UN Forces Plunge To Han River Edge; One Mile To Seoul

Tanks Drive Through Blinding Snow Carrying War To Doorstep Of Capital

TOKYO, Saturday, Feb. 10—(UP)—American tanks and troops carried the Korean war back to the doorstep of Seoul yesterday, plunging through a snowstorm to the Han River and a ridge only a mile from the capital's suburbs.

The Communist defenders of Seoul, their shattered ranks cut by casualties and retreat from 100,000 to 10,000 in a shrinking pocket below the Han, virtually gave up the fight. Resistance to the Allied onrush was light or non-existent.

A U.S. 3rd. Division tank force dashed four miles in 75 minutes without a fight to the bank of the Han 4-1/2 miles south-east of Seoul. It was dispatched personally by Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, commander of the 8th Army, after the storm kept Gen. Douglas MacArthur from landing in Korea for the event.

GI's of the U.S. 25th Division took over a ridge just southwest of Seoul looking a mile down on Yongdunpo, industrial community directly across the Han from the ruined capital city.

And a third task force wheeled northward along the west coast highway to within six miles of Seoul's port of Inchon. Naval raiders hammering the big port 18 miles southwest of Seoul found it feebly defended.

Wildcat Strike On Railroads Comes To End

Embargoes Lifted On Mail, Express As Jam Continues

By United Press
Railroad switchmen ended their 10-day wildcat strike yesterday and embargoes on the mails and Railway Express were lifted.

Returning switchmen, spurred back to their jobs by an Army

CHICAGO, Feb. 9—(UP)—Federal Judge Michael L. Igou today fined the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen $25,000 for contempt of court in the December switchmen's strike and acquitted individual defendants.

ultimatum to work or be fired, tackled the task of moving the thousands of freight cars jammed up in yards from coast to coast.

Rail officials estimated that it would take a week or more to clear the logjam of freight. But speedy progress was made in getting passenger service back to normal.

At Washington, postmaster Jesse Donaldson lifted the embargo imposed last week on practically all mail except letters, newspapers, bank notes and medicines and other emergency supplies.

The Railway Express Agency also lifted all embargoes, effective as of last midnight, but advised shippers that there might be delays until the freight jam-up is cleared.

The Army, acting at the direction of President Truman, ordered the strikers back to work and handed them a 12-1/2 cent hourly pay boost.

But while the switchmen went back to work, some grumbled feelingly at the tactics of the government. They didn't like the charge of Mr. Truman that union leaders had acted like a bunch of Russians.

In a letter to the University, Dr. Margaret Schlauch, 52, said: "I am afraid that the economic and political future at home is not auspicious, if not for a Chaucer specialist, if even for a person has been and still is a Marxist."

New York University said she had been a good teacher of English. The University said she had done research for the government on "restricted" projects during the war.

"Under our American system of academic freedom, no disciplinary action was taken against her because of her political beliefs as long as there was no evidence that they interfered with her scholarship and classroom teaching," the University said.

"We will be interested to learn whether in years to come she will enjoy equal freedom at the University of Warsaw as a teacher there."

Crusading Over The Nation

Evangelist Billy Graham Might Go On Salary Because Of Much Criticism Of Love Offerings

By Ralph L. Howland
Associated Press Staff Writer
Evangelist Billy Graham, who crusades over the nation, says he may go on a salary.

The 32-year-old well-groomed preacher says he is considering that because of some criticism he has heard of donations and "love offerings."

Interviewed shortly before he addressed a crowd of 2,000 persons in Memorial Hall here, Graham asserted his monetary affairs caused him no great concern.

"I'd welcome a look at my income tax returns," he said.

Public subscriptions and other offerings have poured large sums of money into local committees handling his campaign during the 20-odd months he has been rated as one of the nation's top evangelists.

Few people realize the enormous expenses involved in this type of work. For example, his network weekly radio broadcast from Minneapolis costs $10,000, he said, and it is quite a task to keep up with the money.

Actually, Graham said, his needs are modest. He maintains a home at Montreat, where his attractive wife and their three daughters live.

The rest of the money, after expenses, goes to the Northwestern Schools at Minneapolis, of which he is president, to various charities, to missions, and radio work. Even now, he added, he is helping support three missionaries on F.O.R.A. Conversions there are amazingly high, Graham said.

Graham asserted he was glad the question of his financial affairs had been broached; he had given it considerable thought.

Now a complete team of auditors will be engaged to keep a cent-by-cent check of his campaign's income.

Graham cited an example of what he meant by criticism of his fiscal affairs. He pulled out a pocketbook, bordered with a metal that resembled tin—the kind one may see in almost any men's shop.

It was given him "by a convert," he said.

Recently he took it out of his pocket in a public place to pay a bill. There followed a letter to the editor in a newspaper, he went on, saying that Evangelist Graham pulled out a well-wadded pocketbook, bordered in gold.

Cosmopolitans To Hold Show Tomorrow

Singing, Dances Of Many Nations Will Be Featured

Entertainment highlights from a dozen foreign countries will be offered University students tomorrow night with the presentation of the annual Cosmopolitan Club show in the Playmakers Theater at 8:30.

Featured on the program will be songs and dances of many nations, all done in native costumes, by foreign students at the University and other members of the Club.

The show is an annual affair and last year was rated a top attraction of the year by students who saw it.

A few of the numbers to be presented will be a series of Indian songs and dances by Sipra and Purabi Bose, daughters of Dr. Bose of the Mathematical Statistics Department; a Highland Fling and sword dance by Jim Wilson of Glasgow, Scotland, and Armenian songs by Shahan Haroutunian, president of the Club.

Peggy Moon, from Hilo, Hawaii, will do an authentic Hula Flula, guaranteed by ex-Club President Jim Wilson to please the male portion of the audience.

Wilson also described the number to be given by guitar-playing Olga Malina from Chile as having rhythms "that would knock the fenders off a jeep."

And a touch of American talent will be the offering of Jane Bishop of Swannanoa who will present a series of Appalachian ballads.

Last on the program for the evening will be a skit to be given by the Club entitled, "Home Sweet Home Again." It is designed to portray the impressions of America foreign students might carry home with them.

The show is being put on by the club for all students and townspeople in recognition of the hospitality they have found in Chapel Hill.

All-Out Effort In Senate Bill

A bill calling for practically total mobilization will be discussed by the Di Senate Monday night. The meeting is to be held at 7:30 on the third floor of New West.

The bill asks that the draft be extended to include men between the ages of 18-35 and childless women between 18-30. The bill further recommends that a large segment of the economy be placed under the jurisdiction of a central planning board.

The Senate and guests will hear an introduction to the bill by Dr. C. B. Robson, head of the Department of Political Science. Dr. Robson spent several months in Germany recently studying the social sciences at German universities. He is familiar with the problems the U.S. faces in Europe.

'Roscoe'

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 9—(P)—The Harvard Lampoon, undergraduate humor magazine, today awarded actress Elizabeth Taylor a "Roscoe" as the "most objectionable ingenue" in motion pictures in 1950.

The Lampoon tagged Miss Taylor with the "worst female performance of the year" for her work in "The Conspirators" and hung a similar label around the neck of Clifton Webb among male actors for his performance in "Cheaper by The Dozen."

Miss Taylor particularly displeased the Lampoon critics. They also dubbed her and Dean Stockwell the "most objectionable movie children of the year."
