

Archeological Federation Holds Meeting Here Today

The Eastern States Archeological Federation will hold its annual meeting here today and tomorrow, it was announced today by Prof. Joffre L. Coe, director of the laboratory of Anthropology and Archeology at the University who is in charge of local arrangements.

Some 50 members are expected to attend.

The sessions, which will get underway with registration today at 10 o'clock, will be held in Wilson Hall. William A. Ritchie, Albany, N. Y., president of the Federation, will preside at the morning session and greetings will be extended by Dr. C. C. Crittenden, Raleigh, president of the Archeological Society of North Carolina.

Papers on historic sites will be given during the morning session by Kenneth E. Kidd, deputy curator, Royal Ontario Museum of Archeology, Toronto, Canada; Very Rev. Thomas Grassman, OFM Conv., director, Mohawk Caughawage Museum, Fonda, N.Y.; and J. Duncan Campbell, Colonial Park, Harrisburg, Pa.

In the afternoon John Witthoft, state anthropologist, Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission, Harrisburg, Pa.; Hale G. Smith, Department of Anthropology and Archeology, Florida

State University, Tallahassee; John M. Goggin, Department of Sociology and Anthropology, University of Florida, Gainesville; Professor Coe and President Ritchie will speak. Presiding over the afternoon session will be Father Thomas Grassmann, Fonda, N.Y.

An informal dinner for members of the Federation and their guests will be held at the Carolina Inn this evening at 7 o'clock when Roger J. Gould, comparative musicologist, will speak on "Variations in American Indian Music."

Tomorrow a business meeting will be held in Wilson Hall with President Ritchie again presiding. Making reports will be Recording Secretary Dorothy Cross, Trenton, N.J.; Secretary Kathryn B. Greywacz, Trenton, N.J.; Treasurer Carl Miller, Washington, D.C.; Professor Coe on the conference research project; John Witthoft, editorial project; C.A. Weslager, Wilmington, Del., public education project; E.B. Sacrey, Richmond, Va., membership; Maruice Robbins, Attleboro, Mass., and professor Coe, exhibits.

Speakers tomorrow will be Charles F. Kier, Jr., Archeological Society of New Jersey, and Stephen Williams, Yale University, New Haven, Conn.

Papers on the Eastern area will be given at the final session tomorrow afternoon when Irving Rouse, Yale University, will preside. On the program will be Dorothy Cross; Clifford Evans, Jr., National Museum, Washington; C.G. Holland, Archeological Society of Virginia, Staunton; Professor Coe; Ernest Lewis, superintendent, Town Creek Park near Albermarle; and William H. Sears, Anthropology and Archeology Department, University of Georgia, Athens.

Professional Group Meets At Chapel Hill

Delegates representing nine college and university chapters of Alpha Kappa Psi, professional business administration fraternity, will meet at the triannual district conference of the mid-east district chapters on October 26 and 27, at the Carolina Inn.

Dr. B. O. Miller, District Councilor, of the Beta Chi Chapter at V.P.I. will be the presiding delegate. The local Alpha Tau chapter will be the host.

The purpose of the conference is to build better relations with the business world, secure scholarships for those interested in business administration, create better relations between the fraternity and all schools of Business Administration, and to develop a finer service of the fraternity to the universities themselves.

Following a welcoming address by Chancellor R. B. House Friday morning in Gerrard Hall, there will be morning and afternoon discussion sessions on business problems and techniques.
