

NCAA Kills 'Sanity Code' - Bans Football On Television

Institutions To Control Own Policies

DALLAS, Tex., Jan. 12—(UP)—The National Collegiate Athletic Association today threw out its controversial sanity code, the high-principled regulation adopted three years ago to purify sports, and slapped a year's ban on live telecasting of intercollegiate football.

In its national convention, the NCAA cut the heart out of the code by giving "control and responsibility for conduct of intercollegiate athletics" to the institutions themselves or their conferences.

Close Vote

Opponents of the code had a narrow squeak, however, with the secret ballot showing 130 in favor of the code-killing 'Amendment D' and 60 against. That was a three-vote margin for anti-code elements, who needed two-thirds, or 127, votes.

Technically, the NCAA will still have on its books a "code," but it becomes a mere piece of paper for reference by the conferences or independent schools. Without penalty, they will be free to interpret the remains of the code with whatever latitude they want.

TV Banned

The NCAA also banned, for at least one year, live telecasting of intercollegiate football.

The National Convention vote on banning television was overwhelming—161 to 7—for adoption of a resolution imposing a year's moratorium because TV has "an adverse effect on gate receipts and, if not controlled, seriously threatens the whole structure of intercollegiate athletics."

One of the outstanding principles of the code preserved for the books was that on recruitment of athletes, prohibiting official offers by schools of "financial aid or other equivalent inducement." But the conferences or schools will be their own judges.

And stricken from the NCAA books was that section which limited athlete aid to tuition and "stated institutional fees." The way was opened for direct financial aid.

Gymnasts Set For Tonight

Bill Meade's Carolina Gymnasts will make their first appearance of the season between halves of the Carolina-Davidson basketball game tonight.

The three events to be exhibited will be the high bars, parallel bars, and the flying rings. Jim Madison, Check Goodin, and Tom Harrison will perform on the parallel bars while Madison, Goodin, and Andy Bell will be on the high bars. Performing on the flying rings will be Harrison, Goodin, and Murray Cooke.

The Gymnasts will open their season against Georgia Tech in Atlanta next Saturday, and tonight's exhibition will be a warm-up for the season's opener.

Tar Heels To Meet Davidson Here Tonight, W. Va. Monday

Carolina's basketball team which put an end to an eight game losing streak Thursday against Wake Forest meets scrappy Davidson tonight and will meet the Virginia Monday night in home games.

Both are Southern Conference contests and begin at 8 p.m.

Davidson brings a tough team that has been hampered by lack of height this year and that, like the Tar Heels, has a spotty record. However, last Tuesday night Coach Boyd Baird's Wildcats pushed N. C. State to the limit before losing 61-70. They held a lead over the conference pacesetters most of the game, once stretching it to 13 points.

Carolina nipped Davidson 72-69 in an earlier game this year, which saw the Wildcats effectively employ the zone defense during the first half and the man-for-man during the second.

Three Over Six Feet

Guard Dutch Hengeveld, and Forwards Don Lazenby and Tommy Haller, all of who are over the six foot mark, form an effective scoring combination. These three, plus Center Bill Brooks, who did a great job of guarding Sammy Ranzino, and Guard Malcolm McLean will probably form the starting line-up.

The Tar Heels will stick with their line-up which won for them against Wake Forest. Sophomore Forward Jack Wallace is the top scorer with 181 points in 12 games for an average of 15 points. Center Howard Deasy is second with 166 points and Forward Vince Grimaldi is third with 140.

West Virginia, which meets Duke tonight in Durham, will draw a capacity crowd Monday night in Woollen Gym.

The Mountaineers will have with them six foot, nine inch

JACK WALLACE

... leads Tar Heel scoring ...

Mark Workman, the nation's second high scorer. During their first nine games he made 233 points for an average of 25.9, right behind Temple's Bill Milkv, the leader.

In Conference play West Virginia has beaten Wake Forest, South Carolina, and George Washington. Both Carolina and West Virginia have been beaten by NYU in New York, the Mountaineers losing by a large margin, while the Tar Heels were topped by only six points.

Frank Rodriguez, Joe Ryan,

Moo Moore, and Jim Coaler round out the West Virginia line-up.

Undefeated Tankmen To Meet U. Va.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Jan. 12—The University of North Carolina's swimming team arrived here this afternoon where they will meet the Virginia University swimmers tomorrow evening.

Under the supervision of their coach, Richard Jamerson, the undefeated Tar Heels went through a short workout in the Virginia natatorium shortly after their arrival.

