Hugh Gale Gets SP Yack Nomination

Phi Will Hear 2 Bills Tonite

Two bills will be discussed by the Phi Assembly tonight.

Written by Ham Horton, the first would pledge the support of the Phi to a Constitutional amendment limiting the percentage of taxable income by the Federal Government.

The second, written by Bob Gorham, is entitled "Is Great Britain a Leech?" This bill attacks the vast amount of money and strategic material "loaned to England by the United States and evaluates Prime Minister Churchill's recent "I did not come for money speech."

Two new members, Miss Catherine Ann Holmes, junior from Winsor, and John Debnam, junior from Wilmington, will be initiated at the meeting in the Phi Chambers of New East building tonight at 8 p.m.

All interested persons are invited to attend.

Begins Duties

Roy Holsten, 1951 Carolina graduate, formerly became assistant dean of students yesterday in the dean of students office.

The Greensboro anti former Glenn Rock (N. J.) man is being briefed by Dean Fred Weaver this week. While Weaver is away on a Carnegie travel fellowship, Holsten will shoulder most of the office's work.

Federal Security

Oscar Ewing To Speak On American Public Health

Oscar Ross Ewing, Federal Security Administrator, will visit the campus today for two addresses and an informal meeting with the faculty.

Ewing's major talk, under the sponsorship of the YMCA, will be delivered in Hill hall at 8 p. m. on the topic "Health Alternatives Facing the American People." He will be introduced by University Chancellor Robert Burton House.

Prior to this, however, he will speak to the Faculty club on "Promoting the General Welfare" at a 1 p. m. luncheon meeting in the Carolina Inn. Dr. E. G. McGavran, dean of the public health school, will introduce him to the club.

Later in the afternoon, Ewing will meet informally with the faculty and any other interested persons in the Planetarium dining room at 4 o'clock.

Ewing, who appears in Chapel Hill today following an appearance before the 1952 Institute of Religion in Raleigh last night, has attempted as Federal Security Administrator, to bring into closer relationship the constituent

Jake Froelich Named By UP To Council

The University Party last night set the date of its nominations for Daily Tar Heel editor for next Monday night and appointed John Froelich to fill the student council seat vacated this week by Ham Horton.

Complete nomination schedule for this year's early-April elections, as set by the UP last night, follows: Feb. 11, Daily Tar Heel editor and Student Council; Feb. 14, Yackety Yack editor, treasurer of the student body and sophomore class officers; Feb. 25, continue sophomore class and nominate student body president; March 3, head cheerleader and senior class officers; March 24, W.A.A. president, vice-president and student legislature; March 31, complete student legislature.

Froelich was chosen over John Dortch, Fred Hutchins and Mitchell Novitt. He was defeated for a council seat in last fall's elections by 36 votes.

Former council member Ham Horton resigned this week to accept a seat in the student legislature.

A member of the German Club for two years, Froelich is vice-president of the Interfraternity council.

The UP also accepted Jim Parker as its representative from Alexander dormitory.

Social Room Set-Up Given Airing By IDC

"You didn't know you were so lucky" goes the familiar phrase.

And that about sums out the discussion held last night in Graham Memorial where the Inter-dormitory Council met to hear University officials discuss dorm problems.

After Claude Teague, business manager, and J. S. Bennett, director of operations, got through explaining how much it costs to run a dormitory and where the money comes from, most of the questioners were stilled. In the past many of the IDC members have been angered by the University administration's apparent "No" answers to their requests, but after the informal talk with the officials, members realized what some of the problems are that face the University in regard to dormitories.

Dorms are self-supporting. Teague pointed out. "We have to collect rents to operate," he added. What improvements are made are done with the manipulation of any small profits and a balancing of the budget. The dorms are painted about once every five years; 500 mattresses are being installed each year; the number of telephones have doubled new tables and chairs have been added and social rooms have been opened. Four Profs Nominated For Awards

Four University professors have been nominated for the 1952-53 Ford Foundation faculty fellowships, Dean Corydon P. Spruill announced yesterday.

The nominees are Dr. Samuel M. Holten, assistant professor in the department of education, Dr. Albert E. Radford, botany professor, Dr. Olin T. Mouzon, professor of economics, and Jeffrey L. Coe, instructor in anthropology and director of anthropology laboratory.

