Tar Heels Meet W&M In Homecoming Game

Marriage Topic Is Big Hit For Religious Week

'19 Top Speakers To Be On Campus Giving Lectures

Carolians signing up for seminars to be held under a Religious Emphasis Week program Nov. 12-16, have shown most interest in courses dealing with courtship, marriage, and family.

Terry Holmes, student chairman, said yesterday this topic is drawing more students than any of the other four to be offered during the week which will bring 19 noted leaders here to speak.

Reverend Leslie R. Smith, pastor of Central Christian Church, Lexington, Ky., will speak at the "courtship, marriage, and family" seminar. He is a recognized authority on psychology, marriage, and preparation for family life.

"Problems in the Far East" will be led by J. L. Stokes, secretary of religion on north college campuses. Stokes, born in Korea, received his education at Seoul Foreign School.

Phillips Moulton, director of Chapel House and Interchurch Council at the University of Chicago also will speak with Stokes.

Other subjects and their speakers include "The Meaning of the Christian Faith," Gregory Eichenlaub and Herbert King; "Christian Vocations," Stokes and C. P. Hall; "Labor Relations," Miss Brownie Lee Jones, and "Science and Religion," Maurice Trimmer.

As well as the seminars, dormitory, fraternity, sorority, and classroom discussions will be held.

Co-sponsored by the University Christian Mission and the Carolina Council of Religion, Religious Emphasis Week will be having its fifth annual meeting on the campus.

Frosh Plans Made By Y

The YMCA program for the year is well under way with two freshman programs scheduled for this coming week.

Tickets went on sale in the Y lobby yesterday for a supper and discussion in the Presbyterian Church Annex Monday at 6 o'clock. The discussion will concern "Religion in College Life."

Next Saturday has been set for the annual freshman deputation to Greensboro and the Woman's College. The number of tickets has been limited, however, to 50. First preference will be given to freshmen Y members. Tickets are now on sale in the Y.

Wrong Pat

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 27—(AP)—The mailman made a mistake today, causing much merriment at the Marquette University Engineering School.

Delivered to Pat Flanagan, a petite 115-pound coed was a letter from the Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League. It asked whether she was interested in playing pro football.

Miss Flanagan, as you may surmise, was quite surprised. It didn't take her long, though, to regain her composure and find the right addressee—classmate Pat Flanagan, 235-pound varsity tackle.

Big Pat said he didn't know whether he could do anything about the letter, either. He still has one year of eligibility at Marquette.

THESE ARE THE GALS WHO ARE SERVING as sponsors for German Club members this weekend at the Woody Herman dances. Top row, left to right: Mary Strickland, High Point, with Jake Froelich, Jr., High Point, president of the German Club; Nancy Allison, Sylva, with George B. Blackwelder, Jr., Hickory, treasurer; Corinne Grimsley, Greensboro, with Marvin Ferrell, Winston-Salem, vice-president; Harriet Russell, Harrodsburg, Ky., with Bill Rue, Danville, Ky., secretary. Second row from top: Mary Rogers Pender, Charlotte, with Rennie Cuthbertson, Charlotte; Ellen Treadway, Roanoke, Va., with Ken Wallenborn, Charlottesville, Va.; Bette Craig, Mount Holly, with Herman A. Moore, Charlotte; Mary Jane Wood, Hartsville, S. C., with Chuck Haywood, Turnersburg; Next to bottom row: Ellis Hamrick, Shelby, with Bill Bostic, Forest City; Ruth Bundy, Greenville, S. C., with Jim Heldman, Durham; Fay Millican, Greensboro, with David Allen, Greensboro; Libba Roe, Wilmington, with Billy Quarles, Rocky Mount; Last row: Marion Nolan Turner, Greensboro, with Bynum Rhodes Brown, Murfreesboro; Jean Pope, Wilmington, with Ralph Hubbard, Wilmington; Jane Parker, Goldsboro, with Dan Perry, Kinston, and Rosa Talbert, Lexington, Ky., with Dan Uzzle, Durham.

Segregation Scored By Sanders, McLeod

Student Body President John Sanders and YMCA President Ed McLeod yesterday scored the enforcement of the University's public meeting segregation policy for the talks by Japanese Christian Evangelist Toyohiko Kagawa earlier this week.

