Premiere Showing Of 'Front' Tonight

Casey Touring Production Set To Open In Playmakers; Will Run Until Sunday

The long awaited premier of Francis M. Casey's "Angels Full Front" takes place tonight at 8:30 in the Playmakers Theater. The new comedy is scheduled for each evening through Sunday and tickets will be on sale at the door.

"Angels Full Front, a new Irish-American comedy, is the fourth major production of the Playmaker season, and it will be their tour show for this year. It is the first original full length play to be toured by the group.

The play, a gentle comedy about life in an Irish-American family 25 years ago, deals with the age-old "battle between the sexes." The story centers around Pa Sullivan and the four women in his family who try to tell him how his life savings should be spent.

Many theater-goers from near-by towns will be on hand to greet the new play, and several out of town newspaper reviewers are expected to attend tonight's opening. Radio station WDCN, Durham, will cover the premier, with Staff announcer Frances Jarman on hand to interview visitors and members of the cast.

Drama people in Boston, New York, and Baltimore are closely following the course of "Angels Full Front," and newspapers in those towns have given accounts of the premier and tour. Indications show that this will be one of the most important first nights in recent Playmaker history.

The cast includes Bruce Strait as "Pa" Sullivan, and Josephine Sharkey as "Ma." Anne Martin will act the role of wilful daughter Maggie, while Elizabeth Kearney portrays Annie. The final members of the female Army that Pa must face is niece, Maggie, played by Sue Mendelsohn.

Others in the cast include Robin Simons, Eugene Jousse, Brad Arrington, Melvin Hosansky, Virginia Hamilton, Ed Grady, Charles Williamson, Edwin Nash, and Lynn Gault. Ed Loessin is stage manager, and scenery is by Lynn Gault. Irene Smart designed the costumes. (See CASEY, page 4)

Phi Eta Sigma

Seventy new members will be inducted into Phi Eta Sigma, freshman society on campus, at initiation ceremonies to be held in the Dialectic Hall at 7:30 tonight.

An average of 95 per cent is required of underclassmen to become eligible for entrance into the junior counterpart to Phi Beta Kappa, national scholastic honor society. This year marks Phi Eta Sigma's second year on the University campus.

Liquid Air To Be Topic For Lecture

What happens to flowers, rubber tubes and ordinary garden peas when they are cooled to the temperature of liquid air, or 190 degrees below zero, will be demonstrated by Dr. S. Y. Tyree of the Chemistry Department at a program in the main lecture hall in Venable Hall tonight at 8 o'clock.

Dr. Tyree said that when peas are cooled to this low temperature, they turn brittle like glass. Rubber tubing breaks and flowers splinter.

The experiment also demonstrates a remarkable increase in the conductivity of copper wire when it is cooled to such a low temperature.

"One of our favorite experiments," Dr. Tyree said, "is to freeze a gold fish and then thaw it out. This is usually successful, but once in a while the patient doesn't recover.

"We also like to try to heat a coffee percolator on a cake of dry ice. If the experiment works, the coffee percolates as if it were on a stove."

Last Showing Of '50 Grand To Be Tonight

Tuneful Musical Loosely Based On Past UNC Life

Sound and Fury tonight presents the final production of its new musical, "Fifty Grand," in Memorial Hall at 8 o'clock. The show is loosely based on the past half century of Carolina life and features a host of tuneful old Tin Pan Alley favorites.

Jim Mills and Jane Milligan handle the humorous leads, while Bill Rogers and Wilma Jones chirp, bill, and coo their way through the romantic leads, which are also humorous, in a mildly ironic way.

Able support is furnished these principals by Ginny Jones, Pat Jewell, tap dancer Mary Jo McLean, the Harmoners — Milton Bliss, Lanier Davis, Dick Smith, Jack Clinard, Daisy Belle Anderson, Jim Barker, and a number of others who remain unknown because the programs weren't available Sunday night.

The local Y Court is the scene of the crime which is first committed around 1900 and continues through five acts, and as many decades, till the present.

One sees the effect of the introduction of coeds to the campus, the Johnnies go marching off to war, the male-less wartime campus of 1917-18, the Johnnies come marching home, the rip roaring riotous 1920's, the depression-ridden '30's, the war-stricken '40's, and the '50's—what they'll bring no one knows and the S&Fers venture no predictions.

There's even a re-broadcast of FDR's declaration of war on Japan and Germany in his address to Congress on December 8, 1941

GEORGE BALDANZI

CIO Worker Will Speak Here At 8

George Baldanzi, executive vice president of the Textile Workers Union of America, will speak on "What Labor Wants" at 8 o'clock tonight in Gerrard Hall, John Eason, Chairman of the YMCA Program Committee, said yesterday.

In addition to presenting his talk tonight, Baldanzi will lead the four labor classes in the Commerce School this morning.

Baldanzi will be the third in a series of speakers in a YMCA program intended to bring a knowledge of national and world events to the campus and town and to analyze them in the light of Christian ethics. The Rev. McNeal Poterat and Senator Frank Grubbs were the first two speakers on the program.

Baldanzi's career as a labor leader began early in his life. He spent his early years working in Pennsylvania coal mines and later went to Paterson, New Jersey, where he worked in textile mills and was a leader in the attempt of the Paterson workers to build a labor union.

He organized the Dyers Federation and served as its president until 1936, and he was president of the United Textile Workers of America, AFL, until the time of its merger with the CIO's Textile Workers Union of America. He was elected executive vice president of the latter organization at its first Constitutional Convention in 1939 and has held that office ever since.

