"The student body offers resources in connection with certain aspects of the college that could be brought to bear in such a way as to make the operation a great deal more effective," the professional college administrator said.

In the inauguration ceremonies, John Sullivan, Chapel Hill senior in business administration, was installed as president to succeed Robert H. Clampitt, senior from St. Petersburg, Fla.

that an issue had to be made of it." The three were James Walker, J. Kenneth Lee and William Marsh.

Dean Brandis analyzed the vote in which 145 out of 214 students participated, noting that the 82 "yes" votes represented 57 per cent of those voting and 38 per cent of those who could have voted.

"The majority is not overwhelming, but it is a substantial one of those who voted," he pointed out. The 63 who voted "no" represented 43 per cent of those voting.

Association president Knox Walker said, "As a result of the vote and comment, I still don't know what the student body (law school) wants." He couldn't say whether there would be another referendum and did not indicate whether there would be a dance or not. The date of the dance has not been set.

The dance is the sole function in which all the school participates.

Walker gave an explanation of why the referendum was presented to students. The legislature determines whether the dance will be held. They voted to have the dance, Walker said, with the understanding that the Negro students would not come believing that they were not lina; Mrs. Estelle Page, woman golfer who is a former national champion; and many others in different fields.

"All in all," Lt. Col. Mark Orr, teacher of the class, said, "the students not only learned how to make a survey, but also what the town they were spending their college days in was like."

members of the association. When the legislature realized that the Negroes were members, they had another meeting and reopened the question. It was decided to put the question to students, although some say that many members deliberately wanted the question put on a referendum basis to bring out the segregation point, and thus a majority of "no" votes.

Students who asked that their names be withheld, said the dance would probably be held either in Durham or some other place nearby. The date has not been decided upon.
