

Walker Lauds South Koreans, Says Victory "Now In Sight"

By William Jordan
U. S. EIGHTH ARMY HEAD-QUARTERS, KOREA, Sept. 25—
(AP)—Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker,

praising the South Koreans as fighting men, said today that "victory is now in sight."

The Eighth Army commander added that victory would mean "a free and untrammelled society for all Koreans, with the dignity of the individual fully restored."

Walker said he had "nothing but the highest praise for these great fighting men," The South Koreans, in the United Nations' effort against North Korean Communist invaders.

He pointed out that at the beginning of the war the republic of Korea (Rok) Army had been taken by surprise and was outnumbered 40 to one in the initial battles. They had two choices: withdraw, or be annihilated, the General said.

Walker said prewar training given South Koreans by the American Military Advisory group was conducted "in accordance with sound military doctrine."

"The fact that they were without modern arms and equipment for offensive operations at the start of the war was no fault of either the Korean Army or the Korean government," he said.

Once placed on an equal basis with the enemy, the South Koreans showed themselves superior, Walker said. He added that the forces of President Syngman Rhee's government had outgunned, outmaneuvered and outfought the Communists.

Poor Response

Jimmy Mills, Editor of the Yackety Yack, said yesterday that freshman response to having their pictures taken was very poor and that the magazine was losing money because of it.

Only four frosh showed up yesterday. Two photographers are on hand on the second floor of Graham Memorial and Mills asked that the students come between 12 o'clock and 9 o'clock. This is the last week for frosh pictures.

Mills also announced that there will be a meeting of the Yack staff in the Yack office this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

damage at State were available, but J. S. Bennett, director of operations here, estimated the cost at "somewhere near $300." Removal of the paint requires the use of steam blast equipment, he said. The apparatus must be brought from Durham or Raleigh, he said, and may require several days before cleaning begins.

"We're not killing ourselves to get the equipment over here," he declared, explaining that the longer the paint stays on the bell tower, the more the gravity of the vandalism will be impressed on the student body.

lack of sportsmanship, of consideration for the reputation of one's school, and of respect for the property of others," Sanders stated in his formal reproach.

"After two years with no recurrence of vandalism between Carolina and State, Duke or any other school, we had come to consider it a shameful relic of our past, and like freshman hazing, fit only to be hastily forgotten," he said.

"Yet for all our hopes and ef-orts, the specter of vandalism again stalks the campus," Sanders said. "The fire is lighted, and all of us must share the responsibility for seeing that it is quenched.

"The success of any efforts which are made, however," Sanders declared, "will depend on the willingness of the students on each campus to act sensibly and maturely, and to reject in the name of good sportsmanship, fair play and decent conduct any such outrages as those of last week-

Foreign Students Greeted by Club

Students from 16 foreign countries attended the opening meeting of the Cosmopolitan Club Sunday in the Rendezvous room.

Among countries represented were, Canada, China, England, France, Germany, Hawaii, India, Iran, Japan, Luxembourg, Mexico, New Zealand, Peru, Scotland, and the Virgin Islands.

President Jim Wilson of Scotland extended a welcome to foreign exchange students here. He also invited other students to attend future meetings of the club. He noted, however, that a minimum of fifty per cent of the membership must be foreign-born students, as required by the club's constitution.

The major purpose of the club is to help foreign students adjust themselves to the customs of this country.

Wilson said the club will meet each Sunday at 4 p.m. in the Rendezvous room.
