Tar Heels Go After Fourth Straight Victory Over Bulldogs

Strictly Ad Lib By Zane Robbins

Gawja, Here We Come

LOOK OUT, GAWJA, HERE come the Tar Heels-big as life and twice as rugged. Carolina has defeated the Bulldogs three times in as many years, and will be out to make it a fourth. If the Tar Heels succeed in dealing the Georgians their second consecutive loss of the season today, it will mark the first time that a

Wally Butts-coached Georgia eleven has dropped four straight to

The Carolina-Georgia series started back in 1895 when the teams played two games in one year. The Carolinians took both games, winning the first, 6-0, and taking the second, 10-6. Georgia won, 24-16, in '96, but couldn't score against the Tar Heels again until the year before the outbreak of World War I. Carolina won, 44-0, in '98; 5-0 in '99; and 55-0 in 1900. The series was not resumed again until 1913.

That 55-0 defeat, incidentally, was the worst ever suffered by a Georgia eleven. In fact, Carolina is the only team ever to score as many as 50 points against the Bulldogs. The series record shows that Carolina has won 10 games, lost seven, and tied one.

Sherman Again

THE GOOD FOLKS DOWN Athens way will probably be more than mildly alarmed to learn that Sherman is on his way back. We don't mean the infamous damyankee general, but a transplanted Yankee wingback, Fred Sherman.

Fred has been hampered all season and most of last year with a trick knee that buckles under him every time he tries to cut. Therefore, he will probably see very little, if any, duty at his regular wingback slot. He may, nevertheless, prove to be one of the deciding factors in the outcome of the game.

The bookies are split on their choice of the winner, but seem to agree that there wil be no more than seven points difference between the teams when the final horn sounds.

Sherman has taken over the place-kicking duties from Tackle Abie Williams this year, and has shown well in the two previous games. He booted one goal, and missed another by a hair in the State game, but came through handsomely when the chips were down against Notre Dame last Saturday, kicking the point that tied the score at 7-all.

If things run true to form, Sherman's toe might well wreck the Bulldogs tomorrow. These Sherman boys have a habit of destroying things for the Crackers.

A veteran line will be starting for Georgia.-It will be built around Captain Mike Merola at right end, alternate captain Dick Yelington at right tackle, and Center Bill Bradshaw, a three time letter winner.

Defensively, Carolina will have George Norris and Glen Nickerson at ends, Julian King and Roscoe Hansen at tackles, Don Kimel and Dave Wiley as the guards, and Captain Huck Holdash at center. The backfield will probably be made up of Skeet Hesmer, Chal Port, Dick Weiss, and Bud Carson.

UNC Harriers Hold Trials

Carolina's freshman cross country team will open its season in against Duke's frosh harriers.

The varsity team, expected to be one of the strongest in several years, will inaugurate its 1950 campaign here next Saturday against Wake Forest and Virginia Tech in a triangular meet. The Tar Heel hill and dalers defeated both last year and will be favored ants, clash tomorrow at Duke
