

Old Furniture Auction Will Rid GM Of Excess

Graham Memorial is going into the furniture business again. At least until the spare sofas, armchairs, lamp shades, office chairs and other pieces of furniture are auctioned off.

Excess furniture from the Main Lounge will be sold at sealed bid auction, and will be on display on the basement floor of GM until Friday night at 11 o'clock. Interested parties are invited by Director Jim Rathburn to inspect the pieces and submit sealed bids containing their names and addresses to the Main Office, GM.

Furniture will be sold to the highest bidder. Rathburn said, subject to the approval of a committee appointed by the GM Board of Directors.

The items to be auctioned, all in "generally good condition," include parlor furniture such as sofas, armchairs and lamp shades, and two swivel office chairs. The furniture is no longer needed, the GM director said, now that new furniture has arrived.

Proceeds from the sale will be used to purchase other furniture needed for the building.

Injured

Toy Farrar, Negro worker, suffered a severe bruise on his right leg yesterday while moving forms on the library extension project.

This was the third injury to occur on the construction site. Other casualties were a broken ankle and fractured back.

Farrar is expected to return to work this week.

—Mr. Justice—

Mr. Justice tried to explain how he and Mrs. Justice felt during Charlie's 11 years of football. "We worried every time he was hurt," he said. "I can take it now, but Mrs. Justice still worried a lot right through that last game."

Charlie, according to Mr. Justice, got his speed from his father. "When I was young I could near outrun any rabbit in these hills," he said.

"All the time when he was little Charlie did nothing but think of football," the tired-faced man who resembled his famous son continued. "He used to play a lot with his big brothers, and I told them then, 'Someday Charlie will make monkeys out of all of you.'"

"There was just something about the way he ran that told me he would be a good football player."

Mr. Justice has the same mannerisms, that same swing in his shoulders, that same look in his eyes that people have seen in tions. During the summer vacations she ushered, worked in the box-office, and eventually was cast in bit parts at the Olney Summer theater.

She finally decided that things weren't moving fast enough, and dropped out of college to attend the American Academy of Dramatic Arts.

His son. He was dressed in his working clothes, and was just knocking off for lunch.

"I wish you could get to talk to Mrs. Justice," he said. "She's the one you should talk to about Charlie." And we wished the same thing. Because the whole family looked All-American to us.

"He has spoken at most of the large universities throughout the country, discussing Negro history and the Communist position on the Negro question. In December he debated at Harvard University against Prof. Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr."

Aptheker was a defense witness in the recent trial of the 11 Communist leaders in New York, at which he testified that he had taught in schools conducted by the Communist Party.

A question and answer period will follow Dr. Aptheker's speech.

FIREMEN SAVE THE ROAST

MURPHEYSBORO, Ill.—(AP)—Local firemen hurriedly responded to a summons to take care of an oven blast at the Paul Jacobs home here.

They got there in time to save a tempting roast in the oven but new kitchen furnishings and dining room furniture were damaged by smoke.

Richard Larkins, athletic director at Ohio State said it was "going beyond the limits that are necessary and may cause repercussions among bowl teams next year."

He said a bowl game is nothing more than an extended out-of-town game and that major wants are taken care of by the athletic department. Ohio State players were given $35 expense money for the Rose Bowl, he declared.

Brutus Hamilton, athletic director of the University of California, said the Golden Bears received no extra money, adding: "Their meals, board and entertainment, which was sometimes lavish, were taken care of, of course."

Dennis A. Heenan, athletic director of Santa Clara which traveled across the continent to play Kentucky in the Orange Bowl, declined to comment on how expenses were handled.

"Some of our boys gave up good jobs with good pay to play in the Orange Bowl," he said. "But I heard no complaints. They seemed happy enough."

EXCITING NEWS ABOUT

Du Pont's Newest Fiber

Hundreds of smaller businesses will join with Du Pont in bringing benefits of Orlon® acrylic fiber to you Strong sunlight will damage most fibers—but not "Orlon" acrylic fiber, the latest synthetic yarn to come from the Du Pont laboratories. This remarkable fiber, which took eight years of intensive research to develop, has a lasting resistance to sunlight, mildew, high temperatures and even sulfuric acid. Experts say that it is the best fiber yet found for outdoor use.

In 1940, Du Pont scientists began work on a new fiber that seemed to have unusual properties. Development continued during the war when, under the name "Fiber A," the output went for military use in the hot, humid South Pacific. Recently the Du Pont Company decided to build a plant at Camden, South Carolina, for full-scale production. This new plant will cost about twenty-two million dollars.

While samples of "Orlon" fiber are now in the hands of knitters, weavers and finishers for experimental purposes, it will probably be late 1950 before articles made of it will be generally available. Then you can expect to see it in awnings, convertible automobile tops, golf bags, sails, electrical insulation, as well as certain articles of clothing.

In developing the uses of "Orlon," Du Pont will work with hundreds of smaller businesses—a "partnership" that will bring Americans not only new and better products, but more jobs, more business activity and another contribution to better living.

SEND FOR the booklet "This is Du Pont." It is a 52-page picture story of one company's contributions to America. For your free copy, write to the Du Pont Company, 2503 Nemours Building, Wilmington, Delaware.