The Charlottesville crew, paced by the sensational diving of Bill Edwards and Jim Westlake, will be out to upset the favored Tar Heels.

Swimming relations between the two schools began in 1939, the first year a Carolina team was formed. The Tar Heels fell by the wayside 30-45 but bounced back in 1940 to reverse the score.

Heels Win Two
In the other two meets, Carolina was the victor by scores of 54-21 and 61-14. Pete Mullis, presently an instructor in the Physical Education department, was a member of Carolina's 1939 squad.

The North Carolina squad will be led by its nationally-ranked captain, Jimmy Thomas, who has established himself as one of the greatest swimmers in the East. Thomas' latest accomplishment was a new intercollegiate mark in the 200-yard backstroke earlier this week.

Chic Hallock, distanceman for the Cavaliers, will be out for a first place in the 440-yard freestyle when he meets Carolina's highly touted Cecil Milton. Hallock has shown great improvement in the past two weeks and should be ready for this encounter.

In a preliminary meet, the Tar Heel freshmen will meet the University of Virginia's freshman team.

Matmen To Face V.M.I. In Season Opener Today

Light drills featured the Carolina varsity wrestling practice yesterday as the groaners prepared for their opening match against VMI. The match will be this afternoon at 4 o'clock in Woollen Gym.

A new coach and largely new talent predominates the Carolina squad. Sam Barnes, the Tar Heel mentor, will be facing his former charges this afternoon when the Tar Heels meet the VMI squad. Barnes coached the Keydets for four seasons before the war and returned there in 1947, where he remained until he came to Carolina last fall.

VMI, champion of last year's Southern Conference dual meet schedule, will have three of the conference's top wrestlers with them when they take on the Tar Heels this afternoon. Heavyweight Jerry Eggleston, 130-pound Irvin Perry, and lightweight Johnny Jordan all hold high honors in Conference competition.

Barnes expressed optimism concerning the Tar Heel team regardless of its lack of experienced men. Only two lettermen will be present on the Carolina squad—Tommy Cox and Bill Schwartz. Other experienced members are Ken Stucky and Ernest Ramsdell, freshman wrestlers last year.

Wrestlers spotted in the intramural tourney have been working out well, however, and Coach Barnes will be going along with three of them tomorrow. They are Jim Ragsdale at 157, Lyn Bond at 177, and Ted McLaughlin at heavyweight.

Chigger Qualles will be wrestling at the 147 spot.

An interesting note in the rivalry between the two schools lies in the fact that VMI was handed its last defeat by Carolina. The Tar Heels defeated VMI in the 1949 season and the Keydets have been undefeated since.

Tar Babies, Davidson Five Vie Tonight

Sporting a record of four wins and two losses, the Tar Baby basketball team engages the Davidson freshmen tonight at 6:15 in a contest that will be played prior to the varsity game with the Wildcats.

In an earlier match this season between the two freshman squads, played at Davidson, the Tar Babies came out on top, 73-59. In an attempt to get back into winning ways after being dropped by Wake Forest 83-51 Thursday night the Carolina freshmen went through tough drills yesterday.

Because of his performances recently Webb Sherrill has been nominated to sixth man and may see a good deal of action at guard. Otherwise the lineups remain the same for the Tar Babies.

The Tar Babies also will play the Duke freshmen Monday night here at Woollen Gym. The contest will be the first of three games scheduled between the two rival schools.

5 Trackmen Are Entered In Star Meet

Special to The Daily Tar Heel
WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 12—A small squad of five North Carolina trackmen arrived here late this afternoon for tomorrow's annual Evening Star Meet.

Carolina Coach Dale Ranson brought with him two pole vaulters, a sprinter, the Southern Conference high jump champ, and a hurdler to carry the blue and white colors of the Tar Heel school in this popular event.

Romas White and Bob House, who have consistently hit over the 13-foot mark, will be contending for the pole vaulting crown.

Jack Moody, who placed third in the high jump here last year, will be a very definite threat in that event. Since last year's meet he has run off with the Southern loop's title.

In the tough sprint division, Coach Ranson will have Southern indoor title holder, Dave Willis. Some of the top runners from the East will be on hand, however, to try to top the little scouter.

Garrett Fitzgibbons will try to take up where the Tar Heels' Bob Morrow left off last year in the 70-yard high hurdles. Morrow placed second behind Jim Gherdes in that event last winter. Fitzgibbons has come along fast and will give tough competition to Gherdes, who will be back to defend his crown.
