

Dorm, Frat Wrestling Crowns To Be Decided This Afternoon

Intramural wrestling goes into its last lap today as the 32 remaining dormitory and fraternity matmen who have come through to the final grapple for the championships in their respective weight classes.

Today's matches mark the end of a highly successful season of intramural wrestling which featured some top-notch bouts and aroused a good deal of interest on the campus. A sizable crowd of spectators is expected to be on hand today to lend an ear to the fading grunts and groans of the intramural season and witness the awards. Handsome trophies will be awarded to both the dorm and frat champions in each weight class.

The remaining nine semifinals matches were completed yesterday without a single man being pinned. In the two matches of the 136-class, Gregory (Zeta) defeated Broadcloth (ATO) and Boren (Zeta) eliminated Pillsbury (DKE), both by decision.

Bell (ATO) decided Riley (ATO) in the 145-class, and in the 155-class, Lyon (Sig Chi) defeated Chatham (SAE), while Marshall (KA) took a victory over Benbow (SAE).

Blades (DKE) won a 6-4 decision over Boardman (SAE) in the third round of a 175-class thriller. In the same class Crowder (Zeta) won on a forfeit from Overman (Phi Gam).

In the heavyweight class Perry (Zeta) won over Ahern (ATO) by a 2-1 decision, and Harris (Lamb Chi) won by decision over Kirk (SAE).—RONALD TILLEY

Injury Jinx Still Plagues Footballers

The injury jinx which plagued Carolina throughout the regular season was still around yesterday as the Tar Heels got ready for their football game with Rice in the Cotton Bowl on Jan. 2.

Today, as they whistled through their second session of practice for the post season battle, nine regulars were counted in light equipment on the disabled list.

Wingback Fred Sherman and center Joe Neikirk were both listed as definitely out of the Cotton Bowl battle. Sherman watched the workout on crutches, hobbling on his bad knee. Neikirk sustained a cut hand last week while the squad was on vacation, and had it and his arm in a cast.

Charlie Justice ran through signal drills today but was still hobbling with a bad ankle. He hoped to be ready for the game, however.

Wingback Johnny Clements was out with a chronic leg ailment and before the drill was over, George Verchick had to go to the sidelines with an aggravated back injury. End Ken Powell was still incapacitated with leg trouble. Other cripples included tackles Jim Hendrick and Dave Wiley and guard R. L. McDonald.

Coach Carl Snavely sent the squad through a spirited contact drill, wasting no time in getting down to hard work. Backs Dick Bunting and Skeet Hesmer turned in some first-class running.

Tar Baby Cagers Take On State, Duke This Week

Carolina's freshman cagers, still undefeated and still a question mark in the minds of Tar Heel fans, must dispense with a week-end of rugged basketball before winding up their pre-Christmas campaign and disbanding for the holidays.

On Thursday night the Tar Babies open their Big Four freshman schedule against State's big, bad brood outfit in the brand new Coliseum, pride of the West Raleigh institution. The tilt is slated to begin at 6 o'clock as a preliminary to the State-George Washington varsity contest.

Friday night the local frosh will be at home for an engagement with Duke's vaunted Biby Imps in the first act of a Woollen Gym twin-bill. The Tar Heel varsity and George Washington will furnish additional entertainment in the nightcap.

Last Thursday the Tar Babies opened their season with a 65-49 victory over the Elon College javees, and they followed through with a 46-28 decision over Burlington High School on Saturday. Although these opening victories were no more than was expected of Coach Jim Hamilton's outfit, the two games on tab this weekend will test their ability to the utmost.—JOE CHERRY.

Today Is Last Day

Today is the last day that students may purchase tickets to the Cotton Bowl game on Jan. 2.

The Athletic Department made it clear late yesterday that its original statement of no exceptions after today still goes.

So far, some 400 students have bought ducaits to the far-off Carolina-Rice clash, but a late rush is expected today.

Students are reminded to sign up with the University Club at the Gym if they are going to Dallas so that their class tickets will be held.

Irish Name Weiner, Neikirk On All-Opponent Eleven

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 6—(AP)—The Notre Dame football squad today picket its all-opponent team, naming four Michigan State players and two each from North Carolina and Southern Methodist.

However, the Irish voted Southern Methodist as the best team they met this season and named Kyle Rote, SMU back, as their only unanimous selection on the all-opponent eleven.

Notre Dame had troubles downing both Michigan State and SMU. The Irish conquered the Spartans, 34 to 21, and nosed out the Mustangs last Saturday, 27 to 20.

