Draft Laws Explained By General Hershey

Students graduating from the University this year will no longer automatically receive 30-days after the end of their academic year to enlist in the service of their choice before being drafted, but they still will have ample time to escape the army by enlisting elsewhere.

The 30-day arrangements are not necessary this year, Selective Service Director Major General Lewis B. Hershey, said yesterday from Washington. This, he explained, is due to the 1951 amendments to the Selective Service law which provide that students are henceforth to be deferred instead of having their induction postponed.

The Selective Service act of 1948 provided that any student who, while satisfactorily pursuing a full-time course, was ordered for induction would upon presenting the facts to his local board have his induction postponed until the end of his academic year. At the end of the year, the student became liable for immediate induction. The 1951 amendments to the Act changed this, General Hershey pointed out, by providing that any student pursuing a full-time course who was ordered for induction would, if he had never before been deferred as a student, be deferred in Class I-S until the end of his academic year, but he could receive only one such deferment.

A student who is entitled to a statutory I-S deferment must be ordered for induction, General Hershey pointed out, before he can be deferred by his local board. The law says that he shall be deferred "upon presenting the facts" that he is satisfactorily pursuing a full-time course at the time the order for induction is issued. A student who is ordered for induction should not be thrown into a panic, General Hershey explained, all that is necessary is for him to request the Dean or Registrar to immediately give his local board official notice that he is a full-time student doing satisfactory work and that such work actually commenced prior to the date the order for induction was mailed. Enrollment, acceptance and registration do not count, actual attendance at classes is the prerequisite.

The Selective Service law places upon each registrant the obligation of keeping the local board advised of his current status. It would therefore be a wise move, General Hershey suggested, for each student to have his school send official notice to the local board as soon as the student has been notified that he has passed his preinduction physical examination. If the local board has been put on notice that the student is pursuing a full-time course, General Hershey advised, there will be little danger of a last minute mix-up which might result in the induction of a student legally entitled to a statutory I-S deferment.

The new Selective Service law provided for the Class I-S statutory deferment and gave the President authority to prescribe regulations governing the deferment of students in such numbers as he deemed necessary to the maintenance of the national health, safety or interest. The President subsequently prescribed a Class II-S student deferment program. Students may be placed in this classification, General Hershey explained, at the discretion of their local boards. To assist the boards in determining which students should be given II-S deferments, a method

Allan Milledge Appointed To Council Seat

Allan Milledge, former chairman of the Men's Council, has been appointed to a seat on the Student Council by President Henry Bowers.

Final approval of the appointment rests with the Student Legislature Thursday night.

Milledge will fill the seat vacated by Chapel Hill native Bill Wolf, who has assumed the chairmanship of the Student Party.

A member of Phi Beta Kappa, the Golden Fleece and Order of the Old Well, Milledge received his A.B. in political science last December and is now working for his masters degree.

Prof-Student Dining Room Will Soon Open At Lenoir

by Grady Elmore

A faculty-student dining room in Lenoir hall is scheduled to open its doors in about two weeks, manager George Prillman stated yesterday.

In response to expressed wishes by certain faculty members for a quieter place to eat, the second floor, front corner banquet room is undergoing preparations to accommodate 100 persons.

"The new dining room will by no means be exclusive to the faculty," Mr. Prillman emphasizes. "Students desiring a more private, less noisy atmosphere are most welcome to take advantage of the upstairs room," he said.

Members of the faculty and students who so desire will follow the regular procedure through the cafeteria line, then carry their provisioned trays up the steps located in the main lobby.

Prillman, a former self-help student here who graduated in 1947, stated that this step is only one of many he intends taking in an endeavor to completely satisfy Lenoir hall patrons.

The replacement of ground coffee for last quarter's frozen type was accomplished just last week, as a first step of improvement in response to complaints by students.

Since assuming the management of Lenoir in October, George Prillman has outlined a policy to conform with his theory that "Lenoir is the students' dining hall and should be operated as such."

In addition to changing from frozen to fresh coffee the new manager has opened for students' usage three banquet rooms on the second floor. "These are available for private banquets club dinners or fraternity get-together meals at no extra cost," he says. Simply notify him and obtain your food in the cafeteria and transport it upstairs, with no fee for use of the room and no tipping.