Kagawa's talks, sponsored by the Chapel Hill Ministerial Association, were changed from Memorial Hall to the Methodist Church when Chancellor Robert B. House informed the sponsors that segregation would have to be enforced at the gatherings if they were held on University property.

In the past, a number of educational meetings, such as Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt's lectures last year, have been held on campus with Negroes unsegregated in the audience.

"We have for years had unsegregated public meetings here of every type," Sanders and McLeod said in a joint statement. "These meetings, we are informed, were contrary to University policy, itself nebulous at best."

But the fact that in no case have these meetings resulted in disorders or difficulties among those attending argues against the necessity for such a policy.

The statement continued, "So we cling to our tattered remnants of tradition and say to our Negro fellow-citizens, 'We are sorry, but you must sit in the rear of the hall'—even to hear the words of a man who tells us that all men are brothers."

Sanders and McLeod charged that present customs in regard to the Negro race "are largely phenomena of fear and ignorance."

They continued, "In the field of social relations, as well as in the field of public health, the University has a responsibility for working to abolish both ignorance and its evil effects."

Ike Is Choice To Command Defense Unit

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27—(UP)—The 12-nation military committee of the North Atlantic Pact has unanimously recommended Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as Supreme Commander of Western Europe's Unified Defense Forces, it was disclosed today.

The five-star general, now president of Columbia University, will arrive here tomorrow for conferences with President Truman and presumably will be asked if he will take the post.

Eisenhower has plainly indicated that he will. He told reporters in Charleston, W. Va., today that "as a soldier, I feel it would be my duty."

On the east coast summer clad South Koreans of the Capital Division sloshed 14 miles in 12 hours through fresh snowdrifts to within five miles of the port city of Songjin in weather so bitter that two soldiers froze to death.

A Hammer, Pliers For The W(r)ench

Don't Give The Wife Sables; Give The Little Dear A Tool Kit

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27—(AP)—Your government came up today with this suggestion for an ideal bridal gift:

Give the little dear a tool kit. It isn't a gag. The idea came from Dr. Earl McCracken, household equipment expert for the U. S. Department of Agriculture. He thinks it's just the thing that the young wife should have.

His recommendation: A hammer, two screw drivers (one large, one little), a medium sized pair of pliers and a six-inch crescent wrench.

Troops Grind Toward River In Manchuria

S. Korean General Says 'Not Worried' About China Reds

TOKYO, Saturday, Oct. 28—(UP)—The United Nations drive toward the Yalu River border of Manchuria resumed its grinding forward motion today, amid the first bitter cold of winter and persisting reports that Chinese Reds were fighting with the North Koreans.

It seemed certain that some Chinese Communists—one report

WITH U. S. FIRST CORPS IN KOREA, Sat., Oct. 28—(AP)—An American Army spokesman said today that two Chinese captured with North Korean troops were "illiterate" and their reports that 20,000 Chinese Red troops had crossed from Manchuria into Korea were regarded with skepticism.

said 40,000—were in North Korea. However, Maj. Gen. Yu Jae Heung, commander of the South Korean 2nd Corps said:

"We are no longer worried about the Chinese."

United Nations sources said that if the Chinese really intended to make a fight of it in Korea, 40,000 men would be a drop in the bucket. They would have to at least match Allied forces of 170,000 men and probably would need many more.

They believed the Chinese were there only to protect vital Yalu River hydro-electric projects which feed power to Manchuria.

The North Koreans again defiantly proclaimed they would "fight to the last man." But their boast was a dying gasp.

Northwest of Pyongyang the 5th Regimental Combat Team of the U. S. 24th Division passed through the British Commonwealth Brigade at Kasan, 63 miles east of the Yalu River mouth, and swung northward toward the Manchurian border, 57 miles away.

To the right of the Americans, the South Koreans burst out of twin traps and pushed westward toward vital hydroelectric plants on the Yalu River boundary; and hoped to reach the river sometime today.

On the east coast summer clad South Koreans of the Capital Division sloshed 14 miles in 12 hours through fresh snowdrifts to within five miles of the port city of Songjin in weather so bitter that two soldiers froze to death.

