N.C. School Art Annual Exhibit To Begin Today

Grammar Schools
Send In 2,100
Entries To Judge

The 14th annual North Carolina School Art Exhibition opens today in Person Hall Gallery after five days of activity by the staff members of the gallery.

A crew of seven, headed by Miss Lynette Warren, has been busy all week uncrating, sorting, stacking, counting, wrapping, hanging, and making all the necessary preparations.

Entries for the show have been pouring into the little building for more than three weeks. Even though entries this year had to be limited to the first six grades and to a maximum of five percent of each school's enrollment, more than 2,000 paintings, ceramic pieces, textiles, and papier mache sculptures came in from all over the state to be judged.

Bartlett H. Hayes, Jr., Director of the Addison Gallery of American Art and judge for the school art show, began his task a week ago, the day after the deadline for entries.

Of the 2,100 entries, including representatives of such large city school systems as Durham, Raleigh, High Point, Burlington, and Greensboro, and numerous smaller county and town units, Hayes selected 248 paintings, 56 ceramics, 17 textiles, 10 papier mache sculptures, and two carvings.

Children whose works were accepted by Hayes for exhibition will each be given a certificate by the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs.

The exhibition, which was hung by George Birlane, will be on display until May 21. During the school year of 1951-52, the exhibit will be circulated throughout the state by the Extension Division of the University.

Uses Of Art In Education

George Kachergis, professor of art education in the Department of Art, will give an open gallery talk Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock on "Art in Education and Its Purposes."

Kachergis will discuss the need for art education in public schools "from the broadest social aspects to the narrowest personal reasons." He will also discuss the type of art education needed and will comment on the current exhibition of children's work.

Tea will be served by Graham Memorial following the talk.

The Shah Has A Unique Plan

Leader In Oil Potential, Iran May Fall To Commies, Unless--

By Walt Dear

Iran, world's leading country in oil potential and supply center for Western Europe, is faced with many difficulties which may overcome its tottering government and provide for a communist puppet group to take over. Shahen (Don't pronounce it, vote for him) Haroutunian, a junior in the University from Tehran, expressed this among other views when interviewed as to his homeland's future.

A short, stocky fellow with an infectious grin and a canary yellow and chrome convertible, Shahen says the oil troubles are only one of the problems facing the populous country next door to Russia. "What is primarily needed," he asserted, "is a strong central government that can raise the living standards and teach the people to act democratically." "Iran needs loans so that she can improve her industry, build educational facilities, and institute public health programs," he continued.

In order to quell the rise of the Tudeh (Communist) Party, Shahen explained that Iran's ruler, the Shah, hopes to lick the poor economic conditions which the communists take advantage of in their propaganda drives. The Shah has a unique plan. He is selling his own lands on an installment plan to Iran peasants. Owner of some 1,000 villages with a population of 250,000 the Shah has announced that he will use the money realized from the sale to effect agricultural improvements.

Although the Tudeh Party was outlawed about two years ago, it has successfully retained power and won over many Iranians, the University student pointed out. Most of the converts are peasants, although some of the wealthy

Taylor Appointed DTH Managing Ed; Watkins Is Named

The Publications Board yesterday approved the appointments of Andy Taylor as managing editor and Oliver Watkins as business manager of The Daily Tar Heel, it was learned from an authoritative source.

The appointments were recommended to the Board by Glenn Harden, recently elected editor of The Daily Tar Heel. She will assume office Monday. She requested that the Board not make the appointments public until next week.

Others approved were Zane Robbins, reappointed as sports editor, and Marie Costello, advertising manager.

In other business, the Board chose Frank Allston as its new chairman, Ken Penegar as secretary and Walt Dear as treasurer.

The Board voted to request bids immediately for next year's printing contracts for both the newspaper and the Yackety Yack. A motion to purchase two new tires for the Publications Board truck was approved.

Order Taps Monday; Valkyrie Sing Slated

Outstanding Coed Will Be Honored At Valkyrie Sing

An outstanding woman student of the senior class will be honored at the annual Valkyrie Sing Monday night when the annual Valkyrie Cup is presented in Memorial Hall.