BVP Will Receive Paint, Repair Job

Battle - Vance - Pettigrew is scheduled for a complete paint and repair job next summer, J. S. Bennett, Director of Operations, said yesterday.

"The building is 45 or 50 years old," said Bennett, "and is therefore very hard to keep in decent condition." The building was painted in 1946, and should not need a paint job so soon, but the condition of the old plaster makes it imperative.

TV Will Soon Play Big Part In Education

Planetarium Boss Predicts Future For New Medium

As a means of making available the best in demonstration material, television productions will probably play a very important role in the schools in the near future, Dr. Roy K. Marshall, director of the Morehead Planetarium, predicted yesterday.

Apparatus too expensive to furnish to every school can be used to show students in all the schools of a large city system demonstrations that carry the story to the classrooms, Dr. Marshall explained.

"A practical test of television's potentialities for education, particularly in the field of science, will be given in Baltimore on March 8," he said.

"A group of educators assembled from cities across the nation are going to evaluate a 15-minute television show which will be transmitted by WBAL-TV and picked up in 25 classrooms on receivers donated by the station."

Already the recipient of every first award for education in television, Dr. Marshall is convinced that the possibilities of this new medium have been only mildly explored.

By convincing school authorities that television is as important as in-school films, Dr. Marshall hopes to put a receiver in every classroom in areas where television presentations from well equipped studios are possible.

"The school budget now takes into account the usefulness of films prepared for the school program," Dr. Marshall says. "It is only a matter of time before school budgets will include a subsidy to local television stations for their efforts in giving shows designed for in-school viewing.

"History, science, social studies and even mathematics can be presented via television in a way to stimulate the interest and participation of students, and the school systems should subsidize this effort.

"It is unfair to expect the stations to underwrite an effort which speeds the learning of the pupils and eases the labor of the teacher."

A general discussion of television as an educational medium, on the morning of March 8, will be followed by luncheon and further round-table sessions, in Baltimore.

At 2:30, Dr. Marshall will present (See TV, page 4)

Tonight's resolution is being considered because of the recent break off of relations between Bulgaria, a Soviet satellite, and the United States.

Over 85 Cases Last Week

Throat Sore? Back Ache? Sniffles? Influenza 'Bug' May Be After You

By Don Maynard

Is your throat sore? Does your back ache or your head hurt? Have you any muscular aches and pains accompanied by fever? And have you the sniffles?

If you have a combination of these, chances are you're flirting with the influenza bug, and should pay a visit to the University infirmary, according to Dr. E. McG. Hedgpeth, University physician.

More cases have been reported this winter than in the last two or three years, Dr. Hedgpeth said, but no indications show an epidemic on the way.

"But you never can tell about flu epidemics," the doctor said, "they usually come like a bolt from the blue."

About 12 years ago the nation was stricken with an epidemic which caused emergency measures to be taken. At the University, patients were hospitalized in Memorial Hall to accommodate the overflow from the Infirmary.

Between 85 and 90 cases were brought to the infirmary last week, Dr. Hedgpeth said yesterday, and though the outbreak has not developed to the epidemic stage, students were warned to exercise special precautions during this "hunting season" for the influenza germ.

There are usually two peaks reached during the year at which times flu is noticeably prevalent. October, November and the latter part of January through February are the two seasons most favorable to the malady, the doctor said.

Though relatively no more serious than the common cold if properly attended at its first symptoms, influenza can lead to more serious complications of the respiratory system and perhaps to pneumonia.

The next scheduled competition for the University debaters is the South Atlantic Tournament at Hickory this weekend.

By Roy Parker, Jr.

Banks Talley, junior from Bennettville, S. C., entered the race for student body Secretary-Treasurer last night as he took the Student Party nomination for the top campus money job.

The Party also named candidates for two women, two men,

Dick Murphy, long-time Student Party wheelhorse, took over the chairmanship of the party last night as Bill Prince, the SP candidate for student body vice-president, resigned the job.

Murphy is present head of the Campus Chest, which held its first drive this quarter. He is also a veteran worker in President Mackie's office.

and two at-large seats on the Student Council.

Today at 5 o'clock in Graham Memorial the Party will name its candidates for editors of the three campus publications, and for four seats on the Publications Board.

Talley won 30-5 the Treasurer nomination over Ben James, already the University Party candidate. He was backed by SP presidential nominee John Sanders.

A plan to "take the cheerleader nomination out of student politics," presented by head yeller Norm Sper, was tentatively adopted by the party. It would have a non-partisan board, composed of the retiring head cheerleader, and representatives of the University Club, WAA, CAA, and Monogram Club, endorse as many as three candidates for the job.

Named to the Student Council slate for women's jobs were Pat Bowie and Francis Drane, to men's seats were Bob Evans and Fred Thompson, and for at-large seats were Dan Bell and Jack Tripp.

Talley is a two-term Student Legislature veteran, twice president of the Dialectic Senate, has served as acting secretary-treasurer during the past summer session, has served as speaker and secretary-treasurer of the State Student Legislature, coordinator of the Yackety-Yack. He is presently serving as a member of the student body president's cabinet and the Constitutional Revision Committee.

Among the Council candidates, Thompson is a former member of the Men's Honor Council, Bowie is present chairman of Coed Orientation Committee, Bell is present chairman of the Student Council, Tripp is a former member of the Interdepartmental Council judiciary.