Carolina Is Facing 'Acid Test' In 2 O'Clock Clash In Kenan

By Frank Alston, Jr.

Carolina's gridders will face the acid test this afternoon when they come face to face with a determined tribe of William and Mary Indians in a Kenan Stadium Homecoming contest, set for 2 o'clock.

Both teams will enter the clash today with losing records and the outcome could very well mean the difference between a winning and a losing season for both.

The Tar Heels will carry a record of one win, two defeats and a tie into today's game. William and Mary will sport a two won and three lost record and will definitely be on the war-path.

Coach Rube McCray's warriors have never topped Carolina in seven previous meetings. Carolina has taken victory five times and two of the contests have ended in ties. The last time the Indians visited Kenan Stadium was back in 1948 when they hung a 7-all deadlock on Carolina, the only blot on the otherwise perfect record of the Tar Heel Sugar Bowl squad.

Carolina has been named the odds-on favorite for today's encounter, presumably on the basis of the calibre of opposition. The men who are supposed to be in the know say that the Tar Heels look to be 14 point favorites.

William and Mary, however, will be out to mark its first victory over Carolina and is expected to be at top form for this all-important Southern Conference clash. Approximately 20,000 fans are expected to file into the stands today to witness the expected bitter struggle.

Carolina will be out to prove to the loyal Tar Heel followers that this is not just another football team and that the Indian sign will be on the Green and Silver warriors. With two weeks to practice for this battle, everyone in the local camp is confident of victory.

For the fifth consecutive game of the season, fans will see a revamped Tar Heel starting team. C. C. White has been moved from his strong side end position to the weak side and Benny Walser will man the strong side flank.

Tom Higgins, who has previously been in at the weak side end position, has been moved to offensive guard where he will team with Doc Venters. The remainder of the starting team will be the same as the one which started against Wake Forest.

W&M operates out of a single wing attack similar to the Carolina system, but mixes in a little "Y" formation. The Indian Y is akin to the Carolina A-formation with a quarterback behind center rather than a wingback.

A couple of personal duels will add fire to the contest today. (See INDIANS, page 4)

Included on the program are a number of old English songs, the "Woman's Life and Love," or "Frauenliebe und Leben" cycle of Schumann, two modern French numbers, "Ah, Fors E Lui," and "Sempere Libers" by Verdi.

Mrs. Thompson, who will be accompanied by Joyce Ripley, is a student of E. L. Williams, head of the Greensboro College Voice Department.

She is a graduate of George Peabody College for Teachers in Nashville, Tenn., and is a member of Sigma Alpha Iota, national honorary music fraternity.

Admission is free. Students and the public are invited to attend.

It was noted that only those with instructions on the cards would participate in this stunt.

350 Students At Pep Rally Hear Fetzer

"It's been said many times that a team that won't be beaten can't be beaten," said Coach Bob Fetzer at the small but enthusiastic pep rally last night in Memorial Hall.

That was the theme of the entire rally that was attended by a group of about 350 Carolina students. The spirit that has prevailed in recent rallies, however, was not diminished by the lack of participating Tar Heels. It was expected that the dance last night would sharply cut the size of the crowd.

"Carolina Victory" started the ball rolling. Cheerleader Joe Chambliss then said: "Tomorrow we're going to show the whole country what we can do."

A special skit featuring four "Indians" was presented by students. At the conclusion of the skit Chambliss kindly booted one of the Indians in the place where the crowd yelled and howled for the kick to be placed.

New cardboard displays were shown—Chambliss explained that the card section today was going to try a new type of stunt, a handkerchief stunt. He pointed out that the instructions for this stunt would be printed on the backs of the regular instruction cards.

It was noted that only those with instructions on the cards would participate in this stunt.

Charlie Says No

Special to The Daily Tar Heel

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27—Former North Carolina All-America Halfback Charlie Justice, who recently joined the professional Washington Redskins, today emphatically denied a rumor that he would go to work for Senator-elect Willis Smith.

"We don't even know Mr. Smith," Charlie said. Both he and his wife said they had no idea where the rumor started.

A story in the sports section of the Washington Post reported that Smith had offered a position on his staff to Justice.