Although the cup is presented each year, 1950 was the first year in which it was presented at the Sing. Last year's winner was Pat Denning.

Thirteen organizations will participate in the Sing, although one of them is an independent, the Monogram Club, and will win no award. The entertainment will follow the annual Fleece-tapping. Doors to the Hall will be closed at 7:30.

That annual threat, Sigma Chi, the fraternity which has walked off with fraternity honors for three successive years, will be without the musical genius of Hank Beebe and the Sigma Chi (See VALKYRIE, page 3)

GM To Hold Dance At Y

An open invitation has been extended to all Chapel Hillians and visitors to the Blue White game to join in the fun at Graham Memorial's square dance tomorrow night at 8:30 in the Y Court.

This is the first square dance this year of the Student Union regular series of weekly square dances held during warm weather. It is featured as part of the Spring Festival Program. It will be canceled in case of inclement weather.

Coeds To Hear Gray, Monroe, K. Carmichael

Training Program Slated Next Week; Ends With Banquet

The leadership training program for newly-elected coed officers will present three outstanding speakers in next week's evening sessions.

Dean Katherine Carmichael will speak on "The Responsibilities of Leadership" at the first meeting of the training program Tuesday evening.

Dr. David G. Monroe of the Political Science Department will be the speaker at Wednesday's meeting. His topic will be "Parliamentary Procedure."

Consolidated University President Gordon Gray will give an informal talk Thursday night to all men and women participating in student government at the annual Student Government Banquet in the Green Room of Lenoir Hall. The banquet will climax the program for coed officers.

All women who have been elected recently to any office on the campus are urged to attend the three-night training program. The speeches will be highly informative and helpful in efficient organization and planning of the coming year's program in campus activities.

Conferences On Marriage Will Be Held

A four-night series of conferences and discussions on courtship and marriage, directed specifically at students seriously considering marriage, will be held here on Tuesday and Thursday nights, May 8, 10, 15, and 17, it was announced yesterday.

The Second Annual Seminar on Courtship and Marriage will be held on those dates in the upstairs lobby of the Y from 8 o'clock to 10 p.m.

Lectures by Mrs. Ethel Nash and Dr. Reubin Hill of the Department of Religion will highlight the seminar. Movies and discussions on the subject are also on the calendar of events.

The conferences are especially for those students who are pined, engaged, considering marriage, or who are already married. They will feature small and informal talks and group discussions, he said.

Interested students should check with Mary Goodbee at the Y office for information.

Band Concert Set Sunday

The University Band, directed by Prof. Earl Slocum, will present the first of a series of spring concerts here Sunday at 4:30 p.m. in Hill Music Hall.

Featured on the program will be a new composition, "Tap Roots," which is music from the script of the motion picture of the same name by Frank Skinner. Another newly published composition will be "Zanoni" Op. 40, by Paul Creston, and also Lamar Stringfield's latest work for band, "Georgia Buck."

The public is invited and there will be no admission charge.

Spratt, Bryant Called To Duty

Major Roy M. Spratt and First Lieutenant Shasta M. Bryant, who have just been recalled to active duty with the United States Air Force to be AF ROTC instructors, have reported to the local unit for training, Lt. Col. Jesse J. Moorhead, professor of air science and tactics, announced yesterday.

UC Annual Carnival Is Tonight

UNC Midway To Spring Up On Navy Field

23 Organizations Entered In Event; Time Set For 7-11

The University Club and all organizations participating in its annual carnival will turn Navy Field into a midway tonight between the hours of 7 and 11 o'clock.

Twenty-three different campus organizations have made entries to have booths and concessions. Among them is Theta Chi fraternity which will present to the crowd the winner of their Ugliest Man on Campus contest and award him a trophy. Proceeds of the UMOG contest go to the Damon Runyan Cancer Fund.

At the same time the University Club will present an award to the organization having the most original booth.

There is no admission charge, and Erine Griffin, chairman of the Carnival Committee of the University Club, promises a great time for all. "Even if you don't spend a cent, there will be plenty to see," she said.

Music will be played constantly over a speaker. Each stand will have its Barker trying to drum up business.

