State Takes Carolina In 58-53 Overtime Tilt

by Ed Starnes

N. C. State's vaunted basketball team scored five points in the overtime period to defeat Carolina 58-53 last night before a jammed Woollen Gym crowd of 6,000 who screamed with joy as the underdog Tar Heels almost upset the Wolfpack.

Kim Buchanan, substitute State forward, dropped in a foul shot with 3:30 left in the overtime period to give the Wolfpack its winning point. A short push shot by Dickie Tyler seconds later put State beyond the reach of the Tar Heels. Lee Terrill made a layup with 25 seconds remaining in the contest.

Jack Wallace and Al Lifson sparked a Carolina drive in the third quarter that stretched a 29-27 halftime lead to 48-40 at the end of the third period.

Wallace Gets Ten

Wallace scored six foul shots and two shots from the floor in that quarter for ten points as Carolina seemingly took command of the contest. Lifson sank three beautiful set shots.

Pete Jackmowski, a 6-foot-three inch guard from Brooklyn, N. Y., scored five points as the final quarter began and Terrill and Speight both scored two to narrow Carolina's lead to 51-48.

Buchanan hit a foul shot and Lee Terrill dropped in a layup with 4:15 left in the contest to tie the game up 51-all.

Tyler dropped in a foul shot a few seconds later to give the Red and White clad cagers a 52-51 edge, but Lifson scored on a set shot from the side to move Carolina ahead 53-52.

Mel Thompson, Wolfpack center, made a foul shot with two minutes left in the contest to tie it up, 53-53.

Carolina froze the ball for the last two minutes and Vince Grimaldi took a set shot with 25 seconds left but missed. State got control of the ball but didn't have time to get a shot away.

Nip and Tuck

The first half was a nip and tuck affair with the score tied 11 times. No team ever held more than a two point advantage in the first quarter which ended 14-14.

Jack Wallace took scoring honors for the game with 18 points, and Al Lifson hit for 17. Lee Terrill led the Wolfpack with 17. Grimaldi and Speight collected 10 apiece.

The win moves State further ahead in the Southern Conference race with a perfect 8-0 record. Carolina now boasts a 6-3 loop mark and a 11-7 overall record for the season.

Bershak Scholarship Will Be Continued Despite Loss of Fraternity Men, IFC Says

Despite a large decrease in the number of social fraternity men on campus, the Interfraternity Council has voted to continue awarding the $2,000-four year Andrew Bershak scholarship, John Robison, president, announced yesterday.

There was some question as to whether the $500 annual stipend would be continued as membership has decreased considerably since the Korean War.

Established in memory of Andrew A. Bershak, all-american football star and student leader who graduated in 1938, the scholarship grants $2,000 covering four years and subject to continuance of high standards by the recipient in his University work.

Qualifications for the award include ability shown by a good scholastic record and extracurricular activity, character, and financial need. Any high school student who wishes to apply should write Student Aid Office, University of North Carolina, Box 1330, Chapel Hill.

Present Bershak holders are Stewart Mooring, first year medicine student of La Grange; Arch Fort, junior, Oxford; Lloyd Ennis, Salisbury freshman, and Robert Hyatt, freshman, Cherokee. Mooring is a Phi Beta Kappa member while Fort has a straight A record. Ennis is in Phi Eta Sigma, freshman honorary academic society.

The Bershak scholarship has been awarded four times since its inception in 1948. Each fraternity man contributes about $1.75 towards the sum, an increase over last year's amount.

Before he died of nephritis (kidney disease), in 1942, Barshak served as an assistant football coach and tutor. While a student, he was a member of the Orders of Grail and Golden Fleece and was president of the Athletic Association. A radio show, "Remember Me," was produced on the University Hour by the Communication Center last year. The program dramatized Barshak's life and told of the last years of his life when he knew he had an incurable disease.

Journalism Will Receive Howell Hall

Carolina's unaccredited journalism school will move to Howell hall when the new pharmacy building, next on the University's construction schedule, is built, the State's newspapermen were told here yesterday.

Holt McPherson, president of the Journalism Foundation, said yesterday, in a speech before the closing session of the State Newspaper institute here, that the move will be made when the old pharmacy building becomes available.

The local journalism school was bypassed last week when the American Council on Education for Journalism (ACEJ) gave its stamp of approval to schools and departments in 40 degree-granting colleges and universities in the United States.

When representatives of the ACEJ appraised the local journalism department in 1949 they reported that its chief deficiencies included inadequate library and library space, no typographical laboratory, and insufficient space in general.

Now sharing the small Bynum hall with the journalism school are the University News Bureau and the University Press. Howell hall is a larger building and the move is expected to solve the space problem.

McPherson told the newspapermen yesterday that the State's press "needs to do a systematic job of attracting into journalism bright young men and women who see in newspapering a dedication to the public service that makes it a way of life than merely a means to earning a reasonably good living."

Although the newspaper business is neither decadent nor has lost its ideals or its idealism, how long it continues that way depends more upon the kind of men and women of the next generation who will have it in charge, he said.

He explained that a start is being made, but no more than a start, in rising to the obligation to educate through the Journalism Foundation which he said envisions a better housed and equipped