Ford faculty scholarships are offered to enable teachers in this country to broaden their qualifications for teaching their respective fields as part of a program of liberal education. The foundation hopes to strengthen college teaching as a result of the fellowships.

Nominations go to a central committee where nominations from all over the country have been received. About 250 teachers will be chosen. Announcement comes April 1.

The Carolina faculty men have submitted projects on what they will do if awarded. Dr. Holten plans to examine programs of study in the liberal arts or general education fields and the professional or specialized field and then make a comparison.

Accepted By Acclamation; DTH Editorship Postponed

By Bruce Melton

Hugh Gale, present art editor of the Yackety Yack, was nominated as a candidate for the Editorship of the 1953 Yack last night by the Student Party.

He was nominated by Ken Penegar and the Party accepted the nomination by acclamation. Gale was unopposed for the nomination.

The nomination of the Editor of The Daily Tar Heel, originally scheduled for last night was postponed. The party will nominate their candidate for the President of the Student Body on Feb. 18. The DTH Editor will be chosen either Feb. 11 or 18, this is tentative. Chairman Bill Wolf stated that the party would continue nominations according to the following schedule—Student Council, and any other if time permits February 11; President of the Student Body Feb. 18; Vice-President of Student Body, Secretary and Treasurer and completion of nominations, Feb. 25.

Gale is a rising senior and art major from Raleigh. He worked with Tarnation, former Humor mag, as artist and art editor during his freshmen and sophomore years.

Before coming to Carolina, he served as art editor of "The Pirate", annual of Fernandina High School, Fernandina, Fla.

Gale, in addition to having the SP nomination is endorsed by the present staff of the Yackety Yack.

Editor Sue Lindsey said of Gale, "I believe that he has the interest, knowledge, skill and perseverance to put out and exceptionally good Yackety Yack."

Partial layouts for the 1953 Yackety Yack have been completed by Gale and these were explained to the party at the meeting.

Party members were asked by the chairman to begin to think about possible nominees for the rest of the nominations to come later this month.

ROTC Abolishment Asked In Dialectic Measure Tonight

A bill calling for the abolishment of the present ROTC system and the subsequent creation of a program of military training for all college men, will be debated by the Dialectic Literary Society tonight at 8 o'clock in the Di hall on the third floor of New West building.

To be introduced by president pro-tem Ed Smith of Matthews, the bill was drawn up by the Ways and Means committee whose membership includes a number of ROTC students here.

Man Seeks Aliby

Three Carolina students can help out a man who gave them a lift Saturday night, January 19.

The students were trying to get a ride to Meredith College for a party when Ira Lea Burton, 28, picked them up and drove them almost to Raleigh before his blue Buick convertible got a flat tire. Burton pulled into a nearby filling station and let the men out.

Soon after Greensboro police booked Burton on a robbery charge for Saturday night at the time when he was giving the students a ride. To verify his story, Burton needs the witnesses.

While waiting for help, Burton is being held in a Greensboro jail. When police arrested the man, two men who witnessed the robbery said they never saw Burton, while another claims Burton was the robber.

If you are one of the three students, contact the Dean of Students office at 7777.

According to the bill, the new college military training program would be compulsory for all physically qualified college males without previous military training. The program would provide greater specialization than present ROTC programs and apply military methods and discipline to all its phases.

Commissions would be awarded upon graduation on the basis of qualifications and military need. Persons not commissioned would serve as non-commissioned personnel. Length of service after graduation would be limited to one year.

Reasons given for replacing the present ROTC system are (1) there is a great need for trained men in the service today, (2) college graduates should be able to take over responsible military positions, and (3) the ROTC programs are not adequate for the job with which they are intrusted.

Details of organization and administration of the new program would be worked out by Congressional legislation.

All interested persons are invited by the Di to attend and participate in the debate, if they so desire.

Crime & Milk

BATH, England—Milk bars, British equivalent of American soda fountains, are the hangout of gangsters, says a local vicar of the Church of England. The Rev. E. C. Childs of suburban Bathampton made this charge in his parish magazine, following a similar statement in the House of Lords.
