

New Hospital Named; Will Honor War Dead

The teaching hospital now under construction at the University is to be named "The North Carolina Memorial Hospital," administrative officials announced yesterday.

Controller W. D. Carmichael, Jr., said that plans are being made to carry out the mandate of the 1951 Legislature which passed a bill authorizing and directing the University Trustees to designate the new building as "a continuing memorial to those North Carolinians who have given their lives, and who may hereafter give their lives, as members of the armed forces, in protecting the freedom and common welfare of their fellow citizens."

The hospital is scheduled for completion next January and for opening next April. Carmichael said that several plans are being considered by the Trustees and administration as to how the memorial will be symbolized. The committees will welcome suggestions.

One suggestion is that a bronze or marble shaft with a plaque and suitable inscription be erected in an enclosure near the building. Another suggestion is that the names of North Carolina's war dead be permanently inscribed on tablets in a memorial room to be set aside in the building.

The feasibility of publishing at the time of the dedication a memorial booklet containing a complete list of the names of all North Carolinians who have given their lives in war service is also being studied, Carmichael said.

-Chase-

He said he considers the plan for deferring college students on the basis of scholastic records sound in principle, but he anticipates much difficulty in its practical application.

As for the controversy raging as the result of MacArthur's dismissal, Dr. and Mrs. Chase both have strong opinions. They think General MacArthur is definitely on the wrong side of the fence.

Commenting on college trends,

Dr. Chase said that in recent years colleges and universities everywhere have found it necessary to place greater emphasis on fund-raising.

The Chases are seriously considering Chapel Hill as their permanent home. He retired from New York University last year, and for the last several months they have been vacationing in Florida. They have a town house in New York City and a summer home at Northport, Long Island. Dr. Chase expressed amazement at the growth of the University.

He recalled that when he first came to Chapel Hill 40 years ago the student body was comparatively small.

Carnegie Foundation Presents Grant To WC

President Gordon Gray of the Consolidated University has announced a grant of $3,000 by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching to Woman's College to carry forward its study of general education.

A thorough approach to the general education study during the coming year is made possible by the grant, which is made available immediately. Plans include summer study by faculty members in the workshops in Natural Sciences at Harvard; the financing of work in developing course materials in the humanities, the natural sciences, and the social sciences; faculty visitation to other institutions where significant work is being done in general education; and the bringing of special consultants to the campus during the next academic year.

Commenting on the Carnegie grant, President Gray said "I am delighted with the Foundation's expression of confidence in the forward-looking approach to liberal education which has been undertaken by the faculty of Woman's College.

"This is a distinct tribute to the entire teaching staff, which has taken the initiative for evaluating the curriculum of the college and its relations to education for citizenship. We confidently expect the study to produce results of genuine significance for the higher education of women in this state."

Two nationally known consultants in the field of general education have already spent several days on the campus in conference with members of the faculty student groups, and the administration. These have been Dr. David Owen, chairman of the general education committee of Harvard University and professor of history, and Dr. Frank H. Bowles, director of the college entrance examination board.

Lewis Wins Mural Debate

The University Debate Council ended its activities for the year with the completion of the intramural debating competition. The debate championship this year was won by Lewis dormitory which defeated Aycock in the finals.

The Lewis team will receive the cup which is given each year to the winning team and medals will be given to all participants. The Debate Council hopes to have more teams in next year's competition and will try to stimulate interest in debating, Lacy Thornburg of the Council announced yesterday.
