Glenn Harden Sets Platform For Editorship

Assures Efforts To Keep Tradition Of Daily Editions

Glenn Harden, independent candidate for editor of The Daily Tar Heel, yesterday released a four-plank platform on which she is basing her spring election campaign.

The independent candidate has served on the paper for two years, working in the editorial and news departments. The platform reads:

"1. I pledge my efforts, if the students permit me to serve as their editor, to continue the tradition of a daily newspaper on this campus, for I believe that only through the medium of the daily can adequate news coverage be given to this campus. I believe the students want their paper every morning, if necessary at the expense of page size, one or more wire services, or the less popular features.

"2. I believe the functions of a newspaper to be three-fold: to inform, to entertain, and to instruct, in that order; and as editor, I would labor, to secure comprehensive news coverage, qualify feature material and columnists, and intelligent meaningful editorials.

"3. I believe that students who do not receive The Daily Tar Heel have been let down by the newspaper they pay for and support, and that papers which never reach the hands of students and papers which arrive in an unreadable condition are an inexcusable waste. I therefore pledge my efforts to systematized circulation procedures — to adequate campus coverage.

"4. I know that a paper filled with wire syndicated copy can not give adequate coverage of campus events, and that however desirable some such material may be, it should not be allowed to crowd out campus news. The Daily Tar Heel, as the only "daily" paper received regularly by most students, must direct its primary efforts to students and their activities.

"But a staff of six or eight persons can not give adequate coverage. There is great talent on this campus, and yet of about 100 people appearing for the first staff meeting last fall, only two new reporters received enough encouragement to remain with the paper. The time spent in training and encouraging new personnel would avoid an undermanned and overworked staff."

WORLD, NATION, STATE

WASHINGTON—Sen. Charles W. Tobey, fighting to continue the Senate Crime Committee investigation, said he would call for a meeting yesterday to "determine our future course"

TOKYO — American troops drove Chinese Reds off three bitterly defended hills north of Seoul today while other American doughboys battered a Chinese regiment with hand grenades and rifles.

NEW YORK — Three persons charged with conspiracy to transmit American atomic secrets to Russia during wartime went on trial in Federal Court yesterday in the nation's first atomic espionage case.

RALEIGH — Governor Scott released the opinion yesterday that legislative proposals to change control over the State's Contingency and Emergency Fund of highway surplus funds are unconstitutional.

YW Elects Officers Tonight

ADAIR BEASLEY

JEAN STONE

BETTY RAY

Elections for YWCA officers will be held tonight in the women's dorms and sorority houses, following regular house meetings.

A member of the Y will take charge of the polling in each place, when all Y members vote on their choice of candidates.

Running for president are Adair Beasley, Betty Ray, and Jean Stone. The duties of the president include presiding over the Cabinet meetings, overseeing committee chairmen, and directing the overall functioning of the YWCA. The girl with the second highest number of votes in this will become vice-president. This office entails being in charge of the Junior Council, the YWCA day during orientation; and the chairmanship of the Executive Committee.

Peggy Brown, Louise Kloster, and Sylvia Newsom are the candidates for secretary.

Candidates for the position of treasurer are Peggy Keith, Jane Marye, and Jane Piper.

Joan Charles, Gwen Gore, Jo Gaither, Caroline Hassinger, and Chris Oglesby are running for the position of program chairman. The position of membership chairman goes to the candidate with the second highest votes in the program chairman polling.

UNC Gets Budget Increase; TB, Psychiatric Units Seen

Special to The Daily Tar Heel RALEIGH, March 28 — Along with a 13 percent boost in its operating funds over this biennium, the University likely will get a psychiatric wing and a tuberculosis sanatorium under recommendations made by the Assembly's budget subcommittee.

The 18-man group unanimously suggested that original requests be upped by $42,928,018 to a record-breaking total of $506,000,000 to run the state for the next 2 years.

The subcommittee wants the extra money to be used to maintain a $2,200—$3,100 salary scale for teachers (something that was not provided in the original budget), to provide a pay boost for other state employees, to increase maintenance funds for institutions, and to provide $3,350,000 in permanent improvements.

The study group turned in its lengthy report to the full Joint Appropriations Committee. It is expected this committee will pass it by the end of the week with few if any changes. Then it goes to the full Assembly.

While no direct appropriation was recommended for the two permanent improvements for the University, the subcommittee suggested juggling funds appropriated by the State Hospital Board of Control so that $750,000 could be set aside for building and equipping of the two units.

In addition, Federal funds are expected to be available to make up the $460,000 needed to complete the tuberculosis addition. Also, the sub group recommended that $500,000 of Hill Burton Hospital funds be allocated to supplement state funds to help build the TB structure.

The University will get a boost of $165,752 for salary increases and maintenance costs if the recommendations are accepted.

N.C. Play Festival To Begin Tuesday

High school and community theater groups from all over the state will be converging on the campus beginning Tuesday when the 28th annual Drama Festival of the Carolina Dramatic Association meets at the Playmaker Theater.

