New Church Dedication Set Sunday

Dedication services for the new Lutheran church will be held this Sunday morning at the church.

The $95,000 Gothic architecture brick church is in its final stages of construction. The services will begin with the laying of the cornerstone before the morning services and continue through an evening program.

Dr. J. L. Morgan will preside over the laying of the stone, which will begin at 10:30. He is president emeritus of the United Evangelical Lutheran Synod of North Carolina.

adding, bookkeeping, accounting and microfilming machines will be used in the course, Dean Carroll stated.

Paul Green To Address N C Press Association

Paul Green, famous playwright and author, who is now on a world tour sponsored by the General Education Board of the Rockefeller Foundation and the University, will be one of the principal speakers at the annual mid-winter institute of the North Carolina Press association, to be held at Chapel Hill and Durham January 24-26.

Green is scheduled to speak at the luncheon session on Friday, January 25, at which the University will be host. He will have just returned from his five-month tour and his Press Institute address will be in the nature of his first public report.

Purpose of Green's trip is to acquaint foreign countries visited with American education and culture and the American way of life. In a sense he is serving as a "Cultural Ambassador."

Dr. F. McNeill Poteat, pastor of the Pullen Memorial Baptist church of Raleigh, formerly president of the Colgate-Rochester divinity school, will speak at the opening session Thursday night, January 24. Dr. Poteat spent many years as a missionary in university work in China, returning to the United States in 1948.

Speakers at the Friday session, in addition to Green, will include Benjamin H. Rees, a director of the American Press Institute at Columbia University and until recently for many years managing editor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and John A. Hogg, of the University of Missouri School of Journalism faculty, who judged the weekly newspaper contest this year.

The dinner session Friday night, January 25, will be held at Duke University, as has been customary. The principal speaker there is to be announced later.

Holt McPherson of Shelby, vice-president of the Press Association, will speak at the breakfast session Saturday morning honoring past presidents.

The Associated Dailies will hold their session Friday afternoon.

The tentative program for the Institute was announced by Thomas J. Lassiter, Smithfield, president of the State Press Association, and Miss Beatrice Cobb, Morganton, secretary-treasurer.

Double-Duty Dimes

Patient care and professional education both were provided by the March of Dimes, as shown here. Richard Heimrich, 4, of St. Louis, is making a come-back on the road to health, with March of Dimes help, since he was stricken with polio in 1949. March of Dimes also provided a physical therapy scholarship for Margaret Borth, of Maplewood, Mo., shown attending Richard.