Today's balloting was done by the 36 squad members who made the Southern Methodist trip. In the voting for the best team played, Southern Methodist received 19 first place votes and Michigan State, 17.

For the all-opponent team, a rundown shows that in addition to the SMU and Michigan State selections, two were picked from North Carolina and one each from Iowa, Indiana and Purdue.

The team with the number of votes each player received: Ends, Art Weiner, North Carolina (33) and Jack Dittmer, Iowa (14);

After Losing Candy . . .

Boystown Tar Heel Rates Top Fan Title

Though he may never receive the official honor, there is a 15-year old boy at the late Father Flannagan's Boystown in Nebraska who probably deserves the honor of being named North Carolina's No. 1 football fan.

The boy is Hubert Sutton, an orphan who lived in Roanoke Rapids before going to Boystown almost a year ago. Hubert has never seen Carolina play a football game, but for the past two years he has written to the University seeking pictures of his favorite team and its stars, Charlie Justice and Art Weiner.

This week Hubert's annual letter came. It read:

Dear Sirs,

Last year I send a letter to you for a picture of North Carolina's football and basketball team. And you so generously send them to me.

This year I would appreciate it if you would please send me a picture of Charley "Choo Choo" Justice in action. And one of Art Weniger too. I know this is asking an awful lot of you and your members. But since I have lived at Durham and Chapel Hill I am very interested in the Tar Heels.

I think if you had Justice you would have beat Notre Dame. In fact, I was so sure you would I bet 38 candy bars on North Carolina. Too bad Justice and Weniger are seniors this year. Or they have another chance next year. Well, thanks for the pictures.

A true fan, Hubert Sutton

Hubert's letter with its simple address, made the rounds of several University offices this week all of which were impressed enough to pass it on. Yesterday it reached the Daily Tar Heel and curiosities and interests aroused, a telegram was dispatched to Boystown to find out more about Hubert.

The answer was gratifying. It told of how Hubert, born in Selma, had come to Boystown almost a year ago from Roanoke Rapids. It seems that Hubert, homeless, hadn't made a very good start in life and through the efforts of Rev. Peter Deniges of Roanoke Rapids, the boy was finally sent to Boystown.

Since then the five foot six inch lad with red hair and a freckled face has become a model citizen of the Nebraska community. Of Protestant faith, Hubert is a good athlete with emphasis on football and basketball, especially the football. His devotion and admiration of his college heroes has brought new faith and interest to the lonely life of an orphan.

One of seven North Carolina boys at Boystown, Hubert, happier and with a full life ahead, is still a long way from home and the football team he loves. He, like many others, has but one more chance to see Charlie Justice and Art Weiner. But has Hubert a chance?

The answer remains with Hubert's fellow Tar Heel followers.

Cagers Face Lenoir-Rhyne Tonight In Contest At Hickory; GW Is Next

Back in the friendly confines of Chapel Hill after a brief week-end road trip, the Carolina basketballers went through a spirited workout yesterday as they prepared for their fourth contest of the budding season against Lenoir-Rhyne tonight in Hickory.

The Tar Heels encountered some real competition during their two game excursion into hostile lands and emerged from the trip scarred with their first defeat of the season after Monday's engagement against the Gobblers of V.P.I. After notching their second victory in the same number of outings against Richmond Saturday evening, largely through the 25 point effort of veteran Nemo Nearman, the local cagers hit a serious snag when faced with the Techmen.

While V.P.I. started off the fray with a bang and rolled into an early 16-0 lead, the Tar Heels couldn't hit a thing. Confronted with a zone defense and a hand-box arena, it took the locals 10 minutes the first half to score a point and by then it was too late. Although Bill White and John Tsantes did manage to locate the hoop with several tosses in the last half to reduce the margin, V.P.I. won with plenty to spare, 62-48.

The only bright note in the fray was Hugo Kappler's first appearance in Carolina's Blue and White game uniform this year. The local flash who had missed the Elon and Richmond victories in nursing a pulled leg muscle managed to perform for several minutes. Although he didn't score, it was evident that his leg is improving and that soon he will be able to give Coach Tom Scott and his teammates some solid support.

Naturally yesterday's practice session emphasized shooting, especially from the outside, and while not much trouble is expected from Lenoir-Rhyne tonight, all eyes are cast on Friday's clash with George Washington in a home contest that should excite plenty of local interest.

The Colonials, runners-up to State last year in the Southern Conference, have again combed the Metropolitan area of New York for its youngsters and together with returning talent, the Washington, D. C. outfit must rate a nod over the Tar Heels and a good bet to give State a struggle; the two meet in the Wolfpack's Eighth Wonder of the World Thursday night.