Grail Starts Invitations Sales Today

The Grail will sell commencement invitations and personal visiting cards in the lobby of the Y between 10 and 2 o'clock, beginning today. The booth will be open tomorrow from 10 o'clock to 4:30, and on Saturday from 9 to 1 o'clock.

Samples are on display in the Y lobby and under glass in the showcases in front of the YMCA Building. Any student who will graduate between now and the beginning of school next fall is considered in the Class of 1951.

If you leave your address, your order will be forwarded to you. Cash or check must be given at the time the order is placed.

The approximate date of delivery of the orders will be May 7. The invitations will be shipped in bulk to the Grail for distribution.

Miss. Art Contest Has UNC Entries

Four Carolina students will exhibit drawings in the second annual "Approaches to Drawing" exhibition which opens on April 1 at the University of Mississippi.

Drawings of Patrick Faircloth, Richmond, Va.; Claude McKinney, Walkertown; Alice J. Rudisill, Chapel Hill, and Charles Scales, Hickory, will represent the University while work of students from 50 art schools and college art departments in the country will be included in the exhibit.

Bach, Beethoven, Gershwin, Lecuona

Oscar Levant Offers Program Set To Audience's Mood Tuesday Night

By Charlie Brewer
When Oscar Levant walks out on the stage of Memorial Hall next Tuesday night and sits down at his Student Entertainment Committee piano, not a person in the audience will know what he is going to play. At least not for sure.

The piano's most unconventional master has announced that he will play some Bach and Beethoven, some Gershwin and Lecuona, some Brahms and perhaps some Shostakovich. In any formal concert the Bach would come first, then the Shostakovich with the Gershwin closing the program. But that's not the system in a Levant "Program of Piano Music with Comments."

He likes to organize the program as he thinks appropriate for the audience and its mood. It is this role of pianist raconteur that has made Oscar Levant one of the most popular personalities in present day music.

Levant is the only artist in modern concert who takes such liberties with the formalities of the concert hall. However, no one has yet been known to protest for he is a supreme musician as well as an irrefutable story teller. The listener may be sure of hearing great music superbly performed — with a little gaiety on the side.

This form of entertainment is Levant's annual flight from the make believe world of Hollywood

Marine Corps Set To Initiate OCS Program

Seniors, Grads Without Service May Join Group

The Marine Corps has announced plans for its first Officer Candidate Course since World War II, according to Lieut. Col. B. W. McLean, USMC, of the local NROTC Unit.

The course will enable college students with no previous military experience to become officers.

Qualified graduates or seniors in accredited colleges who will receive degrees this spring, other than in medicine, dentistry or theology, and who will be less than 27 years old on July 1, this year, are eligible to apply.

Accepted candidates will be enlisted in the Marine Corps Reserve and sent to an intensive 10-week training course at Parris Island, S. C., this spring and summer, Colonel McLean said. Graduates will be commissioned as second lieutenants in the Marine Corps Reserve and then sent to the Marine Corps School, Quantico, for a comprehensive five-month basic officers course.

Candidates who fail to qualify for a commission will be given the option of discharge from the Marine Corps Reserve or assignment to active duty in enlisted status.

Interested applicants should see Lieutenant Colonel McLean at the Naval Armory here between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. Monday through Friday. The quota for this University is limited and applicants should contact the interviewing officer as soon as possible, he said.

Bill Would Change Date Of Election

A bill to move the date of spring elections from April 12 to 11 will be brought up before the Student Legislature at its meeting tonight in the Di Hall of New West Building.

Julian Mason, Chairman of the Elections Board, said he will introduce the bill changing the date from Thursday to Wednesday — two weeks from yesterday.

Mason yesterday explained this is necessary because of the inability to attain Gerrard Hall as a polling place on Thursday.

A second bill would provide for overlapping terms for members of the Student Council to maintain "continuity of membership and experience." It provides that three men and three women be elected in the fall and three members from the student body at large in the spring, all to serve terms of one year.

Dorm Men Angered Over 'Discrimination'

Mass Meetings Threatened To Protest Deans' Decision Against Coed Visitors

By Don Maynard

Angered dormitory men yesterday threatened mass meetings to protest the administration ruling Tuesday that dormitory social rooms cannot be used to entertain women because there are

"no chaperons available."

In an informal, random survey conducted late yesterday afternoon, dorm men of the lower quadrangle and the new dormitories asserted the administration's decision was based on dis-

B Dorm Will Open New Room Tonight

The official opening of "B" Dormitory social room will be held tonight at 8 o'clock with leading administration and student officials attending.

President Paul Somerville said yesterday that President Gordon Gray, Chancellor R. B. House, and other faculty members had been invited. Student President John Sanders, IDC President Ted Leonard and other student leaders were also asked to be present at the reception.

Somerville added that "everyone is invited" to the first social room opening. A special entertainment program with Phil Bernanke as Master of Ceremonies will follow the reception. Refreshments will be served.

Barry Farber, Daily Tar Heel columnist, will give a short talk and visiting campus personalities will be featured in the program. A special barber shop quartet has been assembled for the affair.