Judging the entries for originality will be D. B. Herring and Mary Sanders for the University Club; Assistant Director of the (See MIDWAY, page 3)

Ugliest Man Will Receive Gifts Tonight

The Ugliest Man on Campus and his date for a night, Miss Arden Boisseau, May Queen of 1951, will have nearly $50 worth of prizes showered upon them tonight at the University Club Carnival, according to Theta Chi fraternity, sponsor of the UMOG contest. Prizes range from a free beer party to a T-bone steak dinner.

The two will have an all-expense-paid date on the Chapel Hill merchants and Theta Chi at any convenient time of their choosing. At the Carnival tonight, the Ugly Man will receive certificates from 14 merchants, entitling him to claim those prizes offered by each. In addition, the Ugly Man will receive a gold, engraved cup from the fraternity.

Voting took place Wednesday through today noon in the Y court. All voting was by penny ballots, and all proceeds from voting and the admission to the Theta Chi UMOG tent tonight will go to the Damon Runyan Cancer Fund.

Here are the prizes and the merchant donors: a free night of beer for the Ugly Man and Miss Boisseau at the Ramshead Rathskeller; meals for both from the Porthole, Michaels, the University Restaurant, the N. C. Cafeteria; a T-bone steak at the Village Grill, chicken dinner at Aggie's, and a steak dinner at the Colonial House.

A haircut for the Ugly Man from the University Barbershop; one car grease job from Poe-Mangum; one car wash job from Reeves Guf Station; one Old-Spice shave lotion from the Carolina Pharmacy; one Old-Spice talcum from Eubanks Drug Co.; four tickets to any show courtesy of the Park-Vue Drive in theater and two pairs of socks from Julian's College Shop.

The UMOG identity will not be known until all the balloting is through tomorrow afternoon, when the votes will be tallied and the winner adjudged. Second-place winner will be announced.

Junior's Weekend Gets Started With Straw Hats Today

Today is Junior Class Straw Hat Day. This is the beginning of Junior Weekend activities, which will continue tomorrow with the Junior Jamboree.

The highlight of the Junior Jamboree will be the selection of a "Jamboree Belle." The Jamboree will begin tomorrow after the Blue-White game. A bus will be in front of the Y 30 minutes after the game to afford transportation to Hogan's Lake, where the Jamboree will be held.

Class President Dick Penegar said, "I hope all juniors will buy a straw hat and participate in the tradition of Junior Class Straw Hat Day. We also hope that all juniors will bring their dates to Hogan's Lake Saturday night for an evening of fun and frolic at no cost."

The theme of the Jamboree will be "Bring a gal, bring a blanket." The spokesman for the class expressed the opinion that the Blanket party "will be the most popular attraction of the day."

Hillbilly music, free food, and entertainment by some of the class members will also be featured. During the evening, several door prizes will be given out.

Class of '52 straw hats will identify juniors for free admission, along with their dates.

'Our Best To You' Features Belltones

The Belltones will appear on "Our Best To You" tonight at 11:05, to render a 55-minute program of Beebe-Campbell songs.

Jimmy Capps, master of ceremonies on the popular nightly record program, invited the versatile quintet to give a second performance of the show which they presented before a packed house in Hill Hall Sunday night.

The group, under the direction of Composer Hank Beebe, will use the "Our Best To You" theme with Capps doing the announcing as on his regular shows. This is probably the first time in several years of broadcasting that "live talent" has been used on this program.

Capps, who said he was very pleased with the Hill Hall performance, said that tonight's program is an answer to the many requests he has had for Belltone numbers since he started using their recordings on his show.

Tonight's program will also give those who attended Sunday's concert a second chance to hear the catchy "Way Up in North Carolina" that they received so enthusiastically.

The Belltones have just returned from Fort Bragg where they presented a joint concert with the Women's Glee Club.

Oath Taken By Officers At Di Hall Last Night

Henry Bowers officially took over as president of the student body last night as the newly-elected student officers were inaugurated in a special meeting in Di Hall.

Retiring President John Sanders spoke briefly to open the meeting and offered his best wishes and congratulations to those present.