For a banquet serving a separate menu of prices is on hand, ranging from $1.25 up. Pots of coffee and pitchers of ice water are provided.

Playmakers Tryouts Set For Today

Director John W. Parker and staff will cast 22 parts today at 4 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. in Memorial Hall for the Playmakers gala musical production of the year, "Spring For Sure." Everyone in the school is eligible to audition, and all are assured a careful hearing.

"Spring For Sure" is a musical comedy written by Catherine McDonald and Wilton Mason, both associated with the University, and tried out here in 1950. The present showing is scheduled for February 1-3 in Memorial Hall, and will take two hours on February 4-16 and March 24-April 5.

Members of the cast will need to sing and dance, but the corps of directors can offer instruction in these arts. Everyone is requested to bring some song with them. A pianist is also needed to work with Bill Van Collins and the Hammond organ.

To Observe US Student Life In Short, One Month Visits

FRED H. WEAVER

Dean of Students Fred H. Weaver has been awarded a Carnegie Corporation traveling fellowship to visit universities and colleges and study undergraduate life, Chancellor Robert B. House announced yesterday. Weaver will visit on one month temporary leaves of absence.

"This fellowship provides Dean Weaver with an excellent opportunity to observe the undergraduate phases of student life in major institutions of the country," the chancellor commented. "The trip," he added, "will enable him to gather information which should prove invaluable to the student life program here."

The fellowship, a part of the Carnegie administrative personnel program, is awarded to young administrators to give them opportunity for travel which have generally been available only to teaching staffs of universities. In the last 10 years only 25 such fellowships have been awarded.

Weaver will leave in early February on one month tours. The fellowship provides traveling expenses for visits from two to four months. He will visit one group of institutions, then return to the University for a month and finally conclude his travels with another visit. Although Weaver has not announced his itinerary, he indicated he would visit schools throughout the country.

A graduate of the class of 1937, Weaver became assistant dean of men in 1938 and served in that capacity until 1941. He then served as American vice-consul in Rio de Janeiro but came back to the University and volunteered for Naval flight training. Later he received his commission in 1943 and spent one year with the Naval Ferry Command. While waiting for assignment to a carrier in 1945 as a fighter-bomber pilot, V-J Day came.

Weaver came back to Chapel Hill and to the dean's office and in September, 1948, became Dean of Students. In 1949 he was granted a leave of absence to study for a masters degree at Harvard. He returned the next year.

Weaver is married to the former Frances Angas. Mrs. Weaver is a 1949 UNC graduate.

Ring Sale

Juniors are now eligible to order their class rings and may do so beginning Thursday, Al House, Ring Chairman of the Grail announced today.

Orders for rings for the class of 1953 as well as 1952 will be taken Thursday in the Y lobby from 9:30 to 4:30. A deposit of five dollars is required when the order is placed and delivery of the rings is made in 8 to 10 weeks.

The Grail is the only agency through which the official University class ring may be obtained. Ring orders will be taken every other Thursday for remainder of the year.

Di To Take Bite At Whiskey Bill

When members and guests of the Dialectic Senate chew at the carcass of the oft-macerated liquor referendum problem tonight at 8 o'clock, the floors of Di hall on third floor New West should ooze with oratorical gore.

Persons cited as political experts have maintained that the initiation of such a referendum would result inevitably in a dry North Carolina, and for this reason, say Senators, discussion should wax rather warm.

Opposed to the practice of allowing local option regarding liquor sales, a referendum calling for statewide participation is regarded by wets as a device which would rally the dry forces into real voting power and oust liquor from the state.

The Senate's bill was inspired by a similar bill introduced at the State Student Legislature at Raleigh last year by Wake Forest. At that time the bill received some hot opposition, particularly from the Carolina delegation. At that time, the bill was defeated by a close vote.

The Senate renewed its plea for visitors and assured that such guests are welcome to participate in discussion.

DTH Circulation

Students living off campus and not receiving The Daily Tar Heel are now requested to see Neal Cadieu, circulation manager.

He will be in the circulation office, second floor Graham Memorial during the afternoons. If he is not in, leave name and address under the door of the office.

If a student receiving his paper by mail has changed his address he should inform the subscription department of the change also.
