

Cagers Meet Ft. Bragg Here Tonight

Charity Game Played For Polio Drive

Carolina's basketball team will be host to Fort Bragg in an exhibition charity game at Woollen gym tonight at 8 o'clock with all proceeds going to the March of Dimes.

A preliminary game will be held at 7 p.m. featuring the four midget Cub Scout teams that have amused the crowds during the halftime in previous games here. The midgets are coached by Joe Hilton, Carolina's assistant track coach.

The Soldiers are paced by center Carl Merrit, forward George Campbell, guard Don Kilker, and center Ralph Boggs of Chapel Hill.

E. Carrington Smith, local theater manager and chairman of the March of Dimes drive here, said that he hoped to raise $800 from the game and that the public should know that $1,000 is spent on local polio patients each month.

Tickets may be purchased at Woollen Gym or from members of the ADPi sorority. The price is fifty cents for students, one dollar for adults, and twenty-five cents for children.

Carolina has just returned from a northern trip which saw it lose, 71-51, to Maryland in a conference game and defeat Temple, 70-65, in an intersectional tilt.

The Tar Heels now have a 10-6 overall record and a 6-2 record within the conference. Carolina will stick with their regular lineup of Jack Wallace and Al Lifson at forwards, Vince Grimaldi and captain Howard Deasy at guards, and center Paul Likins.

This contest will provide a stiff work out for the Tar Heels who meet North Carolina State next Saturday. A large audience is expected.

Tennis Star Vic Seixas Is One Of Best In UNC History

By Frank Allston, Jr.

"Vic Seixas one of the greatest athletes ever to wear the Blue and White, climaxed an unprecedented rise to tennis fame last week when the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association named him the nation's No. 1 amateur.

The handsome Philadelphian, who played his collegiate tennis here in 1947-49, won the top ranking at the expense of Dick Savitt, Wimbledon and Australian champion. A long and controversial session of the USTA at New York Saturday saw Seixas emerge with the top position on the basis of the first proxy vote on tennis ratings in the Association's history.

Seixas polled 30,900 votes to 24,375 for Savitt.

Capt. Frank Shields of the American Davis Cup team was credited with the success of the move to gain the top ranking for Seixas, who had been placed second to Tony Trabert by the ranking committee in December. Seixas, Savitt and Trabert all played in the U. S. 3-2 loss to Australia in the 1951 challenge round.

Seixas was a dominating figure on the Carolina athletic scene during the so-called "Golden Era" of sports. He entered Carolina as a freshman in the fall of 1941 and played brilliantly on the freshman team of that year.

After serving four years in the Army Air Corps, part of that time as a test pilot in New Guinea, he returned to pick up his college career. During the 1947, 48 and 49 seasons he was No. 1 man on the Carolina team which won 65 matches and lost only three.

Seixas' time at Carolina wasn't spent entirely on the tennis court. He found time to participate in several campus activities as was elected to the Order of the Golden Fleece during his senior year. He was also president of Chi Psi fraternity and was a member of the 1948 varsity basketball squad.

Seixas was never able to hit his full stride in either the national or the Southern Conference tournaments during his three years of competition. He tried for both titles each of his three years, winning the conference crown once and losing in the finals twice. He was also runner-up in the nationals in 1948, dropping a close match to Harry Likas of U. of San Francisco.

Vic was conference singles champion in 1948, but lost the 47 title to Gardner Larned of William and Mary and the 49 title to Fred Kovaleski of William and Mary. In 49, he teamed with Clark Taylor to win the doubles crown from Kovaleski and Howie Atwater.

Seixas always managed to play his best game during the summer months when he hit the tennis circuit. In 1948, he was ranked ninth in the nation and rose to seventh in 1949. Following a strong performance in the summer of 1950 when he lost in the semi-finals at Wimbledon to Budge Patty, Vic was ranked No. 3 American amateur. In 1948 he won the William E. Johnson trophy emblematic of outstanding sportsmanship.

This past summer Seixas was one of the top members of the tennis circuit and was chosen to play in the challenge round of Davis Cup play following his brilliant work against Sweden. In the New South Wales tourney he defeated

Al Lifson Takes Lead In Scoring

Al Lifson flipped in 19 points against Maryland last Friday night to move into first place in the UNC scoring race, replacing Vince Grimaldi who scored but 6 points against the Terps.

Both men scored 17 points in Carolina's victory over Temple on Saturday night. Lifson has 225 points in 16 games to 221 for Grimaldi in the same number of games.

Jack Wallace, last year's high-scoring forward, is still in third spot on the scoring chart with 188 points. Howard Deasy is fourth with 132, and Paul Likins, who has been scoring in the double numbers the past four games, finally moved into the hundreds column with 106.

Actually Grimaldi still holds a lead over the sensational freshman in the field goal department with 89-78, but Lifson has a tremendous advantage in the free throws, 67-37.