Bowers took the oath of office and was greeted by rising applause as he resumed his seat. Immediately afterward Vice-president Bunny Davis, Secretary-Treasurer Jim McIntyre, and Coed Senate Speaker Jo Ann Page were inaugurated. Next to be installed were the new members of the honor councils and the student legislature.

In a brief speech, Bowers outlined the history of student government at Carolina, and pointed out the problems which now face the student community.

The new president said that the problem could be solved, and asked for the "cooperation, suggestions, and participation" of all students.

John Sanders announced, as the inauguration closed, that a regular meeting of the legislature will be held after the Frank Porter Graham Inaugural Banquet next Thursday night.

And At State, And At Duke . . .

KA's As CSA Agents, To Secede Today At Noon In Front Of South

By Charlie Brewer

The Confederate States of America, through its agent, the Kappa Alphas of Carolina, will proclaim its official secession today at noon in front of South Building.

Coinciding with similar announcements at Duke University and State College, the loyal assemblage of the Old South will follow their annual directive to "seize and occupy the campuses of UNC, State College, and Duke University," and on Saturday to proceed to "march upon Raleigh and there seize the State Capital, executive officers, and assume all functions thereto pertaining."

All faithful citizens of the South are invited to participate in the secession ceremony as witnesses of their support of the venture.

Before proceeding on the Raleigh campaign, the KA's will hold formation at a rendezvous near Chapel Hill tonight to receive final instructions and supplies for the expedition. At this time the leaders will be announced, as selected by their length of service and beards.

All KA Confederates can be identified on the three campuses by their long shaggy beards. "Growing a beard is a long and arduous process, but it will help

Annual Spring Festival Week Opens Today

Fossil Collection, Atom Demonstration Are Among Exhibits

By Joan Charles

Exhibits ranging from a collection of fossils to a demonstration of experiments of the atomic theory have been prepared by various departments of the University for the second annual Spring Festival week, which opens today and continues through Sunday, May 6.

All of the exhibits will be open to visitors to the University during the week. A University-wide occasion, Spring Festival Week is designed to acquaint people of the state with the work of the University during the year.

The Geology Museum in New East building will contain a display of fossils, rocks, and other relics of both historical and physical geology. Experiments along the lines of classical and modern atomic theory are part of an exhibit to be sponsored by the Physics Department in Phillips Hall.

Two art shows will be open in the Morehead Building, "Recent Work of Chapel Hill and Durham Artists," and "Pictorial Illustrations." Photographs by several local photographers may be seen from Sunday through the remainder of the week in the Williams-Wolfe Lounge in Graham Memorial.

The University Library will be featuring an exhibit honoring Carl Sandburg and there will also be displays of on and off-campus publications in the Library. Prof. George Kachergis, member of the Art Department, will give a gallery talk in Person Hall at 3 o'clock Sunday to be followed by a reception, officially opening the "14th Annual North Carolina School Art Exhibit."

Photographs and stage models of various aspects of the Carolina Playmakers productions will be exhibited by Prof. Kai Jurgensen, member of the Dramatic Art Department, in the Green Room of the Playmakers Theater.

Radio majors will present a demonstration of the operation of a modern radio station, complete with actors and scripts, in Swain Hall Saturday morning, April 28. The Communication Center in Swain Hall will be open to visitors all week.

The Classics Department has extended an invitation to visitors to attend any classes in the Department during the week. An exhibit, "Interesting Demonstrations of Psychology," will be sponsored by the Psychology Department.

A pictorial display will show the work of the Music Department throughout the year.

Fireworks

Several dentists-to-be turned firefighters for a brief while early yesterday afternoon when their Quonset Hut beside the Medical School caught fire from an over-heated sterilization oven.

The fire was out at 2:30 p.m. when the Chapel Hill fire department arrived. There was minor damage to the top of the hut wall where the oven stove pipe was connected.

Correction

Following is a corrected schedule of the new Library hours:

Beginning tomorrow (April 28) the entire Library will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. every Saturday. All facilities will open at 1:30 p.m. on Sundays and will remain open until 5 p.m., with the exception of the Reserve Room, the General College Reading Room and the Business Administration Library, which will remain open until 10 p.m.
