

UNC Festival Week Gets Underway Today

Gallery Talk Is Scheduled By Art Head

Allcott To Talk On Person Show Today At 4:30

As one of the opening events of Spring Festival Week, John Allcott, head of the University Department of Art, will give an informal gallery talk on the current exhibit, in the Person Hall Gallery this afternoon at 4:30.

The exhibit, entitled "Contemporary American Painting," will be on display during the entire week. Mr. Allcott will discuss the general trends in contemporary American painting as represented in the various paintings on exhibit.

Included in the show are works by some of the world's most well-known artists, such as Max Ernst, Karl Zerbe, Henry Varnum Poor, Raphael Soyer, Ben Shawn and others.

Immediately following Mr. Allcott's talk a one-man show by Gerard F. Tempest will be opened in the Horace Williams Lounge at Graham Memorial. A reception for Mr. Tempest will be held at Graham Memorial at 5 o'clock. Refreshments will be served. Hostess for the occasion will be Mrs. H. G. Baily.

Tempest, currently studying for an A.B. in Philosophy here at Chapel Hill, has a varied art career already behind him. He studied at the Massachusetts School of Art; with Karl Zerbe at the Museum of Fine Art in Boston; and with the world famous Italian painter, George de Chirico, in Rome.

Asked for comments on modern art, Tempest said, "A modern artist works up to modern art. Modern Art is an end in itself. It should not be considered as a means to an end. You cannot start with modern art, you must go back to its source and follow its path to its present state; and then you can talk about modern art."

Gray For 'Realism' 'Stead Of 'Reaction'

WASHINGTON, May 13—Gordon Gray, president elect of the Consolidated University of North Carolina, last night said in addition to teaching the three "R's", the University should teach elimination of "some R's, such as radicalism and reaction, and the substitution for them of realism."

He spoke at a special going-away dinner at the Shoreham Hotel given by alumni groups of the three branches of the University. There were over 250 attending.

The former Secretary of the Army told a reporter he intended to assume his duties at the school "about August 1."

Gray promised to put emphasis on "freedom of research and the quest for truth; we shall not expose our youth knowingly and deliberately to warped minds."

The Winston-Salem radio owner and publisher asserted such emphasis would not be allowed to open the way for alien and totalitarian teachings. "The dignity of man," he declared, "will be preserved along with the preservation of the freedoms."

Gray described the school he is to head as "truly a people's University" with the proprietary interests of the people in the three branches to be nourished and encouraged.

Outdoor 'Medea' Production To Be Roughest Chore For Playmakers

By Mark Sumner
Staging their annual outdoor Forest Theater production is probably the most difficult task the Carolina Playmakers tackle in the course of a season. Their forthcoming production of "Medea," scheduled for May 19, 20, 21, is no exception.

Although the ancient Greeks, who launched Euripedes "Medea" on its 2000-year stage history, presented the play outside in the open theaters of the day, an outdoor production of the play in modern times raises numerous problems which must be faced by the director.

Staff member Foster Fitz-

Simons, who directed the recent production of Paul Green's "Tread the Green Grass," and "Cyrano de Bergerac" two years ago, is the one who has the head-aches. He is directing the show.

The Forest Theater, where the play will be presented, has a stage more than twice as wide as the one in the Playmakers Theatre, and the audience, nearly three times the size of the indoor theatre, sits on stone tiers built up the steep slope in front of the stage.

As in nearly all stage shows, the shop and technical crews have as much work as any of the leading actors. The lighting crew, Bullfighter Mario Cabre said today he is "profoundly in love" with actress Ava Gardner and "upset" over the visit Frank Sinatra is paying at her villa in nearby Tossa.

The crooner, who is separated from his wife, brought Miss Gardner an emerald necklace valued at $10,000.

Cabre said in an interview that he hoped to marry the American movie star who has previously been married to bandleader Artie Shaw and actor Mickey Rooney.

The husky handsome Spaniard said he left Tossa when Sinatra arrived "in order not to create a difficult situation for Ava."

But he lamented, "I am really sad" over the separation which has lasted three days now.

Cabre denied the romance was an effort to create publicity for a picture he, Miss Gardner and James Mason are filming here.

"No! Not that!" he said. "I have no commercial spirit. Don't forget that I am a poet."

"I love Ava with all my heart and will never be able to forget her," Cabre declared.

Jackasses? PhD's Bring Caustic Wit

AKRON, O., May 13—(AP)—A new Yale professor says the country is full of "Jackass college professors wanting boys to get PhD's (Doctor of Philosophy) for which they have no use."

Dr. Paul B. Sears, recently appointed head of Yale University's Conservation Department, spoke last night at a meeting sponsored by the Ohio Forestry Association.

"I'm sore about this situation of wasted young talent," Dr. Sears said. "I've seen these boys spending their years and energies studying subjects they can never use and then becoming discouraged after they are out of school."

Chancellor Lists Three Objectives For First Program

By Rolfe Neill

A three-pronged program built around the University, its students, faculty, and administration begins today in a week-long series of activities officially designated as the annual Spring Festival Week.

Chancellor Robert B. House, in announcing the initiation of the week, listed a three-fold purpose: To exhibit the work of the University over the past year; to foster among students, faculty, and administration a feeling of common purpose, and to extend an invitation to the people of the state to visit and become acquainted with their University.

Jim Rathburn, director of Graham Memorial, yesterday pointed out "the rapid increase in the size of the student body has set in motion a general tendency for the University to drift apart. We are losing our feeling of unity," he said.

"Symptoms of this drifting apart are the general exodus over the weekend; or worse, lonely students who must remain over the weekend with nothing to do. Then there's the general lack of respect for public property on the campus."

Suggesting several ways to improve the situation, Rathburn asserted social rooms should be provided for dormitories. "Particularly," he said, "in the men's residence halls where such facilities are completely lacking."

The encouragement of stronger organization of smaller groups within the University, such as class, school, department, or special interest groups was mentioned by Rathburn.

"A new student union building, adequately equipped, located, financed, and staffed, would go a long way towards solving many of the acute problems facing students, faculty, and administration," declared Rathburn.

Several exhibits and displays will continue throughout this week.

Person Hall is housing "Contemporary Painting." The main foyer of the library contains "Notable Acquisitions During the Past Year" and "Selected Gifts from Friends of the Library."

Visitors are invited to attend the broadcasts from the student-run radio station in Swain Hall from 4:30 until 6 o'clock. The students broadcast through the FM facilities of WDNC in Durham.