Somerville named Owen Easley, Dave Kerley, Bruce Biddle, James Pachares, and Advisor Ed Williams as instrumental in organizing the reception and festivities.

crimination. "Are we less trustworthy than fraternity men?" was the almost unanimous query.

A former fraternity man now living in A Dormitory pointed out that the Greek-letter societies are allowed women visitors in their houses without "any chaperon requirement. Why can't we have some sort of a written agreement such as the fraternities for women visitors?" he questioned. He declined to be named in print.

The storm broke over a decision by Dean of Students Fred Weaver and Dean of Women Katherine Carmichael that "there were not adequate facilities and staff" for men's dormitories to have women visiting in dorm, social rooms.

"We don't think that we are prepared to have the coeds visiting in the social rooms without chaperons," Weaver stated Tuesday.

But I. Jack Gural, 27-year-old graduate student in the Department of City and Regional Planning, declared "if fraternities are permitted women in their houses, we by all means should have the same privileges."

Gural is in charge of decoration of the B Dorm social room which opens tonight.

"We'll have in this room all the facilities available to women in their coed dormitories," he declared.

Over in the lower quadrangle, Bobby Byrd, 20-year-old General College student living in Everette stated: "I believe there's a definite need for social rooms. Women visitors in dorm social rooms would work out as well as in fraternity houses."

His roommate, Robert Clinard, 19, also in General College, concurred with Byrd and added that social rooms would be "a fine social gathering place for the men in the dorms."

Married, 27-year-old Roy Corderman, who lives in C Dormitory, said he thought the "administration sees the problem, but they don't seem to be searching for the answers."

Nominations Must Be In By Tomorrow

All nominations for spring elections must be submitted to Elections Board Chairman Julian Mason, 306 Aycock, by 11 o'clock tomorrow night with certification of grades from Central Records office.

Petitions for independents should have 25 signatures and the signature of person wishing to run with certification.

Mason announced that anyone interested in poll tending or vote counting should contact him or Jim Haney at 306 Aycock or Davis Byrd at the Theta Chi house immediately.

Candidates were reminded to put posters on only bulletin boards or they will be taken down. He pointed out that dorm notices and other important material were not to be removed.

The Elections Board will meet tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 on the second floor of Graham Memorial. Copies of the revised election law are now available in the Student Government office in Graham Memorial.

Election is currently set for Thursday, April 12. The inaugural date is scheduled for April 26. The elections date may be changed by the Student Legislature, however.

EVERETT HANDWERKER

Advertising Man Speaks Today At 2

Everett Handwerker, president and general manager of Jean's, Inc., of Raleigh, will speak in room 305, Bynum Hall, today at 2 o'clock. His subject will be "Debunking the Advertising Genius."

Handwerker has had a long and varied career in advertising and merchandising. A native of Oklahoma, he entered the merchandising business in that state over 30 years ago. He operated ready-to-wear stores in Tulsa and Oklahoma City for a number of years, and at one time was the owner and operator of "Everett's" of Hollywood.

Followers of "Who Said That," "Information Please" and other adult radio and TV programs have become familiar with Levant's nimble wit. Movie goers have observed his multiple talents in such films as "Rhapsody in Blue," "Humoresque" and in the recently released "The Barkleys of Broadway."

NCC Law School To Be Unaffected

DURHAM, March 28 — Law students at North Carolina College would not be affected if the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill admits law students to its school, Dr. Albert L. Turner, dean of the NCC Law School, said yesterday.

"I think we have some students now enrolled who would wish to go to the University," said Turner, "at the same time, there are others who, for their own personal reasons, would remain here."

Lit Specialist Gets Position

Dr. Robert Armstrong Pratt, specialist in medieval literature of the English Department in Queens College, Flushing, N. Y., has been appointed professor of English here it was announced yesterday by President Gordon Gray and Chancellor Robert B. House.

Dr. Pratt will assume his new duties here next fall. A native of Vermont, Dr. Pratt received his A.B. and his Ph.D. degrees from Yale University.

Mozart, Weill Operas Set Tonight At Hill Hall

Mozart's "Bastien and Bastienne" and "Down in the Valley" by Kurt Weill, a double-bill opera feature, will be presented tonight at 8:30 in Hill Hall. Additional performances will be given tomorrow and Saturday nights.

Maude-Baynor Foy and William Hoyer will star in "Bastien and Bastienne," which was written in German in the original but will be done in English translation by the Music Department. The score was edited by Felix Gunther, father of a present Carolina student. It has been given five or 10 times in the state.

Weill's opera, which will star Virginia Young, Colbert Leonard, and Harry Garland, has been presented over 300 times in the past two years, since it has been very popular with high school, college, and community groups.

Honor Councils

The Bipartisan Selection Board to pick candidates for both Men's and Women's Honor Councils will meet tonight from 7 until 10 o'clock in the Grail Room of Graham Memorial.

Only seven persons applied at a meeting held Tuesday night, and yesterday the Board called for more applicants.

Seats open on the Women's Council: three senior, one graduate, and one member at large; Men's Council: three senior, one junior, one sophomore, one graduate, and one pharmacy student.
