesday. Of the five elected, four went in unopposed.

Definitely elected were Marie Nussbaum (UP-150) to the Student Council over Jean Serpell (SP-125) and Mary McCormie to the graduate seat on the Honor Council over Noxie Sullivan.

Those elected outright to Coed Senate posts were Kathryn Anne Wiley (13) over Katherine Schiff (6) from Smith dormitory, Bobbie Stockton and Jane Sumpter unopposed from Carr and Pete (See COED, page 4)

Government Is Asked To Relieve Taxpayer

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 30—(AP)—Secretary of the Navy Matthews tonight called for "greater economies" by the government because, he said, the taxpayer is "burdened beyond endurance."

"Stern forebearance in the expenditure of public funds can not be evaded," he declared. "Even further reductions in the total cost of current military preparedness are inescapable."

Tar Heel Student Legislature To Meet In Raleigh Tonight

Special to The Daily Tar Heel
RALEIGH, Nov. 30—Twenty-nine North Carolina colleges and universities will have delegates here tonight for the opening session of the State Student Legislature. The delegates from 11 of those schools will bring bills and resolutions to be acted on. Carolina's omnibus Civil Rights

Bill attempts to draw all the controversial race issues into one vehicle, which may be voted on in parts.

The most notable absence from the roll of colleges and universities of North Carolina will be State College, which has had no official delegates at the mock assembly since 1947, when State College Pi Kappa Delta announced that it had dissolved both itself and State Student Legislature, which it had up to that time sponsored.

The most notable absence from the calendar of bills is Duke University, who turned in no bill accepted by the Calendar committee.

The bills to be discussed with the schools introducing them are as follows:

A resolution concerning Supervision and Control of State Penal Institutions, Catawba College; A Resolution Favoring the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, WCUNC; A Bill to Provide for the Mechanical Inspection of Automobiles in the State of North Carolina, Elon College; A Bill Providing for State Control of Electrical Power Facilities in North Carolina, Atlantic Christian College; A Bill to Create and Maintain a State Compulsory Finger Printing Bureau, Wilmington College.

A Bill to Abrogate the Rule in Shelby's Case, Wake Forest College; A Bill to Provide for an Increase in and an Equalization of Transportation Facilities for schools in the State of North Carolina, Bennett College; A Bill to Create an Academy of Social Scientists, Guilford.

Got Ugly ID Card? You May Get Prize

By Wuff Newell
The age-old question of just how gruesome an ID card can be is about to be answered. And the final judge in the matter is Tarnation magazine.

Beginning Tuesday Tarnation will sponsor a contest to find the most gruesome, the most hideous, or just plain most awful picture on an official University identification card.

Any student possessing one of the "this can't be me" cards is eligible to enter their card. Anyone, that is, except members of the Tarnation staff. Locked ballot boxes will be placed in Lenoir Hall and the Y, and students who feel that the picture on their card could pass for a prehistoric animal as easily as for a Carolina gentleman are invited to drop their cards in the slot.

No one but Tarnation staff members will be allowed to see the monstrosities, and according to managing editor Herb Nachman, excellent care will be taken of all the cards.

"There is no major event scheduled for next week where student would be required to show their cards," Nachman added. "So no one needs to feel that we are conducting the contest in order to have a few extra cards on hand."

Beginning Wednesday a booth will be open in the Y each morning where students whose pictures are judged not quite bad enough for such a contest may pick them up.

"Some people will no doubt be surprised to find their cards there," Nachman said, hiding his own card so no one could make a crack about it, "but after all, we can't all have the most horrible picture. Surely the photographer must have slipped at least once and taken a halfway decent photo."

One winner will be selected from the women and one from the men. Ten runner-ups will also be chosen.

The winning pictures, along with a good photograph of each winner, will appear in the Feb. 10 issue of Tarnation.

Any ID card is eligible for entry, but the name must be clear and it must be in good enough condition to be photographed for Tarnation if it is declared the most awful.

"Students have always taken great pleasure in comparing the hideousness of ID cards," Nachman concluded, "Certainly there is no such thing as a flattering card. Tarnation wants to find out just how gruesome the most gruesome ID card is."

The managing editor assured everyone that Tarnation would never give away the most intimate secrets of how awful a student's picture is — unless, of course, it is chosen as the most gruesome monstrosity to hit campus.

Seniors Slate New Council

Senior Class President Al Winn yesterday announced that he and the other class officers are forming plans for a Senior Council.

The council, according to present plans, will be an organization composed of well-qualified members of the senior class.

In revealing the new plan, Winn said, "The main phase of our class activities will come next spring quarter and we'll need many good committeemen then, but we need them now to help plan such activities."

Winn emphasized the fact that volunteers are urgently needed in order for the plan to be successfully carried through. He said also that it is the desire of the class officers to obtain a cross-section of the class for the work.

Winter Term Set To Begin On Schedule

Good Standing To Be Required For Absentees

By Chuck Hauser

Christmas came yesterday for Carolina Cotton bowlers in the form of three days grace in absences at the beginning of the winter quarter.

Chancellor R. B. House notified all faculty members in a letter last night that, while the University will begin the quarter on schedule Tuesday, Jan. 3, any students attending the Carolina-rice clash in Dallas Jan. 2 may take University-sanctioned unexcused absences for three days in order to make the trip back to Chapel Hill.

The Chancellor pointed out, however, that students not in good academic standing could not miss classes, and any work missed by students qualified to take advantage of the plan would have to be made up.

Stating that the University was not taking a holiday, he explained the proposition after a meeting yesterday afternoon with the Committee of Deans and representatives of the student body.

Students going to the bowl game are responsible for doing several things before they buy their tickets for Dallas, unless they are just purchasing a one-way fare:

1. They must check with their deans and/or instructors if there is any doubt in their minds as to whether or not they are in good academic standing.

2. They must sign a card stating their intent to go to Dallas so their class tickets will be held for them until Jan. 6. The University Club will set up a booth in the lobby of Woolen Gymnasium for this purpose. Students who have the slightest idea that they might decide to attend the game should register.

3. They must buy tickets for the game on either Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday of next week. No student seats will be sold after Wednesday. Tickets or coupons to exchange in Dallas will be mailed out by Dec. 12.

The Chancellor's letter to the faculty read:

"Participation in the Cotton Bowl game by the University football team Jan. 2 has been authorized by the administration upon the recommendation of the Faculty Committee on Athletics.

"No change in schedule for the winter quarter is to be made. A student in good academic standing who attends the game will be permitted to complete his registration without fine not later than 8 o'clock Friday morning, Jan. 6.

Retire '22'?

RALEIGH, Nov. 30—(AP)—Governor Kerr Scott said today he doesn't have time to worry about how the University of North Carolina decides the burning question of whether it will retire Charlie Justice's famed 22 uniform.

The chief executive was asked at his press conference today if he had an opinion on whether the University should retire No. 22 in honor of its best-known grid star.

Without any explanation of his answer, the Governor merely replied, "I'm trying to keep from being retired myself."

Thomas Gives Up

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(AP)—Rep. J. Parnell Thomas (R-N.J.) today suddenly dropped his fight against charges of padding his congressional payroll and threw himself on the mercy of the court with a plea of "nolo contendere."

This meant he no longer contested the charges in a four-count indictment alleging fraud and conspiracy against the government.

Federal Judge Alexander M. Holtzoff immediately set Friday, Dec. 9, as the date for passing sentence on Thomas. The maximum penalty would be 32 years in prison and $40,000 in fines.
